Gov. Scranton Explains Favorite Son Bid For '64

HARRISBURG (AP) — Gov. Scranton said Thursday he agreed to become a favorite son candidate for the Republican presidential nomination in 1964 to bring to Pennsylvania "the attention it should have."

The governor told his weekly news conference that at this time he is still not a bona fide candidate for the nomination.

"I am deeply concerned about the tendency of some Republican leaders to fall for the bait that the party should accentuate the south and the west and ignore the northeast, particularly the big urban states of the northeast, which were named several times as Pennsylvania and New York," he said, adding:

"I thought frankly that if the tendency continued it would mean that in the election in 1964 Pennsylvania would not be given the due amount of attention it should have."

The governor also said it would be "useful" to have the 64-member Pennsylvania delegation to the GOP nominating convention completely united.

He said he made the decision to accept the favorite son mantle after talking with numerous Republican leaders.

He also said he had not decided whether he would be chairman of the delegation.

Asked whether his role as favorite-son would be power politics, the governor replied:

"The way I would use it, it would not be for power politics purposes."

Pinned down for a flat answer on whether he would accept the nomination in a deadlocked situation, Scranton said:

"That is a very difficult question. My best guess is no. Let's see what the circumstances are then."

The governor said he understood that Philadelphia "is very much in the running" as the site for the 1964 GOP convention.

Other news conference highlights:

Authority Building—The governor said he feels that privat colleges and universities should pay rentals on the buildings erected for them at taxpayer expense by the general state authority.

"I understand the necessity for the construction to meet the anticipated growth, but I am not in sympathy that we should pay for the rentals," he said.

The governor added he has directed the GSA to look into situations where the institutions might pay such rentals on both present and past construction.

He also said he favors a proposed constitutional amendment that would rip out the authority method of financing construction of state and private buildings, but not school buildings.

Relief Workers — Scranton agreed "in principle" with a House-approved bill that would require able-bodied relief recipients to work on any local projects available.

But he said it may be a problem to handle the administration of the program.

Bible Reading — The governor said he would favor an amendment to the U.S. Constitution to permit the reading of the Bible and the Lord's Prayer in public schools on a voluntary basis.

He said he had introduced such an amendment when he was in Congress two years ago.

Civil Rights—Scranton said he would meet with a number of civic leaders after the legislature adjourns in an attempt to "keep ahead" of the growing problem of racial disputes.

He said he had no special plan for avoiding such disputes in Pennsylvania, except "to make sure that the human relations commissions in the various cities are operating well."

He said Atty. Gen. Walter Alessandroni has not yet completed a study of what action the state might take in the civil rights field as far as tightening up laws.

"It takes quite a lot of work and, as you know, Pennsylvania is pretty up to date."

School District Rtorganization—The governor indicated he was hopeful that the Senate might accept amendments to his school district reorganization bill, which was weakened by rewriting by the chamber's Education Committee.

However, he said he did not wish to discuss his proposals publicly until they are completed. He has said previously he favors a stronger bill than the one approved by the Senate committee.

Thresher Board Report Released

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy said Thursday it is most likely that destruction of the atomic submarine Thresher stemmed from the rupture of an engine room pipe under heavy sea pressure.

A summary, but not the secret text, of the findings of a court of inquiry was made public by Secretary of the Navy Fred Korth.

The court, which took 12 volumes of testimony from 120 witnesses, absolved personnel of blame and said there was no evidence that sabotage caused the submarine to go down in 8,400 feet of water off the New England coast on April 10. It carried 129 Navy and civilian men to death.

Civil Rights Hearings Slated

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., of the House Judiciary Committee said Thursday Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy will be the lead-off witness in hearings his group will start next week on President Kennedy's civil rights legislation.

He said testimony also will be taken from Secretary of Labor W. Williard Wirtz and Secretary of Welfare Anthony J. Celebrezze.

Simultaneously with Celler's announcement, key members of the House Education and Labor Committee reported agreement is near on a fair employment practices bill to help open job opportunities for Negroes.

CAB Turns Down Air Line Merger

WASHINGTON (AP) — A proposal to merge American and Eastern Air Lines into one giant system was tentatively rejected Thursday by a 3-2 vote of the Civil Aeronautics Board.

The decision applies to the domestic phase of the case. No announcement was made with respect to the overseas and foreign aspects of the proposed merger, which are subject to presidential approval.

Kennedy Hails Hot Line Pact

GENEVA (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union Thursday signed an agreement setting up a hot line circuit to keep constant contact between Moscow and Washington and help prevent an accidental war.

President Kennedy hailed the accord as a move toward arms control and said the line was "a first step to help reduce the risk of war occurring by accident or miscalculation."

"This age of fast moving events requires quick, dependable communication in time of emergency," Kennedy said in a statement issued at Charleston, W.Va., where he attended a sate centennial celebration.

Congress Gets Training Plan

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy sent congress Thursday his $400-million plan to train and develop skilled manpower and expand employment opportunities for youth—a key followup to the civil rights program he unveiled Wednesday.

Three bills to implement them were sent to Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson and House Speaker John W. McCormack, D-Mass., along with explanatory letters from Kennedy, Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz and Secretary of Welfare Anthony Celebrezze.

The manpower bill would expand a program authorized in 1962. Wirtz put the cost at $100 million for the next fiscal year.

Alabama Guard Reduced To 300

WASHINGTON (AP) — Only about 300 Alabama National Guardsmen will be kept in active federal service after Monday as peacekeepers in the University of Alabama racial integration situation, the Army announced Thursday.

Of the 17,000 federalized June 11 after Gov. George C. Wallace moved to bar two Negro students from admission to the university, 13,000 were released from duty last weekend. The Army said about 3,100 more will be freed next Sunday and Monday.

Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP)—Jitters over news of a landing in Cuba by revolutionaries upset the stock market temporarily Thursday but prices steadied and ended the session not much worse than mixed. Trading was heavy.

The Dow Jones industrial average was off .99 at 718.85.

Volume was 4.99 million shares compared with 3.98 million on Wednesday.

Negotiators Okay New Steel Contract

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Negotiators reached accord Thursday on a historic steel-labor agreement.

It was the first contract settlement ever achieved in the basic steel industry without a strike or fixed strike deadline.

The unprecedented agreemente insures stoeeel labor peace into 1965.

This forestalls any national steel strife during next year's presidential election campaign.

Officials of the United Steelworkers and industry jointly announced the 21-month agreement at a news conference.

Its chief feature is an extended vacation plan to ease steelworkers unemployment.

The agreement, affecting some 400,000 basic steelworkers, was announced shortly after the union's 164-man International Wage Policy Committee approved it at a three-hour session.

Coming after more than 5½ months of informal talks, as opposed to formal collective bargaining, the settlement marks a new era in steel industry labor relations — often marred in the past by bitter strife.

Since May 1, the USW has been free, under the current two-year contract, to give notice it was reopening the pact. This would have set in motion formal collective bargaining machinery — under an automatic 90-day strike deadline.

This was not done. Instead, starting last January, a joint labor-management team called the Human Relations Committee went to work and finished with an agreement.

R. Conrad Cooper, U.S. Steel Corp. executive vice president and cochairman of the Human Relations Committee with David J. McDonald, Steelworkers president, had this comment:

"The Human Relations Committee has enabled the parties to discuss the issues calmly and reasonably without the pressure of any fixed deadline. At this time in the history of collective bargaining, this is a significant development."

McDonald said, "We firmly believe the Human Relations Committee has done a magnificant job. Some said it couldn't be done; but we did it."

Designed primarily to improve job opportunities and security, the agreement becomes effective Aug. 1 and runs at least until May 1, 1965.

Benefits Listed

Principle benefits under the agreement include:

1. Extended vacations, under which 50 per cent of the basic USW in each company having the longest service would be entitled to a 13-week vacation once every five years. This is in addition to the employe's regular vacation coming due that year.

2. Improved insurance benefits, lengthening the maximum duration of hospitalization payments from the present 120-days to a full year, plus several other changes.

3. A so-called experimental agreement covering four contract issues, long under study by both sides. These include employment of outside contractors to perform maintenance work inside plants, and the use of supervisors to do jobs normally done by USW members.

The 10-man Human Relations Committee was set up by the union and industry following a record 116-day strike in 1959.

Committee members represent the union and the 11 top steel producing companies of the nation.

The committee's influence was felt last year when agreement was reached on the present two-year contract three months before the date that the old contract was to expire. This was the first time since 1954 that a new contract agreement was reached without a strike.

British House Censures Profumo

LONDON (AP)—The House of Commons heaped on John A. Profumo a scathing public punishment Thursday for lying about his love life with Christine Keeler—conviction of grave contempt.

She herself was under extra guard after anonymous tipsters said her life was in danger. The party girl was told she could leave her West End apartment only under detective escort, and must stay clear of anyone carrying a coat or other clothing that could conceal a gun or knife.

Conservatives and Laborite members of Parliament, far apart on many issues of the sex and security scandal swirling around the former war minister, joined in washing their hands of him.

They adopted without dissent and without a recorded roll call a Conservative motion holding the 48-year-old Profumo in contempt for lying to them on the floor of the House last March 22 about his relations with Miss Keeler, 22.

Political Oblivion

In theory he could have been committed to prison for the duration of the current Parliament to purge his contempt. But the House was content with dooming him to political oblivion.

Profumo had denied reports he was mixed up in 1961 with Miss Keeler, who also was having an affair with Soviet naval attache Eugene Ivanov. The House accepted his word.

Profumo held to this version for six weeks, then admitted he had lied and resigned from the House and his Cabinet office.

While the House dealt its weapon of disgrace, Profumo was interviewed by Scotland Yard.

Police now are preparing a case against Dr. Stephen Ward, an osteopath who used a villa on the grounds of Lord Astor's famed Cliveden estate, and an apartment in fashionable West End, to receive Profumo, Miss Keeler, Ivanov and others at parties. He introduced Profumo to Miss Keeler.

The charge against Ward is earning income off prostitutes. The police said there would be additional charges. Miss Keeler is being guarded by Scotland Yard because she will testify at Ward's trial.

Against this background the atmosphere in the House was solemn.

Iain McLeod, floor leader for Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, moved the resolution against Profumo.

It said "that Mr. John Profumo in making a personal statement to this House on March 22, 1963, which contained words which he later admitted not to be true, was guilty of a grave contempt of this House."

Four Ballots Taken

Vatican Conclave Fails To Agree On New Pope

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Eighty Roman Catholic cardinals balloted four times Thursday but failed to elect a new Pope. Black smoke curling from the Sistine Chapel chimney told the world the conclave of the princes of the Church must go on.

A crowd estimated at 25,000 in St. Peter's Square, including nuns moving their lips in prayer, were disappointed by the failure to elect a successor to Pope John XXIII.

Twice during the first day of the conclave excitement mounted as it appeared that a decision might have been reached.

At the end of the morning session the first wisps of smoke seemed at first glance to be thin and almost white—the signal that a new Pope had been chosen.

"Bianche!" — "White!" shouted some in the crowd in the square. But within moments the smoke turned black.

Then came the cries of "Nero!" —"black!"

After the day's voting ended the Vatican radio said perhaps only one ballot had been taken at the afternoon session, and commented "this would be very important."

One ballot would have meant that the election had occurred, making a second afternoon ballot unnecessary. But black smoke from the chimney signaled another failure.

Now the cardinals must remain locked in the Vatican conclave area for at least a second night. They can leave only when they have finished their task and selected a successor to Pope John, who died June 3.

Many women went quietly into the grotto beneath St. Peter's Basilica and prayed at Pope John's tomb.

Election arrangement called for the cardinals — isolated from the outside world — to take two ballots in the morning and two in the afternoon.

The smoke puffs out of a little chimney that looks something like the one on an American railroad caboose. It leads up from a stove in the Sistine Chapel.

The smoke is produced by burning ballots mixed with a substance to change the color.

Ancient System

The whole arrangement constitutes one of the world's most archaic and uncertain signaling arrangements. But the chimney and smoke are important stage properties in the moving drama of a papal election.

In the recent past it has usually taken three or more days to name a Pope. The exception was the 1939 election of Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli who became Pope Pius XII when elected on the third ballot.

Only 76 cardinals occupied their thrones in the Sistine Chapel for the first day of balloting. Four others, confined to bed, balloted from their cells.

Race Demonstration Truce Turned Down

By The Associated Press

President Kennedy's request for a truce in anti-segregation demonstrations throughout the country has been turned down by major figures in the Negro battle for equal righs. But some Negroes have found merit in the suggestion.

The President, pleading for racial peace, cautioned against racial demonstrations "which can lead to violence."

The concensus of organizations spearheading the drive was that in nearly 2½ centuries Negroes had accomplished little toward equality by being passive.

James Farmer, national director of the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE), asserted, "We do not intend to call off demonstrations."

Roy Wilkins, executive secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said demonstrations are part of the American tradition of freedom to protest.

Guichard Parris, public relations director of the Urban League, said in New York that Kennedy's request was less than reasonable.

Parris, whose league is an interracial movement to improve race relations and better the lot of Negroes and other minorities, added: "I don't believe a so-called armistice on demonstrations is a reasonable request. . ."

In Boston, the Rev. James P. Bredan, one of the leaders of Tuesday's boycott of Boston public schools by Negro pupils, said a truce might be possible if an adequate substitute was found for the demonstrations.

In Little Rock, I. S. McClinton, president of the Arkansas Democratic (Negro) Voters Association, said that "if the people of all communities can sit down with leaders of the colored race and negotiate in good faith, most problems can be solved." He said he personally was opposed to demonstrations.

In a related development, the North Carolina State NAACP answered Gov. Terry Sanford's appeal for racial peace and called for an end to the anti-segregation protests that have swept the state.

Kelly Alexander of Charlotte, president of the State Conference of the NAACP, said he was preparing a message to send to the 96 NAACP branches in the state.

The message, Alexander said, will appeal for an end to protests "until we have an opportunity to sit down with the governor and discuss the matter in detail."

Infiltrators Merge With Underground

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The Cuban Revolutionary Council said Thursday it sneaked commando forces into Cuba to launch an operation that "definitely" would liberate the island from Communist rule.

For several days, the council said, "perfectly armed" fighters have been landing in small groups, at several points, and merging with the underground. It added that they received a cheerful welcome, and help from farmers in the landing areas.

First reports indicated that invaders had stormed the beaches, and the news caught Washington by surprise. A spokesman said the State Department knew of no large scale invasion, and would known of one if one had occurred. White House Pess Secretary Pierre Salinger said he had no comment on the council's announcement.

Later, the council's coordinator, Manuel Antonio de Varona, clarified that it was an infiltration movement.

In close-mouthed fashion unusual among Cubans, council members refused to say where the commandos started, where they landed, how many were involved and if more were on the way. Other exile sources estimated that 500 men had gone ashore so far.

Just two months ago, the council was badly split when its first president, Jose Miro Cardona, walked out to dramatize his dispute with President Kennedy over steps that should be taken to overthrow Castro. Six of the 12 organizations comprising the council quit in sympathy with its leader.

Miro Cardona charged that Kennedy had promised a second invasion of Cuba, but backed down. Instead, he said, Kennedy clamped down on exile raids and gave Castro "immunity to carry out Khrushchev's sinister designs." The administration denied that any such promise was ever made.

The council originally was formed, with United States help, for the purpose of launching the ill-fated Bay of Pigs invasion April 17, 1961.

Well-Armed

Varona said the infiltrators were well armed with modern weapons and also carried guns and ammunition to increase the firepower of rebel groups operating in Cuba.

The news of the landings sent a wave of excitement pulsing through Miami's huge colony of some 100,000 Cuban exiles. Some sources speculated that the landings were made in the Escambray Mountains of Las Villas Province, in the central part of the island west of Havana.

President's Trip Poses Problems

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy faces some tough problems in personal diplomacy on his visit to Europe in the next two weeks, and a setback in his timetable for creating a multination nuclear missile navy appears inevitable.

But administration officials said Thursday it would have been a major diplomatic error to cancel the long-planned trip to Germany England and Italy either because of the civil rights crisis at home or the political turmoil in Allied Europe.

These officials said the turmoil is largely due to the fact that Western Europe is in a transition period. In their view this makes the President's trip all the more important.

The major challenge, though it has been obscured by more recent events, is the European policy advocated by French President Charles de Gaulle calling, in effect, for a Western Europe dominated by France and increasingly independent of ties with the United States. It is highly significant that Kennedy's trip swings around France without including it. Associates say the reason is simply that de Gaulle did not invite him to Paris.

The truth is, as both U.S. and French officials concede, that the two men have little to talk about where their differences over the future of Europe and the Atlantic world are concerned. Their common commitment to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization is not, for the moment, in dispute and therefore does not need discussion.

Administration officials denied that the President's trip, beginning Saturday night, is in any way "encircling" De Gaulle. The French leader, however, is the champion of a plan for the political future of Europe which runs contrary to Kennedy's policy of increasing unity between Europe and the United States.

The two leaders are rivals in a great debate over the future of the West and much of the significance of Kennedy's visit to France's Allied neighbors in June is derived from the fact that in January De Gaulle rejected the U.S. concept of growing unity in the Atlantic alliance and drove home his point by vetoing Britain's U.S.-supported bid for membership in the European Common Market.

The more recent events which have stolen the spotlight from the policy rivalry between Kennedy and De Gaulle were directly responsible for demands raised here in recent weeks that the President should cancel his European visit or, at least postpone it. These events included the political crisis in Italy which reduced the government of Premier Amintore Fanfani to caretaker status last month, the death of Pope John XXIII, the Profumo scandal which has perhaps fatally shaken the Conservative government of Harold Macmillan in England, and the coming retirement of Chancellor Konrad Adenauer from control of the West German government.

LONDON (AP)—The House of Commons heaped on John A. Profumo a scathing public punishment Thursday for lying about his love life with Christine Keeler—conviction of grave contempt.

She herself was under extra guard after anonymous tipsters said her life was in danger. The party girl was told she could leave her West End apartment only under detective escort, and must stay clear of anyone carrying a coat or other clothing that could conceal a gun or knife.

Conservatives and Laborite members of Parliament, far apart on many issues of the sex and security scandal swirling around the former war minister, joined in washing their hands of him.

They adopted without dissent and without a recorded roll call a Conservative motion holding the 48-year-old Profumo in contempt for lying to them on the floor of the House last March 22 about his relations with Miss Keeler, 22.

Political Oblivion

In theory he could have been committed to prison for the duration of the current Parliament to purge his contempt. But the House was content with dooming him to political oblivion.

Profumo had denied reports he was mixed up in 1961 with Miss Keeler, who also was having an affair with Soviet naval attache Eugene Ivanov. The House accepted his word.

Profumo held to this version for six weeks, then admitted he had lied and resigned from the House and his Cabinet office.

While the House dealt its weapon of disgrace, Profumo was interviewed by Scotland Yard.

Police now are preparing a case against Dr. Stephen Ward, an osteopath who used a villa on the grounds of Lord Astor's famed Cliveden estate, and an apartment in fashionable West End, to receive Profumo, Miss Keeler, Ivanov and others at parties. He introduced Profumo to Miss Keeler.

The charge against Ward is earning income off prostitutes. The police said there would be additional charges. Miss Keeler is being guarded by Scotland Yard because she will testify at Ward's trial.

Against this background the atmosphere in the House was solemn.

Iain McLeod, floor leader for Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, moved the resolution against Profumo.

It said "that Mr. John Profumo in making a personal statement to this House on March 22, 1963, which contained words which he later admitted not to be true, was guilty of a grave contempt of this House."

SEPARATED SIAMESE TWINS — Two nurses keep close watch on Rose Mary and Ruth Ann Temoshenko, the 13-day-old Siamese twins who were separated in a four-hour operation at Pittsburgh. The girls were joined at the chest and abdomen and it took two teams of doctors to separate them. A spokesman for Children's Hospital in Pittsburgh reports the operation was a success, and the infants are listed in satisfactory condition.

Four Ballots Taken

Vatican Conclave Fails To Agree On New Pope

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Eighty Roman Catholic cardinals balloted four times Thursday but failed to elect a new Pope. Black smoke curling from the Sistine Chapel chimney told the world the conclave of the princes of the Church must go on.

A crowd estimated at 25,000 in St. Peter's Square, including nuns moving their lips in prayer, were disappointed by the failure to elect a successor to Pope John XXIII.

Twice during the first day of the conclave excitement mounted as it appeared that a decision might have been reached.

At the end of the morning session the first wisps of smoke seemed at first glance to be thin and almost white—the signal that a new Pope had been chosen.

"Bianco!" — "White!" shouted some in the crowd in the square. But within moments the smoke turned black.

Then came the cries of "Nero!" —"black!"

After the day's voting ended the Vatican radio said perhaps only one ballot had been taken at the afternoon session, and commented "this would be very important."

One ballot would have meant that the election had occurred, making a second afternoon ballot unnecessary. But black smoke from the chimney signaled another failure.

Now the cardinals must remain locked in the Vatican conclave area for at least a second night. They can leave only when they have finished their task and selected a successor to Pope John, who died June 3.

Many women went quietly into the grotto beneath St. Peter's Basilica and prayed at Pope John's tomb.

Election arrangement called for the cardinals — isolated from the outside world — to take two ballots in the morning and two in the afternoon.

The smoke puffs out of a little chimney that looks something like the one on an American railroad caboose. It leads up from a stove in the Sistine Chapel.

The smoke is produced by burning ballots mixed with a substance to change the color.

Ancient System

The whole arrangement constitutes one of the world's most archaic and uncertain signaling arrangements. But the chimney and smoke are important stage properties in the moving drama of a papal election.

In the recent past it has usually taken three or more days to name a Pope. The exception was the 1958 election of Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli who became Pope Pius XII when elected on the third ballot.

Only 76 cardinals occupied their thrones in the Sistine Chapel for the first day of balloting. Four others, confined to bed, balloted from their cells.

Race Demonstration Truce Turned Down

By The Associated Press

President Kennedy's request for a truce in anti-segregation demonstrations throughout the country has been turned down by major figures in the Negro battle for equal righs. But some Negroes have found merit in the suggestion.

The President, pleading for racial peace, cautioned against racial demonstrations "which can lead to violence."

The concensus of organizations spearheading the drive was that in nearly 2½ centuries Negroes had accomplished little toward equality by being passive.

James Farmer, national director of the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE), asserted, "We do not intend to call off demonstrations."

Roy Wilkins, executive secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said demonstrations are part of the American tradition of freedom to protest.

Guichard Parris, public relations director of the Urban League, said in New York that Kennedy's request was less than reasonable.

Parris, whose league is an interracial movement to improve race relations and better the lot of Negroes and other minorities, added:

"I don't believe a so-called armistice on demonstrations is a reasonable request..."

In Boston, the Rev. James P. Bredan, one of the leaders of Tuesday's boycott of Boston public schools by Negro pupils, said a truce might be possible if an adequate substitute was found for the demonstrations.

In Little Rock, I. S. McClinton, president of the Arkansas Democratic (Negro) Voters Association, said that "if the people of all communities can sit down with leaders of the colored race and negotiate in good faith, most problems can be solved." He said he personally was opposed to demonstrations.

In a related development, the North Carolina State NAACP answered Gov. Terry Sanford's appeal for racial peace and called for an end to the anti-segregation protests that have swept the state.

Kelly Alexander of Charlotte, president of the State Conference of the NAACP, said he was preparing a message to send to the 96 NAACP branches in the state.

The message, Alexander said, will appeal for an end to protests "until we have an opportunity to sit down with the governor and discuss the matter in detail."

Infiltrators Merge With Underground

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The Cuban Revolutionary Council said Thursday it sneaked commando forces into Cuba to launch an operation that "definitely" would liberate the island from Communist rule.

For several days, the council said, "perfectly armed" fighters have been landing in small groups, at several points, and merging with the underground. It added that they received a cheerful welcome, and help from farmers in the landing areas.

First reports indicated that invaders had stormed the beaches, and the news caught Washington by surprise. A spokesman said the State Department knew of no large scale invasion, and would known of one if one had occurred. White House Pess Secretary Pierre Salinger said he had no comment on the council's announcement.

Later, the council's coordinator, Manuel Antonio de Varona, clarified that it was an infiltration movement.

In close-mouthed fashion unusual among Cubans, council members refused to say where the commandos started, where they landed, how many were involved and if more were on the way. Other exile sources estimated that 500 men had gone ashore so far.

Just two months ago, the council was badly split when its first president, Jose Miro Cardona, walked out to dramatize his dispute with President Kennedy over steps that should be taken to overthrow Castro. Six of the 12 organizations comprising the council quit in sympathy with its leader.

Miro Cardona charged that Kennedy had promised a second invasion of Cuba, but backed down. Instead, he said, Kennedy clamped down on exile raids and gave Castro "immunity to carry out Khrushchev's sinister designs." The administration denied that any such promise was ever made.

The council originally was formed, with United States help, for the purpose of launching the ill-fated Bay of Pigs invasion April 17, 1961.

Well Armed

Varona said the infiltrators were well armed with modern weapons and also carried guns and ammunition to increase the firepower of rebel groups operating in Cuba.

The news of the landings sent a wave of excitement pulsing through Miami's huge colony of some 100,000 Cuban exiles. Some sources speculated that the landings were made in the Escambray Mountains of Las Villas Province, in the central part of the island west of Havana.

President's Trip Poses Problems

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy faces some tough problems in personal diplomacy on his visit to Europe in the next two weeks, and a setback in his timetable for creating a multination nuclear missile navy appears inevitable.

But administration officials said Thursday it would have been a major diplomatic error to cancel the long-planned trip to Germany England and Italy either because of the civil rights crisis at home or the political turmoil in Allied Europe.

These officials said the turmoil iis largely due to the fact that Western Europe is in a transition period. In their view this makes the President's trip all the more important.

The major challenge, though it has been obscurd by more recent events, is the European policy advocated by French President Charles de Gaulle calling, in effect, for a Western Europe dominated by France and increasingly independent of ties with the United States. It is highly significant that Kennedy's trip swings around France without including it. Associates say the reason is simply that de Gaulle did not invite him to Paris.

The truth is, as both U.S. and French officials concede, that the two men have little to talk about where their differences over the future of Europe and the Atlantic world are concerned. Their common commitment to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization is not, for the moment, in dispute and therefore does not need discussion.

Administration officials denied that the President's trip, beginning Saturday night, is in any way "encircling" De Gaulle. The French leader, however, is the champion of a plan for the political future of Europe which runs contrary to Kennedy's policy of increasing unity between Europe and the United States.

The two leaders are rivals in a great debate over the future of the West and much of the significance of Kennedy's visit to France's Allied neighbors in June is derived from the fact that in January De Gaulle rejected the U.S. concept of growing unity in the Atlantic alliance and drove home his point by vetoing Britain's U.S.-supported bid for membership in the European Common Market.

The more recent events which have stolen the spotlight from the policy rivalry between Kennedy and De Gaulle were directly responsible for demands raised here in recent weeks that the President should cancel his European visit or at least postpone it. These events included the political crisis in Italy which reduced the government of Premier Amintore Fanfani to caretaker status last month, the death of Pope John XXIII, the Profumo scandal which has perhaps fatally shaken the Conservative government of Harold Macmillan in England, and the coming retirement of Chancellor Konrad Adenauer from control of the West German government.

Water Board Welcomes Probe

HARRISBURG (AP)—Dr. C. L. Wilbar Jr., state health secretary and chairman of the Sanitary Water Board, said Wednesday the board would welcome an investigation of its record of controlling acid mine drainage.

Wilbar's comments came in the wake of a House resolution calling for the naming of a seven-member, bipartisan committee to probe the board's handling of strip mine operations.

The resolution, citing recent tours of strip mining areas in Butler and Venango counties, accused the board of being lax in enforcing the clean streams act of 1937.

Reps. Charles J. Mills, D-Westmoreland; Richard J. Green Jr., R-Cambria; John F. Laudadio Sr., D-Westmoreland, and Albert L. McCandless, R-Butler introduced the resolution.

"All records of the board and all files would be open to any such investigatory committee as may be formed," Wilbar said in statement. "We will be happy to answer any questions and provide any information desired."

"Pennsylvania has often been cited as having one of the most effective and efficient water pollution control agencies in the nation," he said.

Highway Interchanges Protection Bill

HARRISBURG — A bill designed to protect interstate highway interchanges has been introduced in the State Senate.

It was introduced by State Sen. Zehnder H. Confair of Lycoming County, a Republican who is president of the Keystone Shortway Assn.

Co-sponsors include Republican Sens. Rowland B. Mahany of Mercer County; Daniel A. Bailey of Center County; Harold E. Flack of Luzerne; Richard C. Frame of Venango; Walter E. Morris of Jefferson; William Z. Scott of Carbon; Paul L. Wagner of Schuylkill and D. Emmert Brumbaugh of Blair and Democratic Sen. Lyle G. Hall of Elk County.

The bill would establish a State Interstate Protection Commission, which will adopt and administer an interstate interchange ordinance if local municipalities and counties fail to do so within a year of announcement of interchange sites.

It provides that a locality may adopt an ordinance which would apply only to the interchange protection area, or modify or amend an existing local zoning ordinance to provide for interchange protection.

Vast Control

The ordinance would control use of land, size, height, bulk, location, erection, construction, reconstruction, maintenance, repair, alteration, razing, removal and use of structures in an area not less than one mile nor more than three miles from the center of the interchange.

The act provides that each local ordinance shall establish set-back lines on both sides of the free highways coming into the interchange.

Municipalities must hold public hearings before voting on an ordinance and it must be approved first by a local planning commission, if one exists. Amendments to ordinances will also require a public hearing.

The ordinances would be enforced by appointment of an enforcement officer who will issue permits and administer the ordinance. Appeals from the enforcement officer would be taken to a locally-appointed Interchange Protection Hearing Board.

The act provides that where an interchange lies within more than one community, the communities involved can agree to adopt an ordinance in each community affected by the interchange. If the communities do not agree, the county can enact its own ordinance.

If the interchange lies in more than one county and the communities involved have not adopted their own ordinances, then the counties concerned may adopt an ordinance which they have agreed upon.

County Can Adopt

A county can adopt an interchange protection ordinance only if the community has not had its own ordinance in effect. As soon as a community adopts and enforces its own ordinance, the county ordinance is no longer operative.

Communities adopting an ordinance shall create an Interchange Protection Hearing Board, consisting of three residents of the community, appointed by the governing body. An existing local zoning board of adjustment could be so designated.

The act creates a State Interchange Protection Commission consisting of the Secretaries of Health, Commerce, Forests and Waters, Agriculture and Internal Affairs, the executive director of the State Planning Board and six citizens by the governor with consent of the state senate.

The commission may regulate by order an interchange under the same powers the community has, but its authority does not become effective until one year after the establishment of an interchange and where no local ordinance has been adopted in that year.

A commission order or ordinance cannot supersede a local ordinance and the commission ordinance is suspended for so long as the local ordinance continues to be enforced.

Public Hearings

The commission must hold public hearings and conform to other requirements imposed on the communities and counties which are applicable.

All departments represented on the commission are instructed to cooperate with and assist communities in carrying out provisions of the act.

The Highways Dept. is directed to provide the local government or community with a map of the interchange, its center and the maximum interchange area—a circle with a three-mile radius.

The Dept. of Commerce must prepare maps, manuals and otherwise provide technical assistance to communities.

U. S. Needs Lift Abroad

MADRID, Spain (AP)—Richard M. Nixon said Wednesday the United States "badly needs a lift abroad in understanding and appreciation of its foreign policies and possibly President Kennedy's visit will provide it."

The former vice president told a news conference his visits to Portugal and Spain during a European tour and his conversations with Americans abroad indicated widespread criticism of American policies, especially those on Cuba and Latin America.

Highway Interchanges Protection Bill

HARRISBURG — A bill designed to protect interstate highway interchanges has been introduced in the State Senate.

It was introduced by State Sen. Zehnder H. Confair of Lycoming County, a Republican who is president of the Keystone Shortway Assn.

Co-sponsors include Republican Sens. Rowland B. Mahany of Mercer County; Daniel A. Bailey of Center County; Harold E. Flack of Luzerne; Richard C. Frame of Venango; Walter E. Morris of Jefferson; William Z. Scott of Carbon; Paul L. Wagner of Schuylkill and D. Emmert Brumbaugh of Blair and Democratic Sen. Lyle G. Hall of Elk County.

The bill would establish a State Interstate Protection Commission, which will adopt and administer an interstate interchange ordinance if local municipalities and counties fail to do so within a year of announcement of interchange sites.

It provides that a locality may adopt an ordinance which would apply only to the interchange protection area, or modify or amend an existing local zoning ordinance to provide for interchange protection.

Vast Control

The ordinance would control use of land, size, height, bulk, location, erection, construction, reconstruction, maintenance, repair, alteration, razing, removal and use of structures in an area not less than one mile nor more than three miles from the center of the interchange.

The act provides that each local ordinance shall establish set-back lines on both sides of the free highways coming into the interchange.

Municipalities must hold public hearings before voting on an ordinance and it must be approved first by a local planning commission, if one exists. Amendments to ordinances will also require a public hearing.

The ordinances would be enforced by appointment of an enforcement officer who will issue permits and administer the ordinance. Appeals from the enforcement officer would be taken to a locally-appointed Interchange Protection Hearing Board.

The act provides that where an interchange lies within more than one community, the communities involved can agree to adopt an ordinance in each community affected by the interchange. If the communities do not agree, the county can enact its own ordinance.

If the interchange lies in more than one county and the communities involved have not adopted their own ordinances, then the counties concerned may adopt an ordinance which they have agreed upon.

County Can Adopt

A county can adopt an interchange protection ordinance only if the community has not had its own ordinance in effect. As soon as a community adopts and enforces its own ordinance, the county ordinance is no longer operative.

Communities adopting an ordinance shall create an Interchange Protection Hearing Board, consisting of three residents of the community, appointed by the governing body. An existing local zoning board of adjustment could be so designated.

The act creates a State Interchange Protection Commission consisting of the Secretaries of Health, Commerce, Forests and Waters, Agriculture and Internal Affairs, the executive director of the State Planning Board and six citizens by the governor with consent of the state senate.

The commission may regulate by order an interchange under the same powers the community has, but its authority does not become effective until one year after the establishment of an interchange and where no local ordinance has been adopted in that year.

A commission order or ordinance cannot supersede a local ordinance and the commission ordinance is suspended for so long as the local ordinance continues to be enforced.

Public Hearings

The commission must hold public hearings and conform to other requirements imposed on the communities and counties which are applicable.

All departments represented on the commission are instructed to cooperate with and assist communities in carrying out provisions of the act.

The Highways Dept. is directed to provide the local government or community with a map of the interchange, its center and the maximum interchange area—a circle with a three-mile radius.

The Dept. of Commerce must prepare maps, manuals and otherwise provide technical assistance to communities.

Independent Joins Bartlett, Rooney In 15th District Race

HARRISBURG — The State Elections Bureau yesterday rejected the petition of John J. Piparato, former commander of the 20th District of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, who had sought to run as an independent for the seat of the late U.S. Rep. Francis E. Walter.

Albert Erbman, deputy secretary of the commonwealth, rejected Piparato's petition only a short time after he presented it to the bureau.

Eberman said the petition was not properly filled in with the name of his party or the committee of supporters until after he started circulating it.

Piparato filed as the candidate of the independent liberals. He is a registered Republican.

Piparato's disqualification left three candidates in the race, all from Bethlehem.

They are State Sen. Fred B. Rooney, Democrat, and Robert G. Bartlett, Republican, the party choices and William C. Rybak, Democrat and an attorney, who filed to run as an independent. He used the party designation of "representative" on his petition, signed by more than 1,750 persons.

Candidates have until Monday afternoon to withdraw their petitions and have their names removed from the July 30 special election which was designated by Gov. William W. Scranton.

The special election was called by Gov. William W. Scranton to name a congressman for the unexpired term of the late Rep. Francis E. Walter, a Democrat from Easton, who died on May 31. The term runs to January 1965.

The district includes Monroe, Pike, Carbon and Northampton Counties. There are 88,350 registered Democrats in the district and 51,693 registered Republicans.

Rooney, a bachelor, pledged a hard and vigorous campaign, but conceded he will not be able to give it full time due to his senatorial duties. Senate is expected to be in session at least until July 31, the day after the special election.

He said he would rely heavily on the issue of legislative experience in his campaigning.

Rooney is 37 years old and will stress his activeness as a senator since 1958, while Bartlett lacks governmental experience and is making his first try for public office.

Hopes Scranton Stomps

Bartlett, while in Harrisburg to file his petition, paid a visit to Gov. Scranton. After the meeting he told newsmen that he had not asked Scranton to campaign for him but would consider it a "great honor" if the governor spoke in his support.

He is a 1953 graduate of West Point. He resigned his commission to enable him to spend more time with his family. He is married and the father of five children.

Bartlett added that he strongly favored an individual tax cut and that it is essential in all brackets "top to bottom" as well as a reduction in corporate taxes.

He is employed by Bethlehem Steel Co. in Bethlehem as a personnel administrator.

Bangor Sewer Rates To Be Cut

BANGOR—Refinancing of the bonds for the Bangor sewer system will result in a reduction from $57 to $50 in the yearly sewer rental and an over-all saving of approximately $589,858 to taxpayers over the 40-year life of the bond issue.

Bangor Borough Council and Bangor Sewer Authority, meeting separately and jointly, Wednesday night took the initial steps necessary to refinance the bonds.

They will be refinanced as of Aug. 1 with a carryover interest rate of 3.85.

$2,108,000 To Be Refinanced

The amount to be refinanced will be $2,108,000 with the initial interest rate as of Aug. 1 set at 2.84. The issue will mature by 2003 if it runs the full length of time but advisers told council and the authority they expect the indebtedness to be liquidated in 30 to 32 years.

The old interest rate on the 1960 issue was set at 4.60 over the 40 years to maturity while the new rate overall is 3.85 over the same number of years.

The refinancing extends the maturity date of the bonds three years over that set up in the first bond issue.

Approval was given to Merchants National Bank of Allentown to serve as trustee for the bonds, replacing the Provident Mutual Bank of Philadelphia.

Petitioners Protest Closing Of Stokes

STROUDSBURG—Petitions protesting the closing of the Stokes Mill area to swimmers and fishermen are expected to be presented to the Stroudsburg Municipal Authority at its regular meeting at 7:30 p. m. Monday.

Dr. William E. Brinker, of 1822 N. Fifth St., Stroud Township, said last night he and other interested persons hope to have 500 signatures on the petitions by meeting time.

Dr. Brinker is one of the leaders of the protesting group, which he says contains "many interested people—it is not a one-man enterprise."

Dr. Brinker, a chiropractor, said he contacted Mayor Joseph H. Small of Stroudsburg and that he is "sympathetic" to the drive for signatures.

Dr. Brinker said that it is his understanding that the closing was the result of an insurance company spokesman telling the authority that it must close the area to the public or the company would step out as an insurer of the area.

"I feel they should have got another insurance company," Dr. Brinker said. "An out-of-state insurance man who doesn't know Stokes Mill or the area comes in here and tells the authority what to do."

The text of the petitions being circulated:

"We, the undersigned property owners of Stroudsburg and Stroud Township, wish to register our protest to the Stroudsburg Water Authority concerning the closing of the Stokes Mill area to the public for purposes of swimming and fishing.

"This area has long been cherished by all people of Monroe County, neighboring counties and tourists.

"Our county is noted for its natural God-given beauty and we do vehemently protest this unwarranted closure and request that immediate steps be taken to reopen the land and waters to the public."

Bicycle Riders Warned

STROUDSBURG — Police Chief John B. Tretheway yesterday warned bicycle riders that they must obey the same rules as other vehicle operators on borough streets.

Tretheway also warned operators of motor bikes and motor scooters that they will not be permitted to ride their vehicles on or adjacent to the borough playground.

Tretheway said his department has had numerous complaints of bicycles going the wrong way on one-way streets and of more than one person riding a bike.

He said patrolmen will be instructed to enforce regulations forbidding such acts.

Sen. Rooney To Speak To Young Demos

CRESCO — State Sen. Fred B. Rooney of Northampton County will be among the speakers at the June 22 Northeastern Regional conference of Young Democratic Clubs of Pennsylvania at Pocono Mountain Inn here.

John J. Pentz Jr., Stroudsburg attorney and president of the Monroe County Young Democratic Club, which is host for the conference, said he was notified of Rooney's acceptance by officials in Harrisburg and by Rooney's Bethlehem office.

Rooney was named Wednesday as the Democratic nominee for the seat in the U. S. House of Representatives held by the late Francis E. Walter of Easton.

Three of the four counties in the 15th Congressional District, Monroe, Carbon and Pike, are within the 10-county Northeastern Region of the organization.

Pentz said others expected to attend the meeting include Otis B. Morse, Democratic State Chairman; Gilbert Lupp, president of the Young Democratic Clubs of Pennsylvania; State Rep. Van D. Yetter of Marshalls Creek and Judge Richard Conoboy of Lackawanna County Common Pleas Court, who will also speak at the dinner-dance.

Day Changes In Driver Testings

Effective July 1, examinations will be given at the U. S. Naval Reserve Armory at Carleton and Berner Aves., Hazleton, every Tuesday and on the third and fifth Monday of each month.

At the Lehighton State Police barracks, examinations will be given every Friday. This change is also effective July 1.

Examination hours will remain the same, according to the announcement.

New Bangor Joint Schools Head Named

BANGOR — Dr. S. William Ricker, principal of Reynolds Junior High School in Lancaster, was named superintendent of the Bangor Area Joint School System at a meeting of the joint board Wednesday night.

He will fill the unexpired term of Donald B. Keat, who retired after serving the Bangor district as teacher, high school principal and superintendent for more than 30 years.

Ricker, who will begin his duties on July 1, will receive $13,500 a year, or about $1,500 more than Keat received prior to retirement.

Ricker was born in Chadwick, N. Y., and was graduated from Easton High School in 1939. He attended East Stroudsburg State College for two years and then was employed by Bethlehem Steel Co.

After four years' service with the U. S. Air Force, he reentered East Stroudsburg State and was graduated in 1947. He taught and served as football and basketball coach at Williamsport and received a master's degree from the Pennsylvania State University. He received his doctor's degree from Penn State in 1955 and has been in the Lancaster school system since then.

He is married to the former Miss Mary Jane Miehler of Easton and they have two daughters, Judy, a student at Millersville State College, and Mary Sue, who will enter first grade in September.

Compared To Autobahn

Rt. 80 Has All Makes, Sizes

By REED TREIBLE
Daily Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — Interstate Route 80, known in these parts as the Stroudsburgs Thruway, resembles Germany's famed autobahn in one respect—the volume of foreign-made cars and trucks it handles daily.

There are other similarities between the two highways. Both are four lane concrete divided by a grass medial strip and both run through some of the world's most beautiful scenery.

The autobahn, built before and during World War II, stretches from Stuttgart in southern Germany to Dusseldorf and Dortmund in the northen industrial Ruhr and on to the East German border.

When it is completed, Interstate 80 will stretch from the George Washington Bridge to San Francisco and will provide a toll-free route through the heart of the nation.

These facts concerning the number of cars and their types on Rt. 80 comes from a traffic survey taken on the Brown St. spon overlooking the Stroudsburgs thruway yesterday.

In a random sampling of traffic for one hour, 5.7 percent of the traffic was German made Volkswagens, Opels, and Mercedes-Benz's. These plus the 24.9 percent of heavy truck traffic, give Rt. 80 the flavor of the Autobahn, which is always busy with truck traffic.

Invasion Small

The invasion of "foreign" tourists to the Pocono Mountains is still small. Only 18 percent of the total 353 vehicles were from out of state. Of this 18 percent, 17 cars came into Stroudsburg from Rt. 80.

New cars on Rt. 80 made up 17.5 percent of the traffic, Ford was the tops with more than one-seventh of the total. Chevrolet ran second in percentage.

Another look at the traffic showed 1962 models engulfed 21 percent of the movement, with Chevrolet leading with 20 percent of the total.

The distribution of types for 1963 is unusual, for the "Big Three," Ford, Chevy, and Plymouth were 37.7 percent of the total. The remainder of new cars were primarily General Motors products, with Ford products in only two percent of the total.

A greater number of compacts were in the 1962 distribution. Comet, Falcon, Lark, Tempest, Corvair and Dart made up 25.9 percent of the '62's.

Rambler was 34 percent of the 1961 traffic, with Chevrolet second—17.8 percent. Ford was third with 16.1 percent.

According to the statistics, 52.9 percent of the cars arriving in the area were purchased since 1961. The remaining 48 percent of auto owners had cars older than 1961.

State Officials, Gap Aides Discuss Vista

DELAWARE WATER GAP—Officials of the Delaware Water Gap Council, the Chamber of Commerce, and Rep. Van D. Yetter conferred with three state park officials on the proposed Vista Lookout Post for the Delaware Water Gap yesterday.

Representing the state department of Forests and Waters were Conrad R. Lickell, assistant director of state parks, William C. Forrey, chief of planning state department of parks from Harrisburg, and Karl G. Thomson, regional superintendent for state parks out of Quakertown.

Mayor Arthur Lehr and Russell Schellenberger represented the Delaware Water Gap Boro Council with Layton Osborn, Guyton Kempter, Stephen R. Matos and Harold Croasdale of the Chamber of Commerce. Boro Council President Philip Farber, unable to attend the meeting, met with the officials later in their tour of the area.

The mayor and chamber of representatives met with the state officials at the post office at 10:30 a.m. and drove to the lookout point at Lake Lettini before proceeding to the site of the proposed vista which is located below the second promontory.

The Appalachian Trail, recently cleared by local Explorer Scouts, runs a few feet from the proposed site.

During the survey, state officials requested information on the topography, available water supplies, access road location, and a sketch showing the precise location of the site in relation to the two lakes. State officials said that the detailed information is necessary to prepare a more detailed plan for Joseph Blatt, director of state parks, so that a more detailed plan of action may be drawn.

State officials said upon leaving that the project and the detailed development project will be given highest priority.

One Hurt In 2-Car Accident

REEDERS — One person was injured in a two-car accident on Rt. 715 just outside this village at 3:30 p.m. yesterday.

State Police at Mt. Pocono said a car driven by Kermit L. Miller, 17, of Kunkletown RD 2, failed to negotiate a curve, crossed into the opposite lane, forced a car driven by Mrs. Nita Morris, 32, of Reeders, off the highway, stuck her left rear fender, recrossed the highway and struck a utility pole.

Miller was treated at Monroe County General Hospital for abrasions and a possible fracture of the left shoulder and was released.

Troopers estimated damage at $300 to the Miller car and $150 to Mrs. Morris' vehicle.

Independent Joins Bartlett, Rooney In 15th District Race

HARRISBURG — The State Elections Bureau yesterday rejected the petition of John J. Piparato, former commander of the 20th District of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, who had sought to run as an independent for the seat of the late U.S. Rep. Francis E. Walter.

Albert Erbman, deputy secretary of the commonwealth, rejected Piparato's petition only a short time after he presented it to the bureau.

Eberman said the petition was not properly filled in with the name of his party or the committee of supporters until after he started circulating it.

Piparato filed as the candidate of the independent liberals. He is a registered Republican.

Piparato's disqualification left three candidates in the race, all from Bethlehem.

They are State Sen. Fred B. Rooney, Democrat, and Robert G. Bartlett, Republican, the party choices and William C. Rybak, Democrat and an attorney, who filed to run as an independent. He used the party designation of "representative" on his petition, signed by more than 1,750 persons.

Candidates have until Monday afternoon to withdraw their petitions and have their names removed from the July 30 special election which was designated by Gov. William W. Scranton.

The special election was called by Gov. William W. Scranton to name a congressman for the unexpired term of the late Rep. Francis E. Walter, a Democrat from Easton, who died on May 31. The term runs to January 1965.

The district includes Monroe, Pike, Carbon and Northampton Counties. There are 88,350 registered Democrats in the district and 51,693 registered Republicans.

Rooney, a bachelor, pledged a hard and vigorous campaign, but conceded he will not be able to give it full time due to his senatorial duties. Senate is expected to be in session at least until July 31, the day after the special election.

He said he would rely heavily on the issue of legislative experience in his campaigning.

Rooney is 37 years old and will stress his activeness as a senator since 1958, while Barlett lacks governmental experience and is making his first try for public office.

Hopes Scranton Stumps

Barlett, while in Harrisburg to file his petition, paid a visit to Gov. Scranton. After the meeting he told newsmen that he had not asked Scranton to campaign for him but would consider it a "great honor" if the governor spoke in his support.

He is a 1953 graduate of West Point. He resigned his commission to enable him to spend more time with his family. He is married and the father of five children.

Barlett added that he strongly favored an individual tax cut and that it is essential in all brackets "top to bottom" as well as a reduction in corporate taxes.

He is employed by Bethlehem Steel Co. in Bethlehem as a personnel administrator.

Bangor Sewer Rates To Be Cut

BANGOR—Refinancing of the bonds for the Bangor sewer system will result in a reduction from $37 to $30 in the yearly sewer rental and an over-all saving of approximately $89,858 to taxpayers over the 40-year life of the bond issue.

Bangor Borough Council and Bangor Sewer Authority, meeting separately and jointly, Wednesday night took the initial steps necessary to refinance the bonds.

They will be refinanced as of Aug. 1 with a carryover interest rate of 3.85.

$2,108,000 To Be Refinanced

The amount to be refinanced will be $2,108,000 with the initial interest rate as of Aug. 1 set at 2.85. The issue will mature by 2003 if it runs the full length of time but advisers told council and the authority they expect the indebtedness to be liquidated in 30 to 32 years.

The old interest rate on the 1960 issue was set at 4.60 over the 40 years to maturity while the new rate overall is 3.85 over the same number of years.

The refinancing extends the maturity date of the bonds three years over that set up in the first bond issue.

Approval was given to Merchants National Bank of Allentown to serve as trustee for the bonds, replacing the Provident Mutual Bank of Philadelphia.

Compared To Autobahn

Rt. 80 Has All Makes, Sizes

By REED TREIBLE
Daily Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — Interstate Route 80, known in these parts as the Stroudsburgs Thruway, resembles Germany's famed autobahn in one respect—the volume of foreign-made cars and trucks it handles daily.

There are other similarities between the two highways. Both are four lane concrete divided by a grass medial strip and both run through some of the world's most beautiful scenery.

The autobahn, built before and during World War II, stretches from Stuttgart in southern Germany to Dusseldorf and Dortmund in the northen industrial Ruhr and on to the East German border.

When it is completed, Interstate 80 will stretch from the George Washington Bridge to San Francisco and will provide a toll-free route through the heart of the nation.

These facts concerning the number of cars and their types on Rt. 80 comes from a traffic survey taken on the Brown St. spon overlooking the Stroudsburgs thruway yesterday.

In a random sampling of traffic for one hour, 5.7 percent of the traffic was German made Volkswagens, Opels, and Mercedes-Benz's. These plus the 24.9 percent of heavy truck traffic, give Rt. 80 the flavor of the Autobahn, which is always busy with truck traffic.

Invasion Small

The invasion of "foreign" tourists to the Pocono Mountains is still small. Only 18 percent of the total 353 vehicles were from out of state. Of this 18 percent, 17 cars came into Stroudsburg from Rt. 80.

New cars on Rt. 80 made up 17.5 percent of the traffic, Ford was the tops with more than one-seventh of the total. Chevrolet ran second in percentage.

Another look at the traffic showed 1962 models engulfed 21 percent of the movement, with Chevrolet leading with 20 percent of the total.

The distribution of types for 1963 is unusual, for the "Big Three," Ford, Chevy, and Plymouth were 37.7 percent of the total. The remainder of new cars were primarily General Motors products, with Ford products in only two percent of the total.

A greater number of compacts were in the 1962 distribution. Comet, Falcon, Lark, Tempest, Corvair and Dart made up 25.9 percent of the '62's.

Rambler was 34 percent of the 1961 traffic, with Chevrolet second—17.8 percent. Ford was third with 16.1 percent.

According to the statistics, 52.9 percent of the cars arriving in the area were purchased since 1961. The remaining 48 percent of auto owners had cars older than 1961.

Petitioners Protest Closing Of Stokes

STROUDSBURG—Petitions protesting the closing of the Stokes Mill area to swimmers and fishermen are expected to be presented to the Stroudsburg Municipal Authority at its regular meeting at 7:30 p. m. Monday.

Dr. William E. Brinker, of 1822 N. Fifth St., Stroud Township, said last night he and other interested persons hope to have 500 signatures on the petitions by meeting time.

Dr. Brinker is one of the leaders of the protesting group, which he says contains "many interested people—it is not a one-man enterprise."

Dr. Brinker, a chiropractor, said he contacted Mayor Joseph H. Small of Stroudsburg and that he is "sympathetic" to the drive for signatures.

Dr. Brinker said that it is his understanding that the closing was the result of an insurance company spokesman telling the authority that it must close the area to the public or the company would step out as an insurer of the area.

"I feel they should have got another insurance company," Dr. Brinker said. "An out-of-state insurance man who doesn't know Stokes Mill or the area comes in here and tells the authority what to do."

The text of the petitions being circulated:

"We, the undersigned property owners of Stroudsburg and Stroud Township, wish to register our protest to the Stroudsburg Water Authority concerning the closing of the Stokes Mill area to the public for purposes of swimming and fishing.

"This area has long been cherished by all people of Monroe County, neighboring counties and tourists.

"Our county is noted for its natural God-given beauty and we do vehemently protest this unwarranted closure and request that immediate steps be taken to reopen the land and waters to the public."

State Officials, Gap Aides Discuss Vista

DELAWARE WATER GAP—Officials of the Delaware Water Gap Council, the Chamber of Commerce, and Rep. Van D. Yetter conferred with three state park officials on the proposed Vista Lookout Post for the Delaware Water Gap yesterday.

Representing the state department of Forests and Waters were Conrad R. Lickell, assistant director of state parks, William C. Forrey, chief of planning state department of parks from Harrisburg, and Karl G. Thomson, regional superintendent for state parks out of Quakertown.

Mayor Arthur Lehr and Russell Schellenberger represented the Delaware Water Gap Boro Council with Layton Osborn, Guyton Kempter, Stephen R. Matos and Harold Croasdale of the Chamber of Commerce. Boro Council President Philip Farber, unable to attend the meeting, met with the officials later in their tour of the area.

The mayor and chamber of representatives met with the state officials at the post office at 10:30 a.m. and drove to the lookout point at Lake Lettini before proceeding to the site of the proposed vista which is located below the second promontory.

The Appalachian Trail, recently cleared by local Explorer Scouts, runs a few feet from the proposed site.

During the survey, state officials requested information on the topography, available water supplies, access road location, and a sketch showing the precise location of the site in relation to the two lakes. State officials said that the detailed information is necessary to prepare a more detailed plan for Joseph Blatt, director of state parks, so that a more detailed plan of action may be drawn.

State officials said upon leaving that the project and the detailed development project will be given highest priority.

Bicycle Riders Warned

STROUDSBURG — Police Chief John R. Tretheway yesterday warned bicycle riders that they must obey the same rules as other vehicle operators on borough streets.

Tretheway also warned operators of motor bikes and motor scooters that they will not be permitted to ride their vehicles on or adjacent to the borough playground.

Tretheway said his department has had numerous complaints of bicycles going the wrong way on one-way streets and of more than one person riding a bike.

He said patrolmen will be instructed to enforce regulations forbidding such acts.

Sen. Rooney To Speak To Young Demos

CRESCO — State Sen. Fred B. Rooney of Northampton County will be among the speakers at the June 22 Northeastern Regional conference of Young Democratic Clubs of Pennsylvania at Pocono Mountain Inn here.

John J. Pentz Jr., Stroudsburg attorney and president of the Monroe County Young Democratic Club, which is host for the conference, said he was notified of Rooney's acceptance by officials in Harrisburg and by Rooney's Bethlehem office.

Rooney was named Wednesday as the Democratic nominee for the seat in the U. S. House of Representatives held by the late Francis E. Walter of Easton.

Three of the four counties in the 15th Congressional District, Monroe, Carbon and Pike, are within the 10-county Northeastern Region of the organization.

Pentz said others expected to attend the meeting include Otis B. Morse, Democratic State Chairman; Gilbert Lupp, president of the Young Democratic Clubs of Pennsylvania; State Rep. Van D. Yetter of Marshalls Creek and Judge Richard Conoboy of Lackawanna County Common Pleas Court, who will also speak at the dinner-dance.

BANGOR — Dr. S. William Ricker, principal of Reynolds Junior High School in Lancaster, was named superintendent of the Bangor Area Joint School System at a meeting of the joint board Wednesday night.

He will fill the unexpired term of Donald B. Keat, who retired after serving the Bangor district as teacher, high school principal and superintendent for more than 30 years.

Shortway Pledge

Governor Scranton renewed his pledge Wednesday to have all of the 309-mile Keystone Shortway from Stroudsburg to Sharon, Pa., under construction by 1966 — the year he comes up for re-election.

But he left himself the same escape clause he included in his pre-election pledge last year when he said the shortway (Interstate Rt. 80) would all be under construction by 1966 unless it was delayed by legal difficulties over rights of way and bridges.

The Keystone Shortway Assn. met with the governor to protest reports that engineering studies were being delayed by the state highway department. The governor answered by renewing his pledge of progress.

The fact that the shortway is being built from east to west is of obvious importance to the Poconos and all of Northeastern Pennsylvania. It speeds and invites tourist traffic and will be a major economic boost for this area.

We are glad to hear Owen Beckley, assistant chief highway engineer, say that he hopes to have all of the section from Tannersville to White Deer on the Susquehanna under contract in 1963.

We applaud the state's intention to make use of other major highways already built in the northeastern part of the state by concentrating its first construction drive in this area near the source of tourists in the New York and Philadelphia metropolitan population centers.

But, as the governor said, a completed shortway will not justify its expense if the section of Interstate 80 in New Jersey which links us with New York is not also constructed.

An interstate highway requires interstate cooperation. The Republican governor of Pennsylvania must push the Democratic governor of New Jersey to speed up his section of the highway from the Washington Bridge to Stroudsburg.

We wish him success in that task and trust he will keep his pledge to us to complete the Keystone Shortway.

Bipartisan Revision

The campaign to keep politics out of the debate on proposed revision of the 1874 Pennsylvania Constitution seems to be winning votes from both parties, in Monroe County at least.

Several county Republicans attended a non-partisan speech on the constitutional history of Pennsylvania by Genevieve Blatt, Democratic secretary of internal affairs, recently at the YMCA. It was sponsored by the Monroe County Democratic Club.

This week the Young Republican Club of Monroe County answered the call for a bipartisan effort, saluted county Democrats for their non-political position on the issue, and urged a two-party effort to call a convention to revise the constitution.

Ray Roberts, vice president of the Young GOP Club said, "This is an area of such vital importance to the citizens of our state and county, that a responsible, joint effort by both parties is imperative . . .

"Governor Scranton has promised action. Our challenge is to force and effectuate that action with no regard to political self-interests."

Roberts referred to "the need for revising our horse and buggy constitution."

A bill which would put the question of a constitutional convention to referendum in the November elections is now in the state legislature. Vocal support and letters to your representatives in Harrisburg will speed favorable action.

And a bipartisan atmosphere may ensure success.

The Pennsylvania Story

Harrisburg Wailing Wall

By Mason Denison

Harrisburg—Reporter's Notebook:

The Unhappy Ones—This was the "week of the sieges" (or something closely akin thereto) insofar as Pennsylvania's Capitol Hill was concerned, as two segments of Pennsylvania's disgruntled citizenry made trips (in futility, as usual) to the proverbial wailing wall.

First on the agenda was a batch of more than 100 picketing Philadelphia school teachers who wanted a (piddling) $25,000,000 more for the Quaker City schools . . . The brood (example-setters!) came complete with placards, munchies and extra shoe leather.

Next day some 1000 wives and children of strip mine employes in the Clearfield County area appeared for a demonstration march protesting the Scranton Administration strip mine backfill legislation opponents claim will kill off thousands of jobs . . . Governor Scranton neglected to become tangled with either group, although J. Scott Calkins, counsel for the strip mine operators "beseeched" Governor Scranton to "personally welcome" his group . . . Mr. Scranton however was on his way to Washington an hour before the demonstrators even arrived in town.

Results in both instances? . . . Negligible.

Supreme Court Decision—The decree handed down this week by the U.S. Supreme Court banning the Lord's Prayer and Bible reading in public schools actually drew little reaction one way or the other on Capitol Hill.

Perhaps the whole issue was best summed up by one legislative leader when he commented: "Well, after all, that's the tribunal's decision—and there isn't much you can do about decisions of the Supreme Court."

Most outspoken was Dr. Charles H. Boehm, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, who said he would recommend that opening exercises in Pennsylvania's public schools "began with a period of silent meditation followed by inspirational music, art or literature."

"How About That!"—In essence this was the general reaction (as might perhaps be expected) among Democratic anti-administration lawmakers to the defeat by the electorate in Nevada last week of a proposed 1 per cent increase in that state's sales tax.

Curiously, the sales tax levy increase has been earmarked specifically for education—precisely as the sales tax is earmarked in Pennsylvania . . . But in contrast to the Nevada case where the electorate as whole voted on the issue, only the Legislature's approval is needed in Pennsylvania — approval which came only over the spirited and almost solid opposition of Democratic minority blocs.

"Good grief, wonder what would have happened in this state if we had had to submit the issue to the people?" mused one top Scranton Administration aide—in some (understandable?) concern.

Check It Out, Mr. Morse—Democratic State Chairman Otis B. Morse charged this week that "stories persist" the Scranton Administration has "completely changed regulations" in the hiring and firing of state employes and is not filling vacancies in the Corporation and Tax offices "to create delays in receiving State funds in order to continue his (Scranton's) practice of 'managing' a budget deficit."

This column would remind Mr. Morse that both of Pennsylvania's fiscal offices—State Auditor General and State Treasurer—are in Democratic hands and that a call to Democratic henchmen in either of these two departments should eliminate need for use of the "stories persist" phrase . . . Or, do the facts actually dispute the contention, with the "stories persist" facet the only door left open? . . . Genuine constructive criticism is one thing—simple, unadulterated hot air quite another!

Off The Record

Say it isn't so Marty.

Reports have reached these ears that this year's Eastern Pennsylvania Coaches Clinic is the last under your capable guidance.

We couldn't fathom a June coaching seminar at East Stroudsburg State College without you running the show. It would be like Newberry taking his name from the 5 and 10 cent store; or Sears lifting his monicker from the wholesale-retail business. It just wouldn't seem like an Eastern Pennsylvania Coaches Clinic without M. S. Baldwin leading the way.

We know medicos have urged you to cut down on your extra-curricular activities. We know, too, that pressure of other business overlaps into the promotion that gained the area some of its top publicity across the nation.

It appears to us though, that your connections in the football, basketball, baseball and, in general, sports world, needs the Poconos touch via the Baldwin magnet.

Listen to your doctor, Marty. But don't let the medicos put you out to pasture to wither away among memories of 19 years of success as director of a "school" which has brought to the Poconos the biggest names in collegiate sports.

We've heard of men like you who were forced to cut down. They lost not only their zeal for bringing good to others but their zest for life.

Marty, we know, you have done more than your share for the community. Your countless contributions to charitable organizations and continual help in landing deserving kids at a place of higher learning are a byword among the citizens of the mountains.

The area can little afford to have you on the sidelines for any length of time. Don't give up the clinic if it is at all humanly possible.

Say is isn't so, Marty.

Move To Purge Dodd

Not so long ago rumors were floated that certain down-the-line members of the Kennedy Administration were resolved to purge Democratic Senator Thomas Dodd of Connecticut.

The Dodd organization got wind of the nefarious movement by chance, when a friend happened to be approached by those who were trying to drum up sentiment against the Senator.

Fortunately, the purge died aborning when Dodd's colleague from Connecticut, Senator Abe Ribicoff, and high Democratic Party factotum John Bailey announced that Dodd was their man in spite of his refusal to accept most of the points in the Kennedy foreign policy position.

Dodd's troubles illustrate the hazards of the man who considers that it is the prime duty of a U.S. Senator to use his own best judgement, subject to check at the polls every six years.

Along with Frank Lausche of Ohio, the Connecticut Senator believes that the business of the politician is to think through for himself, not to carry a torch for a "leader" in the White House or for the latest plebiscitary (and possibly temporary) consensus as announced by the Gallup Poll.

Naturally such independence is sniped at by all manner of people. The Left Wing of the Democratic Party is against Tom Dodd because he is the undisputed leader in the Senate of the advocates of a strong foreign policy vis-a-vis Russia.

The Right Wing of the Republican Party denounces him for his domestic policies, which stress a moderate State Welfarism. But if Dodd has some extremely vocal enemies, he has a host of silent friends.

This columnist, who thinks it the duty of voluntary associations to carry much of the welfarist burden of a free society, doesn't follow Dodd on some of his domestic proposals.

But when Rightists shake their heads over one of those statistical ratings which put Dodd far over on the Left because of his votes on relief and labor legislation, the danger of judging a man by simple addition and subtraction becomes manifest.

The statistical ratings must be subjected to tests of quality and priority if they are to mean anything.

Thus, to any conservative or old-fashioned liberal who puts foreign policy first on the ground that we must keep from being done in by the Communists if we are to have any freedom to argue among ourselves, the fate of Tom Dodd in 1963 becomes a transcendent matter.

On foreign policy Dodd has been the Great Educator. If I recall correctly, he was the only Senator to speak out on the floor of the Senate against Khrushchev's visit to the United States during the Camp David-Spirit of Geneva period of false hopes. He was the first to oppose timid atomic test ban concessions at Geneva in 1960.

He considered it illogical to use our strength to oppose self-determination in Katanga when we support it everywhere else in the world; he warned against the big build-up of Soviet power in Cuba in the early part of September, 1962, when the White House was still pooh-poohing it; and he has insisted that it is the duty of the United States to pursue policies that will not snuff out the hopes of ultimate liberation in Poland, Hungary, and other Iron Curtain satellites.

In short, Dodd merits the support of conservatives and old-fashioned liberals on a priority basis no matter how he votes on such things as medicare or federal aid to education.

Some of those who have supported Dodd on foreign policy have expressed disillusion with the Senator because he recently teamed up with Senator Humphrey to advocate a unilateral U.S. promise to refrain from conducting nuclear tests in the atmosphere as long as the Russians follow the same course.

The idea would be to mitigate the menace of fall-out. Those who object to Dodd's position on this argue that the Dodd Resolution would give Khrushchev the power to decide when and under what circumstances the U.S. will conduct tests.

But it is Dodd's understanding that as long as the U.S. maintains a full-speed-ahead program of underground testing, the facilities for resuming atmospheric testing can be instantly reactivated at the first suggestion of Soviet duplicity.

On this, as on all his other Cold War stances, Dodd seems to this columnist to be the soul of reason. If any of our atomic scientists can confute Dodd here, it is their duty to speak up.

About Town

—By Gene Brown

The Lone Ranger and his faithful Indian friend Tonto were traveling south when they met a band of savage Apaches. They beat a hasty retreat and headed east only to run into a tribe of murderous Cheyennes; on the run and barely escaping with their lives they fled north only to be attacked by scalping Sioux.

There was nothing left to do but to flee to the West. Within only a few miles they come smack up against the man-killing Seminoles.

The Lone Ranger turned to his friend Tonto and said: "It looks as if we are in real trouble."

The Allen-Scott Report

Reds Guide JFK Trip

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

Washington—If the State Department has its way, as appears likely, President Kennedy will fly to West Berlin next week under restrictions laid down by Russia.

The Communists maintain that Western aerial access routes to the surrounded city are limited to 10,000 ft. Flights above that ceiling are considered illegal and subject to "punitive action." The U.S. has never accepted this limitation, and has refused to abide by it.

But the State Department is strongly counseling the President to observe the Soviet-imposed ceiling.

The Air Force, supported by members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, is taking a directly opposite view. It is urging that the President's giant jet fly to West Berlin at its usual cruising altitude of 32,000 ft.

The military are advising this as a resounding affirmation of this country's long-held refusal to recognize the restricted ceiling prescribed by the Communists.

The State Department is advocating a conciliatory course on two grounds:

That defiance of the altitude limitation would be a provocative gesture at a time when the President is making exceptional efforts to reach an understanding with the Kremlin on a nuclear test ban, Cuba and other thorny problems; that Chancellor Adenauer and other Western leaders observe the Reds' ceiling when they fly to West Berlin.

White House insiders indicate the President is "leaning" toward the State Department's stand.

An informal poll of the 17 members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee (12 Democrats and 5 Republicans) revealed that virtually all deem the President's European junket ill-advised and unnecessary. Most of these senators expressed bafflement as to why the President is making the trip.

Several suggested he may have "some kind of a spectacular surprise up his sleeve," but had no idea what it might be.

More Anti-Castro Stalling—The Kennedy Administration is doing virtually nothing to make good the President's ringing declaration to "build a wall of men" around Red-ruled Cuba.

Despite this widely-publicized promise, administration plans and measures to combat Castro-instigated subversion in Latin America are still in a formative stage with few indications they will ever amount to anything.

This doleful backstage situation is graphically revealed in a report Assistant Secretary of State Edward Martin submitted to a House Foreign Affairs Subcommittee headed by Representative Armistead Selden, D-Ala. He sought information on what the administration is doing to make good the President's pledge—and learned it amounts to little more than empty gestures.

Martin discloses that the administration has decided against providing effective sea patrols to prevent Castro agents from being infiltrated to other countries. Such naval forces were urged, but the administration has rejected this.

Instead, according to Martin, "the main U.S. effort in helping to develop better internal security (in Latin America) will be to concentrate on improving land surveillance, patrol and report capabilities."

Just what this ambiguous language means is not explained by the State Department official in charge of Latin American Affairs.

His report to Representative Selden is replete with such double talk, as follows:

"At the Managua meeting of ministers of government, interior and security, representatives of the countries of Central America, Panama and the U.S. agreed to recommend to their governments tightening of measures to control travel of their nationals to and from Cuba . . . The Mangua resolutions called on participating governments to take measures against the movement of funds, arms and propaganda materials for subversive purposes.

"The U.S. will maintain its readiness to respond quickly to requests in specific instances for surveillance assistance of Castro-Communist subversive movements within territorial waters of Isthmian countries. The U.S. military alerting system for the Caribbean has been established to improve our capability to communicate information on movement by sea of subversive elements.

"There has not yet been time for the countries concerned to make much progress in the difficult task of centralizing, reorganizing and upgrading their security forces . . . Many of the countries have basic political conflicts to overcome before there can be real improvements . . . Local authorities have few specific accomplishments to record as a direct consequence of the Managua meeting."

Representative Selden has made it bluntly clear to Martin that he and his committee are "far from happy" with this report and what the Kennedy Administration has done so far to make good the President's pledge to "build a wall of men" around Communist-ruled Cuba.

Social Whirl—Caroline Kennedy is following in the footsteps of her family as regards physical fitness. The 5½-year-old daughter of President and Mrs. Kennedy can now swim 100 yards. She proudly demonstrated her skill to her father last weekend, and was rewarded with a bear hug and a kiss. Two-year-old John, Jr., is to get his first swimming lessons this summer. He has been allowed to wade in a pool, and appears unafraid of the water . . . This will be a stirring weekend for daughters of Army officers stationed at Ft. Belvior, Md. Some 600 West Point cadets are spending several days at the post as part of their summer training, and a "hop" is scheduled for them and the young ladies and their friends. An Army band will provide the music, and a gay time is anticipated by all.

Speaking Of Your Health:

Holiday Exercise

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Holidays are meant to be happy, relaxing intervals that replenish the physical and emotional energy expended during the entire year. It is the time when you can indulge in your favorite active sports—usually activities that you have not had the time or opportunity to enjoy during the year.

But an abrupt change from year-round inactivity to a sudden and strenuous sports program can really tax one's physical reserve. It is wise to prepare slowly for any arduous exercise like tennis, handball or rowing.

Respect for one's own physical limitation can make the difference between a healthy vacation and harmful fatigue. Exceeding one's endurance in competition with one's self or with others can convert pleasure into pain. Slow conditioning is the quick way to haoliday enjoyment.

"Operation—Seasickness"

Have you ever been on a rolling, rocking ship that is playing the high and low game with the horizon?

If you have, and are one of the lucky few who have not been seasick, count your blessings. For seasickness is a miserable—to say the least—destroyer of many a holiday boat trip. A frequent complaint to ships' doctors is: "The only thing I'm afraid of is that I won't die!"

Seasickness is a form of dizziness caused by unusual movement of the fluid in the semi-circular canals of the inner ear. Under normal circumstances, our remarkable mechanism for maintaining equilibrium is able to compensate for any changes in position. But on the seas, especially in rough weather, the ships, the horizon, our semi-circular canals, our eyes and our stomachs are all out of gear. The result can be sheer misery.

Scientific Study

It is understandable that the U.S. Navy, recognizing the need for the control of this incapacitating condition, undertook during World War II a scientific study called "Operation Seasickness." This led to the discovery of many excellent drugs that are now available everywhere for the prevention and control of the symptoms of sasickness.

But these drugs, like all other drugs, should be prescribed specifically for you by your physician. Knowing your general health condition he will choose the drug that is best for you. When these drugs are taken at specified intervals, sea travel can be made comfortable and enjoyable.

DRINKING WATER

When you are camping or picnicking in the country, bear in mind the potential danger of drinking water from wells or springs unless there is a sign attesting to the safety of that water for drinking purposes. The clearest, most tempting waters may be contaminated by disease-bearing germs.

Remember—a safe holiday is a happy holiday.

Dear Abby

Face The Wedding Bells!

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were divorced ten years ago. We have both remarried. When we parted, I got custody of our children, a boy and a girl. I consented to let our son live with his father because the boy was older, and his father could give him more than I at the time. The complications: My son is being married. My daughter and I were not invited to the wedding. When I asked my son why, he said it would cause too much of a mix-up in the seating arrangements. My ex-husband's present wife is very jealous, and I think she had a lot to do with all this. Many of my friends will be at the wedding, and will wonder why I'm not there. I wouldn't want them to think I refused to attend my own son's wedding. What should I do? I want to see my son married.

HURT

DEAR HURT: Go to the wedding, sit on the groom's side and enjoy a mother's privilege of seeing her son married. And hold your head high and smile while you're doing it.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 26-year-old man who recently spent ten days in the hospital. I took a liking to a certain nurse, who led me to believe she was available. After leaving the hospital I sent her a dozen roses in care of the hospital. On the card I asked if I could see her. To my surprise, the roses were returned to my home during the night by an orderly, who claimed he was "going steady" with her. There was a nasty note from him attached to the roses. It was found by my parents and I was deeply humiliated. Should I pursue this nurse further?

EMBARRASSED

DEAR EMBARRASSED: Telephone the nurse and ask her point-blank if she is interested in seeing you. The orderly might have been out of order.

DEAR ABBY: You can tell Mrs. Wet Pillow for me that any woman who cries herself to sleep because her husband hands her a $20 bill and says, "Here, Honey, go buy yourself something for Mother's Day," needs to have her head examined. She should have MY old man. I have to buy a card for myself and beg him to sign it. Ask Mrs. Wet Pillow if she'd like a slightly used husband who's real good at keeping his nose wet.

Shortway Pledge

Governor Scranton renewed his pledge Wednesday to have all of the 309-mile Keystone Shortway from Stroudsburg to Sharon, Pa., under construction by 1966 — the year he comes up for re-election.

But he left himself the same escape clause he included in his pre-election pledge last year when he said the shortway (Interstate Rt. 80) would all be under construction by 1966 unless it was delayed by legal difficulties over rights of way and bridges.

The Keystone Shortway Assn. met with the governor to protest reports that engineering studies were being delayed by the state highway department. The governor answered by renewing his pledge of progress.

The fact that the shortway is being built from east to west is of obvious importance to the Poconos and all of Northeastern Pennsylvania. It speeds and invites tourist traffic and will be a major economic boost for this area.

We are glad to hear Owen Beckley, assistant chief highway engineer, say that he hopes to have all of the section from Tannersville to White Deer on the Susquehanna under contract in 1963.

We applaud the state's intention to make use of other major highways already built in the northeastern part of the state by concentrating its first construction drive in this area near the source of tourists in the New York and Philadelphia metropolitan population centers.

But, as the governor said, a completed shortway will not justify its expense if the section of Interstate 80 in New Jersey which links us with New York is not also constructed.

An interstate highway requires interstate cooperation. The Republican governor of Pennsylvania must push the Democratic governor of New Jersey to speed up his section of the highway from the Washington Bridge to Stroudsburg.

We wish him success in that task and trust he will keep his pledge to us to complete the Keystone Shortway.

Bipartisan Revision

The campaign to keep politics out of the debate on proposed revision of the 1874 Pennsylvania Constitution seems to be winning votes from both parties, in Monroe County at least.

Several county Republicans attended a non-partisan speech on the constitutional history of Pennsylvania by Genevieve Blatt, Democratic secretary of internal affairs, recently at the YMCA. It was sponsored by the Monroe County Democratic Club.

This week the Young Republican Club of Monroe County answered the call for a bipartisan effort, saluted county Democrats for their non-political position on the issue, and urged a two-party effort to call a convention to revise the constitution.

Ray Roberts, vice president of the Young GOP Club said, "This is an area of such vital importance to the citizens of our state and county, that a responsible, joint effort by both parties is imperative . . .

"Governor Scranton has promised action. Our challenge is to force and effectuate that action with no regard to political self-interests."

Roberts referred to "the need for revising our horse and buggy constitution."

A bill which would put the question of a constitutional convention to referendum in the November elections is now in the state legislature. Vocal support and letters to your representatives in Harrisburg will speed favorable action.

And a bipartisan atmosphere may ensure success.

Move To Purge Dodd

Not so long ago rumors were floated that certain down-the-line members of the Kennedy Administration were resolved to purge Democratic Senator Thomas Dodd of Connecticut.

The Dodd organization got wind of the nefarious movement by chance, when a friend happened to be approached by those who were trying to drum up sentiment against the Senator.

Fortunately, the purge died aborning when Dodd's colleague from Connecticut, Senator Abe Ribicoff, and high Democratic Party factotum John Bailey announced that Dodd was their man in spite of his refusal to accept most of the points in the Kennedy foreign policy position.

Dodd's troubles illustrate the hazards of the man who considers that it is the prime duty of a U.S. Senator to use his own best judgement, subject to check at the polls every six years.

Along with Frank Lausche of Ohio, the Connecticut Senator believes that the business of the politician is to think through for himself, not to carry a torch for a "leader" in the White House or for the latest plebiscitary (and possibly temporary) consensus as announced by the Gallup Poll.

Naturally such independence is sniped at by all manner of people. The Left Wing of the Democratic Party is against Tom Dodd because he is the undisputed leader in the Senate of the advocates of a strong foreign policy vis-a-vis Russia.

The Right Wing of the Republican Party denounces him for his domestic policies, which stress a moderate State Welfarism. But if Dodd has some extremely vocal enemies, he has a host of silent friends.

This columnist, who thinks it the duty of voluntary associations to carry much of the welfarist burden of a free society, doesn't follow Dodd on some of his domestic proposals.

But when Rightists shake their heads over one of those statistical ratings which put Dodd far over on the Left because of his votes on relief and labor legislation, the danger of judging a man by simple addition and subtraction becomes manifest.

The statistical ratings must be subjected to tests of quality and priority if they are to mean anything.

Thus, to any conservative or old-fashioned liberal who puts foreign policy first on the ground that we must keep from being done in by the Communists if we are to have any freedom to argue among ourselves, the fate of Tom Dodd in 1964 becomes a transcendent matter.

On foreign policy Dodd has been the Great Educator. If I recall correctly, he was the only Senator to speak out on the floor of the Senate against Khrushchev's visit to the United States during the Camp David-Spirit of Geneva period of false hopes. He was the first to oppose timid atomic test ban concessions at Geneva in 1960.

He considered it illogical to use our strength to oppose self-determination in Katanga when we support it everywhere else in the world; he warned against the big build-up of Soviet power in Cuba in the early part of September, 1962, when the White House was still pooh-poohing it; and he has insisted that it is the duty of the United States to pursue policies that will not snuff out the hopes of ultimate liberation in Poland, Hungary, and other Iron Curtain satellites.

In short, Dodd merits the support of conservatives and old-fashioned liberals on a priority basis no matter how he votes on such things as medicare or federal aid to education.

Some of those who have supported Dodd on foreign policy have expressed disillusion with the Senator because he recently teamed up with Senator Humphrey to advocate a unilateral U.S. promise to refrain from conducting nuclear tests in the atmosphere as long as the Russians follow the same course.

The idea would be to mitigate the menace of fall-out. Those who object to Dodd's position on this argue that the Dodd Resolution would give Khrushchev the power to decide when and under what circumstances the U.S. will conduct tests.

But it is Dodd's understanding that as long as the U.S. maintains a full-speed-ahead program of underground testing, the facilities for resuming atmospheric testing can be instantly reactivated at the first suggestion of Soviet duplicity.

On this, as on all his other Cold War stances, Dodd seems to this columnist to be the soul of reason. If any of our atomic scientists can confute Dodd here, it is their duty to speak up.

The Pennsylvania Story

Harrisburg Wailing Wall

By Mason Denison

Harrisburg—Reporter's Notebook:

The Unhappy Ones—This was the "week of the sieges" (or something closely akin thereto) insofar as Pennsylvania's Capitol Hill was concerned, as two segments of Pennsylvania's disgruntled citizenry made trips (in futility, as usual) to the proverbial wailing wall.

First on the agenda was a batch of more than 100 picketing Philadelphia school teachers who wanted a (piddling) $25,000,000 more for the Quaker City schools . . . The brood (example-setters!) came complete with placards, munchies and extra shoe leather.

Next day some 1000 wives and children of strip mine employes in the Clearfield County area appeared for a demonstration march protesting the Scranton Administration strip mine backfill legislation opponents claim will kill off thousands of jobs . . . Governor Scranton neglected to become tangled with either group, although J. Scott Calkins, counsel for the strip mine operators "beseeched" Governor Scranton to "personally welcome" his group . . . Mr. Scranton however was on his way to Washington an hour before the demonstrators even arrived in town.

Results in both instances? . . . Negligible.

Supreme Court Decision—The decree handed down this week by the U.S. Supreme Court banning the Lord's Prayer and Bible reading in public schools actually drew little reaction one way or the other on Capitol Hill.

Perhaps the whole issue was best summed up by one legislative leader when he commented: "Well, after all, that's the tribunal's decision—and there isn't much you can do about decisions of the Supreme Court."

Most outspoken was Dr. Charles H. Boehm, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, who said he would recommend that opening exercises in Pennsylvania's public schools "began with a period of silent meditation followed by inspirational music, art or literature."

"How About That!"—In essence this was the general reaction (as might perhaps be expected) among Democratic anti-administration lawmakers to the defeat by the electorate in Nevada last week of a proposed 1 per cent increase in that state's sales tax.

Curiously, the sales tax levy increase has been earmarked specifically for education—precisely as the sales tax is earmarked in Pennsylvania . . . But in contrast to the Nevada case where the electorate as whole voted on the issue, only the Legislature's approval is needed in Pennsylvania — approval which came only over the spirited and almost solid opposition of Democratic minority blocs.

"Good grief, wonder what would have happened in this state if we had had to submit the issue to the people?" mused one top Scranton Administration aide—in some (understandable?) concern.

Check It Out, Mr. Morse—Democratic State Chairman Otis B. Morse charged this week that "stories persist" the Scranton Administration has "completely changed regulations" in the hiring and firing of state employes and is not filling vacancies in the Corporation and Tax offices "to create delays in receiving State funds in order to continue his (Scranton's) practice of 'managing' a budget deficit."

This column would remind Mr. Morse that both of Pennsylvania's fiscal offices—State Auditor General and State Treasurer—are in Democratic hands and that a call to Democratic henchmen in either of these two departments should eliminate need for use of the "stories persist" phrase . . . Or, do the facts actually dispute the contention, with the "stories persist" facet the only door left open? . . . Genuine constructive criticism is one thing—simple, unadulterated hot air quite another!

Off The Record

Say it isn't so Marty.

Reports have reached these ears that this year's Eastern Pennsylvania Coaches Clinic is the last under your capable guidance.

We couldn't fathom a June coaching seminar at East Stroudsburg State College without you running the show. It would be like Newberry taking his name from the 5 and 10 cent store; or Sears lifting his monicker from the wholesale-retail business. It just wouldn't seem like an Eastern Pennsylvania Coaches Clinic without M. S. Baldwin leading the way.

We know medicos have urged you to cut down on your extra-curricular activities. We know, too, that pressure of other business overlaps into the promotion that gained the area some of its top publicity across the nation.

It appears to us though, that your connections in the football, basketball, baseball and, in general, sports world, needs the Poconos touch via the Baldwin magnet.

Listen to your doctor, Marty. But don't let the medicos put you out to pasture to wither away among memories of 19 years of success as director of a "school" which has brought to the Poconos the biggest names in collegiate sports.

We've heard of men like you who were forced to cut down. They lost not only their zeal for bringing good to others but their zest for life.

Marty, we know, you have done more than your share for the community. Your countless contributions to charitable organizations and continual help in landing deserving kids at a place of higher learning are a byword among the citizens of the mountains.

The area can little afford to have you on the sidelines for any length of time. Don't give up the clinic if it is at all humanly possible.

Say is isn't so, Marty.

Dear Abby

Face The Wedding Bells!

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were divorced ten years ago. We have both remarried. When we parted, I got custody of our children, a boy and a girl. I consented to let our son live with his father because the boy was older, and his father could give him more than I at the time. The complications: My son is being married. My daughter and I were not invited to the wedding. When I asked my son why, he said it would cause too much of a mix-up in the seating arrangements. My ex-husband's present wife is very jealous, and I think she had a lot to do with all this. Many of my friends will be at the wedding, and will wonder why I'm not there. I wouldn't want them to think I refused to attend my own son's wedding. What should I do? I want to see my son married.

HURT

DEAR HURT: Go to the wedding, sit on the groom's side and enjoy a mother's privilege of seeing her son married. And hold your head high and smile while you're doing it.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 26-year-old man who recently spent ten days in the hospital. I took a liking to a certain nurse, who led me to believe she was available. After leaving the hospital I sent her a dozen roses in care of the hospital. On the card I asked if I could see her. To my surprise, the roses were returned to my home during the night by an orderly, who claimed he was "going steady" with her. There was a nasty note from him attached to the roses. It was found by my parents and I was deeply humiliated. Should I pursue this nurse further?

EMBARRASSED

DEAR EMBARRASSED: Telephone the nurse and ask her point-blank if she is interested in seeing you. The orderly might have been out of order.

DEAR ABBY: You can tell Mrs. Wet Pillow for me that any woman who cries herself to sleep because her husband hands her a $20 bill and says, "Here, Honey, go buy yourself something for Mother's Day," needs to have her head examined. She should have MY old man. I have to buy a card for myself and beg him to sign it. Ask Mrs. Wet Pillow if she'd like a slightly used husband who's real good at keeping his nose wet.

WRUNG OUT

Confidential To Lucky Lucy: Divorce your business instead of your husband and try to make a real home for your family.

The picketing could tie up shipping on East, Gulf and West coasts and in the Great Lakes.

The jurisdictional battle between the two AFL-CIO unions began in Philadelphia over the Cuban ransome freighter, Maximus. It already has idled some 45 vessels in deep sea and Great Lakes ports.

Legislature Is Suspended

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana (AP)—Prime Minister Chedi Jagan has suspended the legislature that had already suspended him and three other Cabinet ministers.

Political sources said he hoped his own suspension would automatically be ended when the legislature eventually reassembles.

His maneuver also killed the controversial labor relations bill, a government measure, which plunged this British crown territory into a nine-week general strike.

Jagan also avoided a motion of no confidence the opposition planned to introduce. He was sure to lose the vote.

Bond Sales In Monroe $151,112

STROUDSBURG — Pennsylvanians continued record purchases of U. S. Savings Bonds during May, reports Charles S. Krumrine, state bond chairman.

Cash purchases of Series E and H Bonds amounted to $41,176,144 last month, an increase of 12.4 per cent over the previous year. Total volume for 1963 has now reached $213,753,609 or 46.8 per cent of the year's sales goal. This represents a gain of 12.1 per cent over the same period last year.

In Monroe County, May sales amounted to $151,112. Robert F. Davenport of Stroudsburg, is county bond chairman.

Pike County showed sales of $7,556. Donald Z. Wade is chairman.

The Freedom Bond Drive, a nation-wide sales promotion activity, is entering its final weeks and will conclude on July 4. Krumrine describes the campaign as one of the most effective the Treasury has developed since the end of World War II.

The Freedom Bond Drive features industry-wide payroll savings campaigns in 28 major industries, "bond-for-every - family" appeals conducted by leading national organizations, and special advertising coverage in all media.

In commenting on the progress of the Savings Bonds program, Krumrine points out that some fifteen per cent of the public debt — over $46 billion — is in the form of Series E and H Savings Bonds. This is a solid cornerstone for our entire public debt structure to rest upon, he observes.

Bond Sales In Monroe $151,112

STROUDSBURG — Pennsylvanians continued record purchases of U. S. Savings Bonds during May, reports Charles S. Krumrine, state bond chairman.

Cash purchases of Series E and H Bonds amounted to $44,176,144 last month, an increase of 12.4 per cent over the previous year. Total volume for 1963 has now reached $213,735,609 or 46.8 per cent of the year's sales goal. This represents a gain of 12.1 per cent over the same period last year.

In Monroe County, May sales amounted to $151,112. Robert F. Davenport of Stroudsburg, is county bond chairman.

Pike County showed sales of $7,596. Donald Z. Wade is chairman.

The Freedom Bond Drive, a nation-wide sales promotion activity, is entering its final weeks and will conclude on July 4, Krumrine describes the campaign as one of the most effective the Treasury has developed since the end of World War II.

The Freedom Bond Drive features industry-wide payroll savings campaigns in 28 major industries, "bond-for-every-family" appeals conducted by leading national organizations, and special advertising coverage in all media.

In commenting on the progress of the Savings Bonds program, Krumrine points out that some fifteen per cent of the public debt — over $46 billion — is in the form of Series E and H Savings Bonds. This is a solid cornerstone for our entire public debt structure to rest upon, he observes.

Legislature Is Suspended

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana (AP)—Prime Minister Chedi Jagan has suspended the legislature that had already suspended him and three other Cabinet ministers.

Political sources said he hoped his own suspension would automatically be ended when the legislature eventually reassembles.

His maneuver also killed the controversial labor relations bill, a government measure, which plunged this British crown territory into a nine-week general strike.

Jagan also avoided a motion of no confidence the opposition planned to introduce. He was sure to lose the vote.

Maximum Living In Minimum Space

By JULES LOH

NEARLY everybody wants a house that's different, interesting and fun to live in, but few are willing to sacrifice another very important ingredient — practicality — to get it.

They don't have to.

Today's House of the Week is one of the most dramatic examples of contemporary home architecture to appear in the weekly series, yet for all its exciting features it still does the primary job a house is supposed to do: provide maximum livability in minimum space.

Architect Rudolph A. Matern used an interesting variation of the front-to-back split level technique to package into a perimeter of only 1,581 square feet three bedrooms, three full baths, a spacious entrance foyer, enormous living room, dining room, breakfast room and family room.

The house also has a two-car garage, basement, two covered porches (one of which could be screened) and a delightful private side terrace. Its dimensions are 64 feet one inch wide by 46 feet seven inches deep.

That should convince the most practical house hunter that there could be little or no unused space in this model.

What gives the house its personality, however, are the imaginative features which abound on every level. One of the most interesting is the design of the ceiling over the living level. Starting at the rear wall of the dining room the ceiling slopes upward along the rafters and continues up to include the balcony of the bedroom level. The fireplace wall in the living room is 15 feet high.

The exterior presents a long, low silhouette emphasized by the roof lines, horizontal siding (blended nicely with brick), the planter stretching beneath the five upstairs windows, and the extension of the front brick wall out to the side to form the terrace wall.

Architect Matern will send a 35-mm slide of the artist's original full color drawing of the house free to anyone who asks. The design is House of the Week J-80; Matern's address is on the study plan.

Additional Details

That massive 15-foot-high fireplace wall in the living room is a good example of Matern's skill at combining the dramatic with the practical. It contains the chimneys for three fireplaces — one in the living room, one in the family room and one, luxury of luxuries, in the master bedroom upstairs.

The entrance foyer is sized (more than 120 square feet) to handl guest congregation and, as a matter of fact, can easily accommodate the overflow from a family room party.

At the opposite side of the family room is another overflow area, the walled terrace with its pergola roof. A quiet retreat on a cool summer evening, and a delightful bower during the day as well.

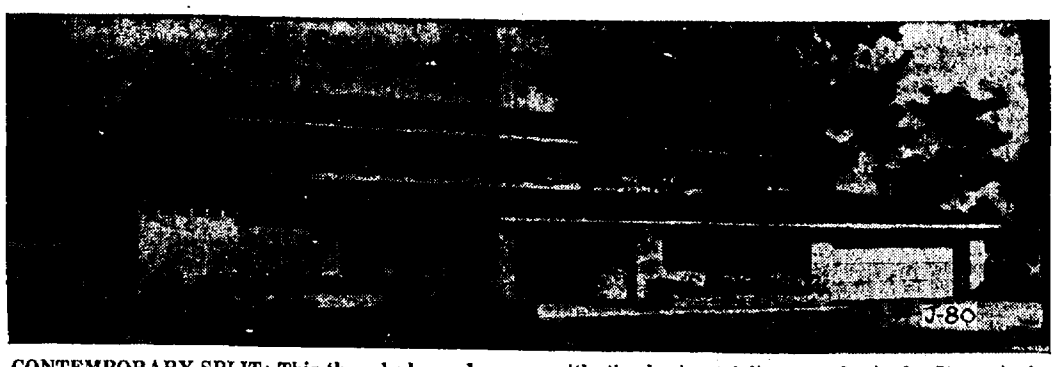
Matern hasn't had to squeez to provide all the housekeeping facilities this house boasts. In addition to the large foyer, the laundry room is more than 135 square feet, the breakfast area is 54 square feet, the lower bath is 54 square feet and the upper bath 56. The upper balcony is 44 square feet and there are small foyers at all the stairways.

Storage space is abundant throughout. All the bedrooms have large closets, especially the master bedroom where there's even a closet inside the walk-in closet (which itself is dressing-room size). The linen closet outside the main bath is double size, and there's even a linen closet outside the lower bath. There's a closet adjoining the kitchen, another near the living room, a coat closet adjoining the foyer, a big closet in the laundry-mud room, another outside the mud room at the garage, and a big storage closet in the garage. And of course there is provision for more storage in the basement.

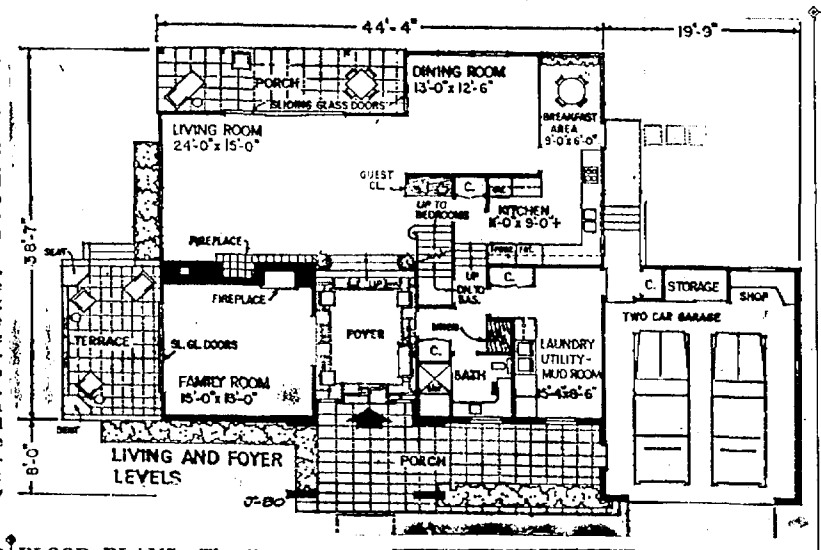
In short, this is a house perfectly equipped for contemporary living, and styled for it as well.

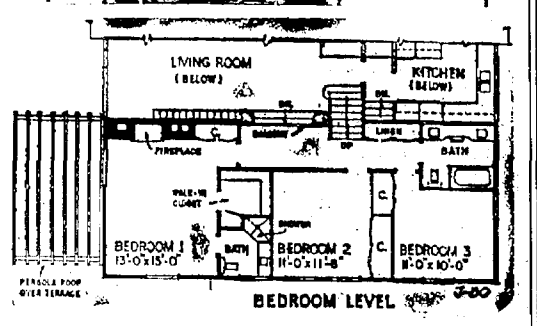
J-80 STATISTICS

A contemporary front-to-rear, four level, split level home containing three bedrooms, three full baths, foyer, living room, dining room, family room, breakfast room, laundry, double garage, basement, two porches, terrace. Living and bedroom levels contains 1,581 square feet excluding garage; foyer level contains 573 square feet. Dimensions are 64 feet one inch wide by 46 feet seven inches deep.



CONTEMPORARY SPLIT: This three bedroom home is perfectly equipped for contemporary living and styled for it as well. Its silhouette is long and low, with the horizontal lines emphasized. Its main interior feature is a floor plan with large rooms and dramatic innovations.





FLOOR PLANS: The living and bedroom levels contain 1,581 square feet, not counting the garage; the foyer level contains 573 square feet. Note the abundance of exterior doors, six in all, which assures excellent traffic circulation. Rear porch could be screened if desired.

Booklet Tells How To Clean Plumbing

HOMEOWNERS and renters alike can avoid unnecessary expense and personal inconvenience by employing a few simple techniques for cleaning plumbing fittings, fixtures and drains.

The best modern fittings (faucets and valves) are made of chrominum-plated brass, says the Plumbing-Heating - Cooling Information Bureau. With proper care, they will look better longer.

To clean chrominum - plated fittings, the Bureau points out, all that is necessary in most cases is regular washing with soap and water. In costal areas where there is an abundance of salt air, it is advisable to also apply a protective coating such as ordinary furniture wax.

More cleaning tips, and other valuable information, are in the booklet "Plumbing Care and Repair." It may be obtained for fifteen cents from the Plumbing-Heating - Cooling Information Bureau at 35 East Wacker Drive, Chicago 1, Illinois.

Preserving the lustrous finishes of vitreous china and enameled fixtures is also done best with simple soap and water washings, the booklet advises.

For tough jobs, an occasional washing with a solution of shaved naphtha-base laundry soap mixed in a quart of water with two tablespoons of common kerosene is advised. The mixture will provide excellent cleaning results without marring surfaces.

History At Its Best

State Capitol Work Of Art

By JIM SHAFER
Daily Record Reporter

HARRISBURG — Summertime is here. It is the period when families take vacations they have planned all year. It also is the time when parents load their brood into the family car for short trips to nearby points of interest.

One point of interest is Harrisburg, capital of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

As one continues on in education, in the public schools and on to colleges, a course in History of Pennsylvania is often required. From this course the individual finds why Pennsylvania has been called the "Keystone State." However, history books do not include the value of a family journey to the capital.

The original park at the capital consisted of a four-acre grant from John Harris, founder of Harrisburg.

The capital was officially dedicated by President Theodore Roosevelt on Oct. 4, 1906.

In 1902, Joseph Huston of Philadelphia, was commissioned the architect. He designed the capitol in the classic style adapted from the architecture of the Italian Renaissance.

Cost $10 Million

The exterior of the capitol is Vermont granite, and when constructed cost $10,000,000. The building is 520 feet long and 254 feet wide. It covers two acres of ground and within its one-half mile circumference are 649 rooms.

The dome stretches 272 feet from the ground. Standing on top of the dome is "Miss Penn," a statue symbolizing the commonwealth. The nickname of "Miss Penn" for this figure has given rise to the mistaken impression that it represents William Penn's daughter, Letita. This is not the case.

Roland Hinton Perry, the sculpture, is the authority on the statue. Perry said the statue represents the commonwealth and that the staff which is held in the left hand is the staff of statehood, and the right hand is extended in benediction.

Group In Attitudes

The statuary on the right of the building, as you face it, show a group on men and women in attitudes representing the spiritual burdens carried by man. The left side group represents humanity advancing through the inspiration of work and brotherhood.

The bronze doors at the entrance each weigh one ton. In the recessed arches of the rotunda are paintings by Pennsylvania artist Edwin Austin Abbey. These commemorate the spiritual, intellectual and economic advances of the commonwealth.

In the south corridor, to the right, as one faces the staircase, are mural paintings which represent various phases of the religious influences that are a part of Pennsylvania's history.

The tile floors in the rotunda and the corridors are composed of more than 400 tile mosaics which suggest animals and birds as well as industries, occupations and modes of travel, common throughout Pennsylvania.

The senate chamber is a sight to behold. The walls are covered with large paintings which tell the story of Pennsylvania in picture form. In the house of representatives the same motif is used.

Society Of Friends

The governor's suite is on the second floor of the south wing. The public reception room, paneled in English crotched oak is enhanced by a series of murals portraying events in history of religious liberty in England and in the rise of th. Society of Friends.

The appelate court room, on the fourth floor, is dedicated to the use of the Superior Court and the Supreme Court. Here 16 panels portray the evolution of law through the ages.

Although parts of Pennsylvania, as we know it today, were included in European colonies of New Sweden and New Netherlands, Pennsylvania itself has existed since the land was granted to William Penn in 1681.

From that date until the Declaration of Independence in 1776, the governors of the colony were William Penn and his heirs.

Penn himself visited the colony only twice, in 1682 to 1684, and 1699 to 1701. For most of the time the government was in the hands of deputies appointed by William Penn and his successors.

First Executive

James Hamilton, who became Lt. Gov. for the Penns in 1748, was the first Pennsylvania chief executive born in America. He was a native of Virginia.

For two years, 1692 to 1694, Pennsylvania was governed by Benjamin Fletcher, the colonial governor of New York. This was during the peri ' when Penn was deprived of his colony by the British crown.

During the history of the state, four constitutions have governed the residents. They are the constitutions of 1776, 1790, 1838 and 1874.

Under the 1776 constitution, the state had one legislative house; and instead of a governor it had a supreme Executive Council, on which every county was represented. The Council chose its own president and vice president.

State Had 6 Presidents

From 1776 to 1790, Pennsylvania had six presidents and one acting president. The first of these presidents was Thomas Wharton, who was also the first native born Pennsylvanian to head the state government. His inauguration in Philadelphia on March 5, 1777, was Pennsylvania's first inauguration of an elected chief of the government.

The most famous president of the state was Benjamin Franklin. The choice was in recognition of his long record of patriotic and civic service. Franklin was almost 80 years of age when he assumed office. He served for three years, from 1785 to 1788 and died in 1790.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Mars benefic: put yourself and your strong talents foreward with the best intentions and in most appropriate manner. People love something novel — you can dream it up.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — Less enlivening than you may like, but day has much to offer the fervent, steady-going person who uses his head AND heart — no big order for the thinking Taurean. Don't overlook details.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Both aggravating and exhilerating influences. Have patience, forebearance with the former; use the vehement ones with due reverence and restrictions. Guided alacrity can spur new success.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Forceful, pungent indications under a vigorous Moon. Keep ponderousness out of the heavy duties, but steer from the other extreme — feeble, inept trys. Be informed, alert.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Increasing need for attention to budget, properties, how you handle home problems. Something may not pan out as you intended, but you can avert many unwanted situations and persuade most results.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — Again, beg off those overcrowding matters, keep your sights on YOUR goals, tasks. Unchecked spending means trouble, but neither be "penny wise and pound foolish." That sure middle-road!

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Things usually do get, or seem, worse before they get better. This is the dark before the dawn. The clouds that hid the silver lining. So you KNOW gains are there, it's merely to strive.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Keeping accounts, things in line generally will be tedious, require a push. But will pay lasting dividends for special care NOW. A rising curve of activity calls your abilities.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius) — Going from a more restricting to a freer period. Just do not let loose the reins too quickly. Mechanics, students, skilled performances, everyday commodities among many favored.

December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn) — Pull up for a spell if going steadily without respite, or at a ton speed that needs easing. Take ordinary chores in measured steps; don't take the starch out of small merits.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius) — "Thoughts that breathe and words that burn" depict today. A simple, unornamented subject or project may be your saving grace. Post good intentions early, carry them through staunchly.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces) — Perplexities usually do not bother you, so keep it that way now when fresh tensions could build. Really, your planet would have you bound ahead with dispatch. Steer all intelligently.

YOU BORN TODAY: This is the Sign of the pearl, emerald, moonstone, and many of the mysteriously shaded yet glowing stones that represent a person of your depth, subtle brilliance and attractions. You may not seem to be strong physically, but can build your prowess, as many have, and wind up in the front-line of athletics, not always because you like sports, but in defense of your hidden abilities. Things are sometimes forced upon you rather restrained, normally modest people. Your exuberance is for affairs of the mind and heart. Your home is the center of your life, you seek harmony above all. May tend to indigestion when matters go awry. In 1963, diverse ways for your intuition and industriousness to force to greater achievement. Gentleness will accompany just pride, as patience and tolerance must walk with assuredness and hope. Your tenacity should hang on — there is a way out of every dilemma, and a way IN to every success area. Dramatic talent here. Birthdate of: Wm. Stubbs, Bishop of Oxford, constitutional historian; many wits, nurses, men and women behind successful diplomacy and government.

Hollywood Star Featured In Next Playhouse Offering

MOUNTAINHOME—Walter Pidgeon, Hollywood's suave and sophisticated personality, will have the starring role in S.N. Behrman's hit comedy "Lord Pengo," at the second production of the season at Pocono Playhouse, Mountainhome, starting Monday, June 24.

Pidgeon, who has recently completed an extensive engagement both on Broadway and on tour as "The Happiest Millionaire," has had an equally extensive career in the entertainment industry.

He is best known for his work in motion pictures, a career which is now well into its fourth decade of popularity. His first motion picture "Mannequin" was made by Paramount in 1926.

After completing numerous silent movies, he moved into sound film and from 1936 to the present date he has starred in over 66 outstanding films with leading ladies comprising the great in the stage and film world.

A few of his top films include "How Green Was My Valley," "Mrs. Miniver," "Madame Curie," "Command Decision," "The Last Time I Saw Paris," "That Forsythe Woman" and "The Rack."

"Lord Pengo" is an art gallery comedy based on Behrman's highly amusing biography of Joseph Duveen, king of the con-man art dealers in the early part of the century.

In an interesting and intriguing manner, the play brings to life all the charm, artifice and skill employed by the mountebank art dealer who guided the taste of a group of dough heavy, culture starved Americans in their purchase of masterpieces.

Through trickery and every manner known of conniving, he pits millionaire against millionaire who vie with each other in paying fabulous prices for masterpieces.

In addition to its humorous side and dramatic situations, it gives a highly informative and exceedingly interesting picture of the affect his dealings had on the American art collection at large.

Philip Bourneuf and Burt Metcalf will be seen in featured roles. "Lord Pengo" will be directed by Malcolm Black and will continue through Saturday evening, June 29, with matinees on Wednesday and Saturday.

Reservations may be made by phoning 595-7456.

State Capitol Work Of Art

By JIM SHAFER
Daily Record Reporter

HARRISBURG — Summertime is here. It is the period when families take vacations they have planned all year. It also is the time when parents load their brood into the family car for short trips to nearby points of interest.

One point of interest is Harrisburg, capital of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

As one continues on in education, in the public schools and on to colleges, a course in History of Pennsylvania is often required. From this course the individual finds why Pennsylvania has been called the "Keystone State." However, history books do not include the value of a family journey to the capital.

The original park at the capital consisted of a four-acre grant from John Harris, founder of Harrisburg.

The capital was officially dedicated by President Theodore Roosevelt on Oct. 4, 1906.

In 1902, Joseph Huston of Philadelphia, was commissioned the architect. He designed the capitol in the classic style adapted from the architecture of the Italian Renaissance.

Cost $10 Million

The exterior of the capitol is Vermont granite, and when constructed cost $10,000,000. The building is 520 feet long and 254 feet wide. It covers two acres of ground and within its one-half mile circumference are 640 rooms.

The dome stretches 272 feet from the ground. Standing on top of the dome is "Miss Penn," a statue symbolizing the commonwealth. The nickname of "Miss Penn" for this figure has given rise to the mistaken impression that it represents William Penn's daughter, Letitia. This is not the case.

Roland Hinton Perry, the sculpture, is the authority on the statue. Perry said the statue represents the commonwealth and that the staff which is held in the left hand is the staff of statehood, and the right hand is extended in benediction.

Group In Attitudes

The statuary on the right of the building, as you face it, show a group on men and women in attitudes representing the spiritual burdens carried by man. The left side group represents humanity advancing through the inspiration of work and brotherhood.

The bronze doors at the entrance each weigh one ton. In the recessed arches of the rotunda are paintings by Pennsylvania artist Edwin Austin Abbey. These commemorate the spiritual, intellectual and economic advances of the commonwealth.

In the south corridor, to the right, as one faces the staircase, are mural paintings which represent various phases of the religious influences that are a part of Pennsylvania's history.

The tile floors in the rotunda and the corridors are composed of more than 400 tile mosaics which suggest animals and birds as well as industries, occupations and modes of travel, common throughout Pennsylvania.

The senate chamber is a sight to behold. The walls are covered with large paintings which tell the story of Pennsylvania in picture form. In the house of representatives the same motif is used.

Society Of Friends

The governor's suite is on the second floor of the south wing. The public reception room, panelled in English crotched oak is enhanced by a series of murals portraying events in history of religious liberty in England and in the rise of the Society of Friends.

The appelate court room, on the fourth floor, is dedicated to the use of the Superior Court and the Supreme Court. Here 16 panels portray the evolution of law through the ages.

Although parts of Pennsylvania, as we know it today, were included in European colonies of New Sweden and New Netherlands, Pennsylvania itself has existed since the land was granted to William Penn in 1681.

From that date until the Declaration of Independence in 1776, the governors of the colony were William Penn and his heirs.

During the history of the state, four constitutions have governed the residents. They are the constitutions of 1776, 1790, 1838 and 1874.

Under the 1776 constitution, the state had one legislative house; and instead of a governor it had a supreme Executive Council, on which every county was represented. The Council chose its own president and vice president.

Hollywood Star Featured In Next Playhouse Offering

MOUNTAINHOME—Walter Pidgeon, Hollywood's suave and sophisticated personality, will have the starring role in S.N. Behrman's hit comedy "Lord Pengo," at the second production of the season at Pocono Playhouse, Mountainhome, starting Monday, June 24.

Pidgeon, who has recently completed an extensive engagement both on Broadway and on tour as "The Happiest Millionaire," has had an equally extensive career in the entertainment industry.

He is best known for his work in motion pictures, a career which is now well into its fourth decade of popularity. His first motion picture "Mannequin" was made by Paramount in 1926.

After completing numerous silent movies, he moved into sound film and from 1936 to the present date he has starred in over 66 outstanding films with leading ladies comprising the great in the stage and film world.

A few of his top films include "How Green Was My Valley," "Mrs. Miniver," "Madame Curie," "Command Decision," "The Last Time I Saw Paris," "That Forsythe Woman" and "The Rack."

"Lord Pengo" is an art gallery comedy based on Behrman's highly amusing biography of Joseph Duveen, king of the con-man art dealers in the early part of the century.

In an interesting and intriguing manner, the play brings to life all the charm, artifice and skill employed by the mountebank art dealer who guided the taste of a group of dough heavy, culture starved Americans in their purchase of masterpieces.

Through trickery and every manner known of conniving, he pits millionaire against millionaire who vie with each other in paying fabulous prices for masterpieces.

In addition to its humorous wit and dramatic situations, it gives a highly informative and exceedingly interesting picture of the affect his dealings had on the American art collection at large.

Philip Bourneuf and Burt Metcalf will be seen in featured roles. "Lord Pengo" will be directed by Malcolm Black and will continue through Saturday evening, June 29, with matinees on Wednesday and Saturday.

Reservations may be made by phoning 595-7456.

Just Between Us — —

An interesting experiment for any foundation which doesn't know what to do with its money would be to finance a trip to one given spot by ten different people, and then compare their accounts of the experience. Like the blind men describing elephant, I'll bet nobody could tell they'd been to the same place.

Of course, Palm Beach, Fla. and Banff, Alberta could scarcely be more different, but the letter I got from friends in both places were so typical that I wonder how they would react if the places were reversed.

Dottie and Elwood Grant are taking a month's vacation in the Northwest, including the Trans Canada Highway, visiting the national parks. There's still plenty of snow in Alberta, Dottie reported, but they've seen Alpine wildflowers including the snow lilies and yellow mountain lilies.

Cynthia Watt in a nice long newsy letter from their new home in Palm Beach is full of the social life there which she finds not much different than Stroudsburgs busy days except its a little more informal and casual. Strangers invited for a cocktail party may arrive all gussied up and find everyone else in shorts, for instance.

One thing she thinks we could use is the 10:30 a.m. coffee: for committee meetings, and just plain entertaining, less expensive than luncheons and less time-consuming, too. Coffee-fruit you can eat by hand, and miniature pastry and rolls—and home before the children get out of school.

She's getting quite interested in the Junior Museum, too, but is also keeping close track on you "home folks," too.

P. S. To any interested foundation: I'll be one of the ten for almost anywhere.

Community Celebration For Charles D. Smith, 80

South Sterling—Two very special events have highlighted the June calendar at the Charles D. Smith home in South Sterling.

The first was the open house which marked Mr. Smith's 80th birthday recently. The second is attendance this weekend at the Indian Encampment at Wyalusing Rocks.

Charles D. Smith was born in Panther, Pike County, the son of Charles Edward and Theresa Stark Smith. The elder Smith was also born in this area, in South Sterling.

Charles D. Smith attended school in Dreher Township, the forerunner of the present Southern Wayne School of the Wallenpaupack Jointure. He was occupied at lumbering, and several other jobs, but his main work has been farming.

A member of the Newfoundland Moravian Church, and Ladies of Paupack Rebekah Lodge 559 of Newfoundland, he was a charter member of the Greene-Dreher Fire Company and an active member for many years. He served as president of the Greene-Dreher-Sterling Community Fair Association for 20 years, following the first president, Dr. Arthur Simons, in the post.

There were 180 friends and relatives who honored the local man at the open house, including his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Evans and his great-grandchildren, Debbie, Donna and Tammy Mabe, all of Charlotte, North Carolina; his granddaughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Ike W. Straughn, and great-grandchildren Cliff and Allison, of Winston-Salem, North Carolina; and his sister, Hazel Fahey and nephew, John Fahey, Tobyhanna. His other sister, Mabel Dunning, of Tennessee, was unable to be present.

Among the many gifts and cards he received was a money tree decorated with dollar bills.

Table decorateions were floral pieces sent by friends, and three cakes served as centerpieces, one each trimmed in blue, pink and yellow. The table was covered with a handsome crocheted cloth which Mrs. Smith started in 1942.

The local couple thoroughly enjoyed greeting many old friends and neighbors, and expressed appreciation to all who helped make the occasion a success.

GOP Council Will Protest Bible Ruling

Pocono Pines — Members of the Top of the Mountain Council of Republican Women were unanimously opposed to the ruling handed down by the Supreme Court declaring prayer and Bible reading in the schools as unconstitutional.

At the meeting held at the Naomi Lake Boathouse members were requested to write to their Congressmen and President Kennedy to voice their protests. Mrs. Dora C. Field presided.

Also discussed at the meeting was the proposed revision of the State Constitution, discussed by the legislative chairman, Mrs. Alice Shotwell, and Mrs. Mervin Fontanella, council advisors. Pointing out the two ways in which the Constitution could be revised, by constitutional convention or by amendment, they said that a vote in November against the constitutional convention would not necessarily be a vote against revision.

Mrs. George Kerrick was selected as representative of the council serving as observer at the Republican meeting which selected a candidate for the House of Representatives.

Plans were made for a bake sale on Saturday, July 27 at the Blakeslee Community House with Mrs. George Kerrick as chairman. Mrs. Ronald Davis reported on the success of the spaghetti supper and white elephant sale of which she was chairman.

The next meeting will be held in September. Mrs. Harry Eberhart, hostess, served refreshments to: Mrs. Claude Baxter, Mrs. Lenore Baxter, Mrs. Claude Bush, Mrs. John Bush, Mrs. Ronald Davis, Mrs. Dora Field, Mrs. Mervin Fontanella, Mrs. Richard Keiper, Mrs. George Kerrick, Mrs. Howard Kerrick, Mrs. Ernest Lewis, Mrs. Irene Malsc, Mrs. Franklin Miller, Mrs. Rudolp Montbellier, Mrs. George Murphy, Mrs. Raymond Newhart, Mrs. Robert Newhart, Mrs. John Ratliff, Mrs. Andrew Runewicz, Mrs. Alice Shotwell, Mrs. James Waygood, Mrs. Chester Woehrle, Mrs. Harold Woehrle and Miss Wendy Woehrle.

You Should Have Had Fun All Along

By Dr. Joseph Peck

Thoreau described you people in your 40's and 50's perfectly when he compared the tax-paying public to a cow that everybody milked and nobody fed.

Your government, the backward nations of the world, those over 65 and your offspring, all of them are nursing industriously. Besides giving all this milk you are supposed to support every wildeyed drive for funds for this and that and to store up enough fat to help you live on social security once you get old enough to quit lactating.

You're too old for scholarships, too young for social security benefits and not likely to get a job if one is needed.

You are in one heck of a spot, and I hereby promise to pass on every bit of advice I know of to help you out of it.

You must size yourself and begin preparing for the long days when you will be footloose and fancy free. I get cold chills along my spine when I think of my own preparation for my Golden Years of farming. I took five lessons in milking a cow two weeks before moving to my farm and purchasing the critter.

If I can convince just one man that now is the time to begin preparing for his later life, this writing will not have been a waste of time. If you are 45, get on with that self-analysis tonight, and if 50 do it this very minute. Tomorrow start hunting the courses that will teach you what you need to know.

I want to talk to you also about those things that can consume a man's spirit and make it impossible for him to be happy.

Let us begin by recognizing that there are two of you. First, the man you see in the mirror. Then that other you that dwells deep within your personality and of which your associates catch only occasional glimpses. He is the savage, a descendant from the original Adam, or rather Cain, whom you would shun like the plague if you were to meet him face to face.

You may have done nothing very wrong, but don't kid yourself that you are any better or worse than the rest of humanity. Unless you have done somebody a great harm, forget your guilt and try in the future to avoid temptation instead of resisting it; you are more sure of success that way.

And for your own peace of mind, do not be a hypocrite and condemn other people for acts of which you have the good fortune to be guiltless yourself. One's mental attitude has a great bearing upon the success of his Harvest Years.

The next great stumbling block to a serene old age is envy and a desire for status. Get the idea out of your head that somebody is happier than you are just because he makes a bigger show. His wealth and affluence are probably just a cover for his own anxiety.

The only truly happy people are those who have dismissed the world from their thoughts and are cared for in insane asylums. By long self-training you can approach that state of tranquility and still keep your reason, but you have to work at it every day of your life.

Don't envy the guy who seems more favored by fortune than yourself, and don't ever put on a front by trying to appear better, smarter or richer than you really are. You may think you are getting away with it, but somebody will see through your makeup and either laugh at or feel sorry for you. I had some pretty embarrassing moments in my life before I got that simple idea into my little noggin. Today I would not trade my little rocky hillside for the best mansion in Hyannisport.

That is the state of mind you have to achieve if you are going to have any contentment during your golden years of retirement. Moreover, to complete your conversion to the simple life you must win over your helpmeet to the same way of thinking as regards competition and status. It can be done.

The next thing to weed out of your brain is the idea money will assure you a more pleasant retirement. You can be just as lonesome and feel just as frustrated in an expensive beach hotel as in a motel out on the edge of town; even more so, because in the motel you do not have the guilty feeling this $40 could have been put to a better use than paying for one night's sleep.

Another advantage of being in the low income rackets is that you miss the hopeless feeling experienced by the rich retiree every April 15. Before paying his income tax he struggled for weeks with his conscience—whether to come clean or to hold back enough to keep him from landing in the poorhouse and risk a term in jail. Ten years in Leavenworth or Old Age Assistance: what a choice confronts him.

A man may look upon his children as his treasure and his mainstay, but if he is to live his last years serenely and die without bitterness, he must recognize and accept the fact that his children are no longer his once they are physically mature enough to reproduce their kind. Once they learn to fly, we become as useless and forgotten as the nest the little birds were raised in.

As a freshman medical student I worked during one vacation in a hospital for the insane, and there I made the startling discovery that most of the patients were oldsters who seemed not half so crazy as my fellows and I were. Experienced attendants assured me that all such institutions were populated the same way and that the old folks were there because the kids got tired of waiting for them to get out of the road.

Furthermore, our President is insisting that social security bear all the burdens of illness among oldsters. If this becomes law, it will destroy the last tie of responsibility between aging parents and their offspring. The only obligations left for the kids will be to split up the residue of the estate after the government, the state and the lawyers get their shares and to send flowers to the funeral.

The worst part of these welfare schemes is that in removing all sense of responsibility from the children, love and respect wither too.

Let's talk Fashion

With the biggest wedding weekend of the year coming up, maybe now we can begin to turn our thoughts from the four-tiered wedding cakes to the two-layer look we'll be sporting at the poolside. With real summer weather ahead, maybe we can get out of those party duds and into our swimsuits, and their matching cover-ups.

Cole of California is making suits so becoming that everybody—well almost everybody—can look like a bathing beauty. There are demure skirted models in floral patterns, sophisticated numbers with blouson tops, pert little boy shorts—and, far away the most popular, the two-piece swim suits with bare mid-riffs that feel daring but with built-up tops that make them both modest and pretty.

Of course if you really like to live dangerously we've got one leopard print that comes close to being a bikini, and another that looks like black patent leather, zippers all the way down the front, and has practically no back at all.

For all of them, Cole has come out with coordinated bathing shifts and over-long overblouses in conversation-making prints for cover-up comfort and just plain looking pretty. Incidentally, they look equally well worn with shorts. Come in and relax, why don't you?

Just Between Us——

—By Bobby Westbrook

An interesting experiment for any foundation which doesn't know what to do with its money would be to finance a trip to one given spot by ten different people, and then compare their accounts of the experience. Like the blind men describing elephant, I'll bet nobody could tell they'd been to the same place.

Of course, Palm Beach, Fla. and Banff, Alberta could scarcely be more different, but the letter I got from friends in both places were so typical that I wonder how they would react if the places were reversed.

Dottie and Elwood Grant are taking a month's vacation in the Northwest, including the Trans Canada Highway, visiting the national parks. There's still plenty of snow in Alberta, Dottie reported, but they've seen Alpine wildflowers including the snow lilies and yellow mountain lilies.

Cynthia Watt in a nice long newsy letter from their new home in Palm Beach is full of the social life there which she finds not much different than Stroudsburgs busy days except its a little more informal and casual. Strangers invited for a cocktail party may arrive all gussied up and find everyone else in shorts, for instance.

One thing she thinks we could use is the 10:30 a.m. coffee: for committee meetings, and just plain entertaining, less expensive than luncheons and less time-consuming, too. Coffee-fruit you can eat by hand, and miniature pastry and rolls—and home before the children get out of school.

She's getting quite interested in the Junior Museum, too, but is also keeping close track on you "home folks," too.

P. S. To any interested foundation: I'll be one of the ten for almost anywhere.

Community Celebration For Charles D. Smith, 80

South Sterling—Two very special events have highlighted the June calendar at the Charles D. Smith home in South Sterling.

The first was the open house which marked Mr. Smith's 80th birthday recently. The second is attendance this weekend at the Indian Encampment at Wyalusing Rocks.

Charles D. Smith was born in Panther, Pike County, the son of Charles Edward and Theresa Stark Smith. The elder Smith was also born in this area, in South Sterling.

Charles D. Smith attended school in Dreher Township, the forerunner of the present Southern Wayne School of the Wallenpaupack Jointure. He was occupied at lumbering, and several other jobs, but his main work has been farming.

A member of the Newfoundland Moravian Church, and Ladies of Paupack Rebekah Lodge 339 of Newfoundland, he was a charter member of the Greene-Dreher Fire Company and an active member for many years. He served as president of the Greene-Dreher-Sterling Community Fair Association for 20 years, following the first president, Dr. Arthur Simons, in the post.

There were 180 friends and relatives who honored the local man at the open house, including his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Evans and his great-grandchildren, Debbie, Donna and Tammy Mabe, all of Charlotte, North Carolina; his granddaughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Ike W. Straughn, and great-grandchildren Cliff and Allison, of Winston-Salem, North Carolina; and his sister, Hazel Fahey and nephew, John Fahey, Tobyhanna. His other sister, Mabel Dunning, of Tennessee, was unable to be present.

Among the many gifts and cards he received was a money tree decorated with dollar bills.

Table decorations were floral pieces sent by friends, and three cakes served as centerpieces, one each trimmed in blue, pink and yellow. The table was covered with a handsome crocheted cloth which Mrs. Smith started in 1942.

The local couple thoroughly enjoyed greeting many old friends and neighbors, and expressed appreciation to all who helped make the occasion a success.

GOP Council Will Protest Bible Ruling

Pocono Pines — Members of the Top of the Mountain Council of Republican Women were unanimously opposed to the ruling handed down by the Supreme Court declaring prayer and Bible reading in the schools as unconstitutional.

At the meeting held at the Naomi Lake Boathouse members were requested to write to their Congressmen and President Kennedy to voice their protests. Mrs. Dora C. Field presided.

Also discussed at the meeting was the proposed revision of the State Constitution, discussed by the legislative chairman, Mrs. Alice Shotwell, and Mrs. Mervin Fontanella, council advisors. Pointing out the two ways in which the Constitution could be revised, by constitutional convention or by amendment, they said that a vote in November against the constitutional convention would not necessarily be a vote against revision.

Mrs. George Kerrick was selected as representative of the council serving as observer at the Republican meeting which selected a candidate for the House of Representatives.

Plans were made for a bake sale on Saturday, July 27 at the Blakeslee Community House with Mrs. George Kerrick as chairman. Mrs. Ronald Davis reported on the success of the spaghetti supper and white elephant sale of which she was chairman.

The next meeting will be held in September. Mrs. Harry Eberhart, hostess, served refreshments to: Ms. Claude Baxter, Mrs. Lenore Baxter, Mrs. Claude Bush, Mrs. John Bush, Mrs. Ronald Davis, Mrs. Dora Field, Mrs. Mervin Fontanella, Mrs. Richard Keiper, Mrs. George Kerrick, Mrs. Howard Kerrick, Mrs. Ernest Lewis, Mrs. Irene Malsc, Mrs. Franklin Miller, Mrs. Rudolp Montbellier, Mrs. George Murphy, Mrs. Raymond Newhart, Mrs. Robert Newhart, Mrs. John Ratliff, Mrs. Andrew Runewicz, Mrs. Alice Shotwell, Mrs. James Waygood, Mrs. Chester Woehrle, Mrs. Harold Woehrle and Miss Wendy Woehrle.

You Should Have Had Fun All Along

By Dr. Joseph Peck

Thoreau described you people in your 40's and 50's perfectly when he compared the tax-paying public to a cow that everybody milked and nobody fed.

Your government, the backward nations of the world, those over 65 and your offspring, all of them are nursing industriously. Besides giving all this milk you are supposed to support every wildeyed drive for funds for this and that and to store up enough fat to help you live on social security once you get old enough to quit lactating.

You're too old for scholarships, too young for social security benefits and not likely to get a job if one is needed.

You are in one heck of a spot, and I hereby promise to pass on every bit of advice I know of to help you out of it.

You must stir yourself and begin preparing for the long days when you will be footloose and fancy free. I get cold chills along my spine when I think of my own preparation for my Golden Years of farming. I took five lessons in milking a cow two weeks before moving to my farm and purchasing the critter.

If I can convince just one man that now is the time to begin preparing for his later life, this writing will not have been a waste of time. If you are 45, get on with that self-analysis tonight, and if 50 do it this very minute. Tomorrow start hunting the courses that will teach you what you need to know.

I want to talk to you also about those things that can consume a man's spirit and make it impossible for him to be happy.

Let us begin by recognizing that there are two of you. First, the man you see in the mirror. Then that other you that dwells deep within your personality and of which your associates catch only occasional glimpses. He is the savage, a descendant from the original Adam, or rather Cain, whom you would shun like the plague if you were to meet him face to face.

You may have done nothing very wrong, but don't kid yourself that you are any better or worse than the rest of humanity. Unless you have done somebody a great harm, forget your guilt and try in the future to avoid temptation instead of resisting it; you are more sure of success that way.

And for your own peace of mind, do not be a hypocrite and condemn other people for acts of which you have the good fortune to be guiltless yourself. One's mental attitude has a great bearing upon the success of his Harvest Years.

The next great stumbling block to a serene old age is envy and a desire for status. Get the idea out of your head that somebody is happier than you are just because he makes a bigger show. His wealth and affluence are probably just a cover for his own anxiety.

The only truly happy people are those who have dismissed the world from their thoughts and are cared for in insane asylums. By long self-training you can approach that state of tranquility and still keep your reason, but you have to work at it every day of your life.

Don't envy the guy who seems more favored by fortune than yourself, and don't ever put on a front by trying to appear better, smarter or richer than you really are. You may think you are getting away with it, but somebody will see through your makeup and either laugh at or feel sorry for you. I had some pretty embarrassing moments in my life before I got that simple idea into my little noggin. Today I would not trade my little rocky hillside for the best mansion in Hyannisport.

That is the state of mind you have to achieve if you are going to have any contentment during your golden years of retirement. Moreover, to complete your conversion to the simple life you must win over your helpmeet to the same way of thinking as regards competition and status. It can be done.

The next thing to weed out of your brain is the idea money will assure you a more pleasant retirement. You can be just as lonesome and feel just as frustrated in an expensive beach hotel as in a motel out on the edge of town; even more so, because in the motel you do not have the guilty feeling this $40 could have been put to a better use than paying for one night's sleep.

Another advantage of being in the low income rackets is that you miss the hopeless feeling experienced by the rich retiree every April 15. Before paying his income tax he struggled for weeks with his consicience—whether to come clean or to hold back enough to keep him from landing in the poorhouse and risk a term in jail. Ten years in Leavenworth or Old Age Assistance; what a choice confronts him.

A man may look upon his children as his treasure and his mainstay, but if he is to live his last years serenely and die without bitterness, he must recognize and accept the fact that his children are no longer his once they are physically mature enough to reproduce their kind. Once they learn to fly, we become as useless and forgotten as the nest the little birds were raised in.

As a freshman medical student I worked during one vacation in a hospital for the insane, and there I made the startling discovery that most of the patients were oldsters who seemed not half so crazy as my fellows and I were. Experienced attendants assured me that all such institutions were populated the same way and that the old folks were there because the kids got tired of waiting for them to get out of the road.

Furthermore, our President is insisting that social security bear all the burdens of illness among oldsters. If this becomes law, it will dastroy the last tie of responsibility between aging parents and their offspring. The only obligations left for the kids will be to split up the residue of the estate after the government, the state and the lawyers get their shares and to send flowers to the funeral.

The worst part of these welfare schemes is that in removing all sense of responsibility from the children, love and respect wither too.

Mets Top Yanks Late Baseball

NEW York (AP)—An inspired Mets team, leaving its bag of errors outside the ball park along with a pile of banned signs, mauled the mighty Yankees 6-2 Thursday night in an all-New York exhibition baseball game for the benefit of the sandlots.

A lugeless, placardless firecracker throwing crowd of 50,742, cheering all things Mets and jeering all things Yankee, watched with joy as the world champions wound up splitting a day-night doubleheader with the inept of both major leagues.

Obscure Club Pro Takes Open Lead

Associated Press Sports Writer

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP)—An obscure, middle-aged club pro from Michigan, Bob Gajda, took the first-round lead in the National Open Golf Championship with a 2-under-par 69 Thursday and a cascade of bogeys chilled the hopes of defender Jack Nicklaus, who scrambled to a 76.

Ice cold putters also blunted the bids of the other two members of the game's Big Three. Favorite Arnold Palmer, sinking only one big putt, fired a 73 and South Africa's Gary Player missed four putts of under four feet for a 74.

Gusty winds and occasional rain added to the natural hazards of the historic old course of The Country Club and sent scores skyrocketing. Not in recent years has there been such a rash of opening 80s and over.

Two Break Par

Only two players — Gajda and Jacky Cupit, who shot a 70—were able to break the 35-36—71 par of the tough, 6,870-yard course where Francis Ouimet, a 20-year-old caddy, beat the great British stars Harry Vardon and Ted Ray 50 years ago.

There were four players at even par 71—Julius Boros; Tony Lema; Lionel Hebert, ex-PGA champion, and 28-year-old Davis Love Jr.—and others went on from there, mostly into the middle and high 70s and 80s.

Lema, handsome young star from San Leandro, Calif., who has been dogging the footsteps of the Big Three, sank spectacular birdie putts of 35 and 25 feet on the final two holes. Love, out in 32, and Boros, with a front nine of 33, both weakened on the treacherous incoming stretch which has been termed "Satan's Stretch."

Nicklaus, reigning Open and Masters champion and at 23 the game's leading money winner for the year, had the sort of round that probably will give him nightmares for years.

Hits Bogeys

He started with three straight bogeys—snap hooking his second on one hole and barely moving the ball out of the rough on two others—and then took a fat, double bogey six at the frightening, 445-yard 11th hole.

There, after driving into the rough, he put his second just over the water fronting the green onto the embankment, chipped on and three-putted. He got his first birdie at the 15th.

Palmer, his private army comprising the bulk of the 15,849 opening day attendance, sank only one man-sized putt — a 15-footer for a birdie at the 12th — and missed a half dozen which just rimmed the cup.

"I was satisfied with the way I was playing," Palmer, who came off a month's layoff to win the Thunderbird Classic a week ago, commented afterward. "I missed only three fairways and only three greens. But I couldn't make a putt."

Gajda, a tall, loose-jointed bachelor who says "I've never won anything," pieced together a steady round which included only one bogey and three birdies. All of the birdies, surprisingly, came on the harder back nine.

After playing the first 11 holes exactly with the card, he bogeyed the uphill, blind 12th after chipping too strong and then nailed birdies on three of the five finishing holes. He sank a 20-foot putt at the 14th, a 30-footer at the 16th and a 10-footer at the 17th.

Yankees Win, White Sox Bow

Senators Clipped

NEW YORK (AP)—Bobby Richardson slammed a double off Reliefer Jim Coates in the ninth inning Thursday, scoring two runs and giving the New York Yankees a 5-4 victory over the Washington Senators and running their victory streak to seven.

Richardson's blast to right center field scored Hector Lopez and Tony Kubek who had singled.

The Yankees, trailing 4-2 going into the eighth, made it 4-3 when with the bases loaded John Blanchard worked Coates for a walk, forcing in Richardson.

Marshall Bridges, who came in to relieve Al Downing, was the winning pitcher and Coates was the loser.

Twins Trim Chi

ST. PAUL-MINNEAPOLIS (AP) Zoilo Versalles' triple with the bases loaded was the big blow of a five-run splurge in the fifth inning as the Minnesota Twins walloped the Chicago White Sox 9-4 Thursday.

Harmon Killebrew hit his 13th homer to start off the spree in the fifth and Earl Battey clubbed his 15th home run for Minnesota in the seventh.

Dave DeBusschere, who had relieved Johnny Buzhardt in the fourth inning, and Frank Baumann, were victimized by the Twins in the fifth.

After Killebrew's leadoff homer, a walk, single and sacrifice put runners on second and third. Baumann replaced DeBusschere and walked Rich Rollins purposely and Bernie Allen unintentionally to force in a run.

Buzhardt, DeBusschere (4), Baumann (5), Wilhelm (6), Fisher (8) and Lollar; Kaat, Diley (6) and Battey. W—Kaat 6-6. L—Buzhardt 8-3.

Sweep Detroit

BOSTON (AP)—Home runs by Dick Stuart and Chuck Schilling powered the Boston Red Sox to an 8-3 victory and a sweep of their three-game series with the Detroit Tigers Thursday.

Stuart's 17th home run of the season, driving in his 43rd run, ignited the Red Sox' five-run rally in the fourth. A walk, a fielder's choice ground ball and a single by Russ Nixon set the stage for pitcher Arnold Earley's two-run double. Schilling then hit his fifth home run of the campaign.

Detroit pitcher Jim Bunning, suffering his seventh setback in 11 decisions, hit the next batter, Roman Mejias, with a pitch. He was fined $50 on the spot by umpire Hank Soar for deliverately throwing at a batter.

Cubs Blank Colts

CHICAGO (AP) — Billy Williams' two homers, both hit into the teeth of a 24-mile-per-hour wind blowing in off Lake Michigan, triggered the Chicago Cubs' 5-0 victory over Houston Thursday.

Williams stroked his first homer into the right field seats in the first to give winner Larry Jackson a 1-0 lead. The Chicago left fielder then extended his newest hot hitting skein to 14 hits in the last 23 times at bat by blasting his second homer of the game in the fifth.

Don Landrum, who bunted for a single, scored ahead of Williams' even longer drive into the right field seats this trip. The homers were Williams' ninth and tenth of the season.

Braves Win

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Denny Lemaster won his own game with a home run off Harvey Haddix in the eighth inning as the Milwaukee Braves scored a 2-1 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates Thursday.

The homer was the second of his major league career and also the second in his last two starts.

Lemaster, who had won only two games previously despite a 2.06 earned run average, held the Pirates to five hits.

Haddix, who worked only the eighth, was the third Pittsburgh pitcher. Don Schwall started and had a one-hit shutout going when a pulled back muscle forced him to retire with one out in the sixth. Tom Sisk replaced Schwall and Eddie Mathews hit his second pitch for a home run.

380 Athletes Set For AAU Meet Today At St. Louis

Associated Press Sports Writer

ST. LOUIS (AP)—About 380 of America's top track and field stars will try to cut a record-breaking swath Friday in the National AAU meet, a controversial event this year which already has involved President Kennedy and Gen. of the Army Douglas MacArthur.

In the midst of a bitter, still raging athletic feud between the AAU and the NCAA-backed Track and Field Federation (USTFF), peace should reign long enough for the likely smashing of perhaps four world records. The two-day meet also will produce the U.S. squad which meets Russia in a Moscow duel July 20-21.

The first two American place winners in each of 19 events will get the Moscow call.

MacArthur, 83, assigned by President Kennedy to arbitrate the marathon power hassle, issued a stern cease-fire order June 7. Only because of it will about 200 collegians mingle with post-graduate stars in the meet.

Open Friday

The AAU meet opens Friday with finals in seven events, including the 100-yard dash which matches such potential world record breakers as defending champion Bob Hayes of Florida A&M and Arizona State's meteoric Henry Carr.

Another Friday final is the pole vault in which 11 16-foot vaulters are entered. The event may tee off at an unusual starting height of 15-4.

The defending vault champion, Ron Morris, may be lost in a crowd including Brian Sternberg, who owns a pending world mark of 16-8; John Pennell of Northeastern Louisiana State, and C. K. Yang's decathlon world record holder.

Other first-day finals on a rubberized track which should prove advantageous in the sprints, if not the distance events, include the 120 high hurdles and six-mile run, plus three field events—the javelin, broad jump and shot put.

The latter two events find two 1962 champions, Ralph Boston and Gary Gubner, in tough title defenses. Challenging Boston is the University of Washington's Phil Shinnick, who recently had a world record bid of 27-4 in the broad jump erased because officials didn't know the wind velocity.

Wyatt Is Fired At Tennessee

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Bowden Wyatt was fired as Tennessee's head football coach Thursday and Jim McDonald, one of his assistants, was hired immediately to replace him.

The University's board of trustees also appointed Bob Woodruff, former Florida and Baylor coach and also a member of Wyatt's staff, as athletic director. Woodruff fills a vacancy left by the death of Gen. Robert R. Neyland in March 1962.

The trustees voted to pay Wyatt's salary of $18,000 a year through June 30, 1964, and fixed Woodruff's pay at $16,000 and McDonald's at $15,000.

Ice Cold Putters

Obscure Club Pro Takes Open Lead

Associated Press Sports Writer

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP)—An obscure, middle-aged club pro from Michigan, Bob Gajda, took the first-round lead in the National Open Golf Championship with a 2-under-par 69 Thursday and a cascade of bogeys chilled the hopes of defender Jack Nicklaus, who scrambled to a 76.

Ice cold putters also blunted the bids of the other two members of the game's Big Three. Favorite Arnold Palmer, sinking only one big putt, fired a 73 and South Africa's Gary Player missed four putts of under four feet for a 74.

Gusty winds and occasional rain added to the natural hazards of the historic old course of The Country Club and sent scores skyrocketing. Not in recent years has there been such a rash of opening 80s and over.

Two Break Par

Only two players — Gajda and Jacky Cupit, who shot a 70—were able to break the 35-36—71 par of the tough, 6,870-yard course where Francis Ouimet, a 20-year-old caddy, beat the great British stars Harry Vardon and Ted Ray 50 years ago.

There were four players at even par 71—Julius Boros; Tony Lema; Lionel Hebert, ex-PGA champion, and 28-year-old Davis Love Jr.—and others went on from there, mostly into the middle and high 70s and 80s.

Lema, handsome young star from San Leandro, Calif., who has been dogging the footsteps of the Big Three, sank spectacular birdie putts of 35 and 25 feet on the final two holes. Love, out in 32, and Boros, with a front nine of 33, both weakened on the treacherous incoming stretch which has been termed "Satan's Stretch."

Nicklaus, reigning Open and Masters champion and at 23 the game's leading money winner for the year, had the sort of round that probably will give him nightmares for years.

Hits Bogeys

He started with three straight bogeys—snap hooking his second on one hole and barely moving the ball out of the rough on two others—and then took a fat, double bogey six at the frightening, 445-yard 11th hole.

There, after driving into the rough, he put his second just over the water fronting the green onto the embankment, chipped on and three-putted. He got his first birdie at the 15th.

Palmer, his private army comprising the bulk of the 15,849 opening day attendance, sank only one man-sized putt — a 15-footer for a birdie at the 12th — and missed a half dozen which just rimmed the cup.

"I was satisfied with the way I was playing," Palmer, who came off a month's layoff to win the Thunderbird Classic a week ago, commented afterward. "I missed only three fairways and only three greens. But I couldn't make a putt."

Gajda, a tall, loose-jointed bachelor who says "I've never won anything," pieced together a steady round which included only one bogey and three birdies. All of the birdies, surprisingly, came on the harder back nine.

After playing the first 11 holes exactly with the card, he bogeyed the uphill, blind 12th after chipping too strong and then nailed birdies on three of the five finishing holes. He sank a 20-foot putt at the 14th, a 30-footer at the 16th and a 10-footer at the 17th.

Yankees Win, White Sox Bow

Senators Clipped

NEW YORK (AP)—Bobby Richardson slammed a double off Reliefer Jim Coates in the ninth inning Thursday, scoring two runs and giving the New York Yankees a 5-4 victory over the Washington Senators and running their victory streak to seven.

Richardson's blast to right center field scored Hector Lopez and Tony Kubek who had singled.

The Yankees, trailing 4-2 going into the eighth, made it 4-3 when with the bases loaded John Blanchard worked Coates for a walk, forcing in Richardson.

Marshall Bridges, who came in to relieve Al Downing, was the winning pitcher and Coates was the loser.

Twins Trim Chi

ST. PAUL-MINNEAPOLIS (AP) Zoilo Versalles' triple with the bases loaded was the big blow of a five-run splurge in the fifth inning as the Minnesota Twins walloped the Chicago White Sox 9-4 Thursday.

Harmon Killebrew hit his 13th homer to start off the spree in the fifth and Earl Battey clubbed his 15th home run for Minnesota in the seventh.

Dave DeBusschere, who had relieved Johnny Buzhardt in the fourth inning, and Frank Baumann, were victimized by the Twins in the fifth.

After Killebrew's leadoff homer, a walk, single and sacrifice put runners on second and third. Baumann replaced DeBusschere and walked Rich Rollins purposely and Bernie Allen unintentionally to force in a run.

Buzhardt, DeBusschere (4), Baumann (5), Wilhelm (6), Fisher (8) and Lollar; Kaat, Diley (6) and Battey. W—Kaat 6-6. L—Buzhardt 8-3.

Home run—Chicago, Ward (8). Minnesota, Killebrew (13), Battey (15).

Sweep Detroit

BOSTON (AP)—Home runs by Dick Stuart and Chuck Schilling powered the Boston Red Sox to an 8-3 victory and a sweep of their three-game series with the Detroit Tigers Thursday.

Stuart's 17th home run of the season, driving in his 43rd run, ignited the Red Sox' five-run rally in the fourth. A walk, a fielder's choice ground ball and a single by Russ Nixon set the stage for pitcher Arnold Earley's two-run double. Schilling then hit his fifth home run of the campaign.

Detroit pitcher Jim Bunning, suffering his seventh setback in 11 decisions, hit the next batter, Roman Mejias, with a pitch. He was fined $50 on the spot by umpire Hank Soar for deliverately throwing at a batter.

Cubs Blank Colts

CHICAGO (AP) — Billy Williams' two homers, both hit into the teeth of a 24-mile-per-hour wind blowing in off Lake Michigan, triggered the Chicago Cubs' 5-0 victory over Houston Thursday.

Williams stroked his first homer into the right field seats in the first to give winner Larry Jackson a 1-0 lead. The Chicago left fielder then extended his newest hot hitting skein to 14 hits in the last 23 times at bat by blasting his second homer of the game in the fifth.

Don Landrum, who bunted for a single, scored ahead of Williams' even longer drive into the right field seats this trip. The homers were Williams' ninth and tenth of the season.

Braves Win

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Denny Lemaster won his own game with a home run off Harvey Haddix in the eighth inning as the Milwaukee Braves scored a 2-1 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates Thursday.

The homer was the second of his major league career and also the second in his last two starts.

Lemaster, who had won only two games previously despite a 2.06 earned run average, held the Pirates to five hits.

Haddix, who worked only the eighth, was the third Pittsburgh pitcher. Don Schwall started and had a one-hit shutout going when a pulled back muscle forced him to retire with one out in the sixth. Tom Sisk replaced Schwall and Eddie Mathews hit his second pitch for a home run.

Mets Top Yanks Late Baseball

NEW York (AP)—An inspired Mets team, leaving its bag of errors outside the ball park along with a pile of banned signs, mauled the mighty Yankees 6-2 Thursday night in an all-New York exhibition baseball game for the benefit of the sandlots.

A bugleless, placardless firecracker throwing crowd of 50,742, cheering all things Mets and jeering all things Yankee, watched with joy as the world champions wound up splitting a day-night doubleheader with the inept of both major leagues.

380 Athletes Set For AAU Meet Today At St. Louis

Associated Press Sports Writer

ST. LOUIS (AP)—About 380 of America's top track and field stars will try to cut a record-breaking swath Friday in the National AAU meet, a controversial event this year which already has involved President Kennedy and Gen. of the Army Douglas MacArthur.

In the midst of a bitter, still raging athletic feud between the AAU and the NCAA-backed Track and Field Federation (USTFF), peace should reign long enough for the likely smashing of perhaps four world records. The two-day meet also will produce the U.S. squad which meets Russia in a Moscow duel July 20-21.

The first two American place winners in each of 19 events will get the Moscow call.

MacArthur, 83, assigned by President Kennedy to arbitrate the marathon power hassle, issued a stern cease-fire order June 7. Only because of it will about 200 collegians mingle with post-graduate stars in the meet.

Open Friday

The AAU meet opens Friday with finals in seven events, including the 100-yard dash which matches such potential world record breakers as defending champion Bob Hayes of Florida A&M and Arizona State's meteoric Henry Carr.

Another Friday final is the pole vault in which 11 16-foot vaulters are entered. The event may tee off at an unusual starting height of 15-4.

The defending vault champion, Ron Morris, may be lost in a crowd including Brian Sternberg, who owns a pending world mark of 16-8; John Pennell of Northeastern Louisiana State, and C. K. Yang's decathlon world record holder.

Other first-day finals on a rubberized track which should prove advantageous in the sprints, if not the distance events, include the 120 high hurdles and six-mile run, plus three field events—the javelin, broad jump and shot put.

The latter two events find two 1962 champions, Ralph Boston and Gary Gubner, in tough title defenses. Challenging Boston is the University of Washington's Phil Shinnick, who recently had a world record bid of 27-4 in the broad jump erased because officials didn't know the wind velocity.

Wyatt Is Fired At Tennessee

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Bowden Wyatt was fired as Tennessee's head football coach Thursday and Jim McDonald, one of his assistants, was hired immediately to replace him.

The University's board of trustees also appointed Bob Woodruff, former Florida and Baylor coach and also a member of Wyatt's staff, as athletic director. Woodruff fills a vacancy left by the death of Gen. Robert R. Neyland in March 1962.

The trustees voted to pay Wyatt's salary of $18,000 a year through June 30, 1964, and fixed Woodruff's pay at $16,000 and McDonald's at $15,000.

The Daily Investor

Variance In Stock Prices

By William A. Doyle

Q. When the stocks of Mary Carter Paint Co. were traded in the over-the-counter market, the common stock and the Class A stock were quoted at almost equal prices. The common was seldom more than one-quarter of a point (25 cents a share) higher than the Class A stock.

Now that these stocks are listed on the American Stock Exchange, the common stock is usually about two points ($2 a share) higher than the Class A stock. Why? Is this some kind of a jiggle on that stock exchange?

A. No. (And, if I wanted to bring in another batch of screaming letters from dealers in the over-the-counter market, I might suggest that the opposite might be true.)

The price quotations of stocks traded on stock exchanges are the actual prices at which trading transactions took place. The trading price is the actual recorded price at which one person bought stock from another person.

In the over-the-counter market, quotations to the investing public are only "approximate." The "bid" price is the price near which you would hope to sell your stock. The "asked" price is the price near which you would hope to buy stock.

Now that Mary Carter Paint Co. stocks are listed on a stock exchange, the prices you see reported are actual trading prices.

The two classes of stock in this company are identical in all but one respect. The common stock is entitled to one vote per share in the election of directors and other corporate matters. The Class A stock is entitled to only 1/100th of a vote per share.

The voting rights of the common stock clearly have value — resulting in a higher market trading price for the common stock.

Q. I am considering selling some stock I bought more than six months ago — but less than one year ago. Under the present Federal tax rules, any profit I make would be taxed as a long-term capital gain. But Congress is now considering a change in the tax law, which could change the "holding period" so that stocks would have to be held at least one year in order for the profit to qualify as a long-term capital gain. What do you advise me to do — sell or hold?

A. You are asking the impossible, if you are asking me to guess what new tax bill will or won't be passed by both houses of Congress and signed into law by the President.

The proposals by the outriders of the New Frontier to change the tax rules are being kicked around in Congress. Some of those proposals have been kicked where they needed it most—right in the sitzplatz.

Just what changes (if any) in the tax code will finally become law is anybody's guess. Frankly, it would be more than slightly foolhardy to sell and/or buy stocks now on the basis of what changes you think may be made in the tax code.

But, if the stock you own is a good stock, why worry? Why don't you simply keep it?

Bible Quiz Team Wins

PEN ARGYL — The Monroe County YFC Bible quiz team defeated the Lehigh Valley YFC team at the youth-o-rama in the recreation building at Weona Park, Pen Argyl, recently.

In his message to the meeting, Rev. John Olexa told the audience that "As Christians we are to be ambassadors for Christ and our very manner and mode of living should be an indication of the fact that we are members of the family of God."

Other features of the program were songs by Kay and Karen Eyer, organ music by Jan and Jo Cunningham, and members by the youth choir.

Wife Of Pen Argyl Church Minister Gets AB Degree

PEN ARGYL — Mrs. Ann Sheesley, wife of Rev. Robert Sheesley, has been granted an A. B. degree from Taylor University, Upland, Indiana.

Rev. Sheesley, also a graduate of Taylor, is the pastor of the Zion Methodist Church in Pen Argyl, a post he has held for seven years.

Mrs. Sheesley taught music in the Bangor area schools from 1957 to 1961, and plans to return to the same position in the fall.

"I love to teach and I want to teach as long as I can," she said.

At Taylor Mrs. Sheesley majored in psychology and minored in music.

Mrs. Sheesley, mother of four children, said "I guess you just have to have an understanding husband," in reply to questions concerning the running of the home in her absence.

Daughters Renita, 16, and Ruth, 12, kept house for their father during the time of Mrs. Sheesley's attendance a Taylor. The other daughter, Roberta, 18, enrolled at Taylor as a freshman, and attended with her mother. Brother Robert, 14, lived in Upland and attended high school there.

Variance In Stock Prices

By William A. Doyle

Q. When the stocks of Mary Carter Paint Co. were traded in the over-the-counter market, the common stock and the Class A stock were quoted at almost equal prices. The common was seldom more than one-quarter of a point (25 cents a share) higher than the Class A stock.

Now that these stocks are listed on the American Stock Exchange, the common stock is usually about two points ($2 a share) higher than the Class A stock. Why? Is this some kind of a jiggle on that stock exchange?

A. No. (And, if I wanted to bring in another batch of screaming letters from dealers in the over-the-counter market, I might suggest that the opposite might be true.)

The price quotations of stocks traded on stock exchanges are the actual prices at which trading transactions took place. The trading price is the actual recorded price at which one person bought stock from another person.

In the over-the-counter market, quotations to the investing public are only "approximate." The "bid" price is the price near which you would hope to sell your stock. The "asked" price is the price near which you would hope to buy stock.

Now that Mary Carter Paint Co. stocks are listed on a stock exchange, the prices you see reported are actual trading prices.

The two classes of stock in this company are identical in all but one respect: The common stock is entitled to one vote per share in the election of directors and other corporate matters. The Class A stock is entitled to only 1/100th of a vote per share.

The voting rights of the common stock clearly have value — resulting in a higher market trading price for the common stock.

Q. I am considering selling some stock I bought more than six months ago — but less than one year ago. Under the present Federal tax rules, any profit I make would be taxed as a long-term capital gain. But Congress is now considering a change in the tax law, which could change the "holding period" so that stocks would have to be held at least one year in order for the profit to qualify as a long-term capital gain. What do you advise me to do — sell or hold?

A. You are asking the impossible, if you are asking me to guess what new tax bill will or won't be passed by both houses of Congress and signed into law by the President.

The proposals by the outriders of the New Frontier to change the tax rules are being kicked around in Congress. Some of those proposals have been kicked where they needed it most—right in the sitzplatz.

Just what changes (if any) in the tax code will finally become law is anybody's guess. Frankly, it would be more than slightly foolhardy to sell and/or buy stocks now on the basis of what changes you think may be made in the tax code.

But, if the stock you own is a good stock, why worry? Why don't you simply keep it?

Bible Quiz Team Wins

PEN ARGYL — The Monroe County YFC Bible quiz team defeated the Lehigh Valley YFC team at the youth-o-rama in the recreation building at Weona Park, Pen Argyl, recently.

In his message to the meeting, Rev. John Olexa told the audience that "As Christians we are to be ambassadors for Christ and our very manner and mode of living should be an indication of the fact that we are members of the family of God."

Other features of the program were songs by Kay and Karen Eyer, organ music by Jan and Jo Cunningham, and members by the youth choir.

Wife Of Pen Argyl Church Minister Gets AB Degree

PEN ARGYL — Mrs. Ann Sheesley, wife of Rev. Robert Sheesley, has been granted an A. B. degree from Taylor University, Upland, Indiana.

Rev. Sheesley, also a graduate of Taylor, is the pastor of the Zion Methodist Church in Pen Argyl, a post he has held for seven years.

Mrs. Sheesley taught music in the Bangor area schools from 1957 to 1961, and plans to return to the same position in the fall.

"I love to teach and I want to teach as long as I can," she said.

At Taylor Mrs. Sheesley majored in psychology and minored in music.

Mrs. Sheesley, mother of four children, said "I guess you just have to have an understanding husband," in reply to questions concerning the running of the home in her absence.

Daughters Renita, 16, and Ruth, 12, kept house for their father during the time of Mrs. Sheesley's attendance a Taylor. The other daughter, Roberta, 18, enrolled at Taylor as a freshman, and attended with her mother. Brother Robert, 14, lived in Upland and attended high school there.

WE'RE LOSING MONEY . . . BUT IT SURE IS FUN! HERE'S WHY!

Did you ever sell a lawnmower or a tractor? Gosh it's fun! Of course, our liberal trade-in allowances and fancy deals back-fire once in awhile, but it's still a thrill to deliver a quality unit to a satisfied customer.

HAROLD DOLL, our ace mower mechanic, likes to sell the "big jobs," so he really moves the tough and ready PANZER tractors.

PANZER
A MAN'S KIND OF TRACTOR
MAKES THE TOUGH JOBS EASY!

The Compact Tractor For Lawn and Garden

It's Tough! PANZER puts more muscle into every job! Features all-welded heavy steel frame, cast iron grill and front axle. Full size auto differential handles up to 15 times the power of the husky, hefty, 6 hp or 7 hp engine! Weighs in at 500 lbs. plus—with ground-hugging stability to take hills in stride.

Handles like a sports car—with positive action geared steering, 3-speeds-forward, Glidematic Drive. Instant forward and reverse at the flip of a lever. Independent rear wheel brakes let you "spin it" on a dime!

Get a No-Obligation Home Demonstration! See Why We Say: IF YOU WANT A TOY—BUY A TOY. IF YOU WANT A TRACTOR, BUY A PANZER!

25 Hard-Working Attachments

RAY ROBERTS . . . Now he's a real wild man on deals! His prices should get some kind of government support. He pushes the HOMKO line of riders, self propelled and push-type mowers.

22" Continental push-type finger-tip starter & controls. Reg. $99.95 $79.95

All Homko units have Life-time Guarantee Against Crankshaft Damage

JIM CANFIELD . . . Now he likes the Squire Applegate line of G.L.F. mowers. He's been with G.L.F. over 40 years and recognizes the economy and quality of these units.

18" push-type . . . rugged, all steel construction with a 4-cycle engine. Reg. $59.95 $49.95

WE'RE LOSING MONEY . . . BUT IT SURE IS FUN! HERE'S WHY!

Did you ever sell a lawnmower or a tractor? Gosh it's fun! Of course, our liberal trade-in allowances and fancy deals back-fire once in awhile, but it's still a thrill to deliver a quality unit to a satisfied customer.

HAROLD DOLL, our ace mower mechanic, likes to sell the "big jobs," so he really moves the tough and ready PANZER tractors.

RAY ROBERTS . . . Now he's a real wild man on deals! His prices should get some kind of government support. He pushes the HOMKO line of riders, self propelled and push-type mowers.

PANZER

A MAN'S KIND OF TRACTOR
MAKES THE TOUGH JOBS EASY!

The Compact Tractor For Lawn and Garden

It's Tough! PANZER puts more muscle into every job! Features all-welded heavy steel frame, cast iron grill and front axle. Full size auto differential handles up to 15 times the power of the husky, hefty, 6 hp or 7 hp engine! Weighs in at 500 lbs. plus—with ground-hugging stability to take hills in stride.
Handles like a sports car—with positive action geared steering, 3-speeds-forward, Glidematic Drive. Instant forward and reverse at the flip of a lever. Independent rear wheel brakes let you "spin it" on a dime!
Get a No-Obligation Home Demonstration! See Why We Say: IF YOU WANT A TOY—BUY A TOY. IF YOU WANT A TRACTOR, BUY A PANZER!

Ancient Trails Served The Poconos

THE HISTORY of the Poconos traveled down its roads, some of them dating back 300 years, some in the process of becoming the roads of tomorrow.

Over the Old Mine Road which followed an Indian trail down the Delaware River, Dutch colonists from New York settled in the area long before William Penn came to Philadelphia.

With Interstate Rt. 80, the new Penn-Can Highway and the Northeast Extension of the Pennsylvania Turnpike now intersecting in the Poconos, the area is rapidly becoming a suburb of New York and Philadelphia.

History On Roads

In the 300 years between the first road and the newest, down those roads have marched armies bent on revenge and Quakers seeking peaceful vacations; missionaries to the Indians like Van Zinzendorf and Brainerd, and roistering raftsmen and railroad builders.

They came on moccasined feet and horseback, by covered wagon and ox-drawn wains, by stage coach and Durham boats up the Delaware, by gines, by bus, by plane and by car.

Each new group changed the character of the country and were changed by it. Since 1800 these highways into the area have brought tourists in ever increasing numbers. A few years ago the bumper-to-bumper weekend traffic threatened visitors with spending their holiday in one gigantic traffic jam.

Four-Lane Highways

Now the new high-speed, four-lane highways have relieved the congestion. When the tentacles of superhighways reaching toward them are connected, tourists will be able to speed through the Poconos as if no mountain barriers had ever existed to preserve the area as a green oasis in the growing meglopolis of the Eastern Seaboard.

For the traveler who leaves the Turnpikes, Thruways and Shortways, however, it is still possible to travel on some of the oldest roads in the New World.

Old Mine Road

Oldest of these is the Old Mine Road which begins in Kingston, N.Y., and follows the Delaware River on the New Jersey side to the Pahaquarry copper mines opposite Shawnee-on-Delaware.

As early as 1645, the West Indies Company had correspondence about the copper found in the area, and a sample of ore sent over in 1657 is now in the National Museum of Holland.

Closed when the English conquered the Dutch in 1664, the copper mines have never again been profitably worked. However, the ancient road, built to reach them, brought other treasures into the area.

Down that road came the earliest settler in Monroe County, Nicholas DePui who established his homestead of 3,000 acres at Shawnee-on-Delaware in 1727. Further up the river, Andrew Dingman made a settlement on the Pennsylvania bank of the Delaware in 1735 and carved out a flat boat with a hand ax for the first ferry connecting with the Old Mine Road at Dingman's Ferry.

Early Inns

Along this road grew up what might be termed the first inns. As early as 1701 there are records of resting homes or "Vaugh Houses."

In the Van Campen Inn, built in 1750, John Adams stayed on his way on horseback to Congress. Near here Pulaski's frontier army camped while protecting the frontier. Just before the Battle of Trenton in 1776, General Gates' army marched down the Old Mine Road on its way to assist the armies of Washington.

Another army played an important role in building another early road through the Poconos. General Sullivan's army, sent by Washington following the Wyoming Massacre of 1778 to track down the Indian warriors traveled on the Sullivan Trail, whose historical markers still note his passage.

With a force of 2,500 men, he entered the Poconos at Wind Gap. Supplies were issued at Brinkers Mill (now Sciota); they marched to Learneds Tavern (now Tannersville) and from there crossed the wilderness area of the Poconos on a new military road to the Wyoming Valley.

THE SUPERHIGHWAYS that dot the area today are a far cry from the ancient trails used by the Indians and early settlers. A modern network of multi-lane roads criss-cross The Poconos area, but there are still pleasant country roads to enjoy a leisurely afternoon's drive and enjoy the beauty of nature.

Geologists Seek Prehistoric Relics

STROUDSBURG — Most visitors to the Poconos are content to enjoy the results of the geological convlusions which brought about the ancient land, one of the earliest land masses in North America. Enough for them the scenery, the air, the climate and the way the resorts in the Poconos have refined them.

However, even a beauty contestant, accustomed to be admired for her physical dimensions, may be flattered by an artist's appraisal of her good bone structure, and the Poconos may well simper when geologists say that they have "the most fossiliferous Marcellus in the state".

Generations of college field trips have taken back fossils by the busloads, but they are still so common that the Historical Society used them for place cards at its meeting five years ago. As a matter of fact, new Interstate 80, blasting through a mother lode of fossils laid down 2,500 million years ago, literally bridges a gap on coral from what used to be an ancient inland sea.

Ancient Sea

The sea is one which at times opened from the St. Lawrence and at others from the Gulf of Mexico and boasts both tropical and arctic waters: mollusks, snails and the chambered nautilus. In Hartman's Cave, there have been found fossils of musk ox and caribou from the north, and on a lower level evidence of sloths and peccaries from palmier days.

Mountains once higher than the Alps, have weathered down the Great Glaciers came, some of them almost a mile high, grinding their way through the area in the Fourth Ice Age. The last of the Great Glaciers, the Wisconsin Glacier, died in Monroe County 11,000 years ago.

Traces of their grinding passage can be seen in the "kettle hole" lakes, in the grooves on hard rock exposure near Bushkill, in the stria on the shale hillsides of Cherry Valley, the rounded hills or kames, formed of layers of pebbles from the melting glaciers in the middle of valleys.

Big Poconos An Island?

Big Pocono, or to use its formal name, Camelback Mountain, broods over the county like a benign Buddha. Its summit bears no glacial scratches and it may once have been an island in a sea of ice. Ironically, what the Great Glacier failed to do, modern man is doing. A complete bank of snow machines is being installed along its slope for the great new Camelback Ski Run scheduled to open in December.

The Delaware Water Gap itself, original geological wonder of the area and the first section to capitalize on the resort possibilities as early as 1820. Is still a subject of geological debate. Sweeping in a graceful curve from north to east, the river turns suddenly and cuts the Blue Ridge Range to its base and leaves its towering sides frowning down from an elevation which reaches 1,600 feet.

Early legends picture a lake in the level country north of the Water Gap. One mathematically-minded historian, writing in 1870, calculated that if the lake had suddenly broken through the mountain barrier, it would have released 8,451,600,000 cubic feet of water, sufficient to have drowned the whole township below it under five feet of water.

Opinions Vary

More modern geological opinion, however, holds that the Water Gap was not formed by a break-through but by a fault caused by the slippage of the earth's surface. Others contend with equal force that it was cut by the action of sand and gravel carried by the river. As evidence they cite the fact that the gorge has been getting deeper as the land itself has risen higher and higher.

Another outsize geological phenomenum is Boulder Field at Hickory Run State Park. A veritable "lake of rocks," Boulder Field is considered by geologists as an excellent example of "weathering in situ". The rocks are all of the same kind, not carried in but formed of the bedrock of the region.

Not so accessible, except with a guide and good high boots, is a still-living geological wonder; the Cranberry Bog Preserve at Tannersville. Once a glacial lake, it became covered with plant life, forming a carpet-like quaking bog over the water.

GEOLOGISTS, ranging from high school students to college professors, find a wealth of geologic information in the fossils embedded in the rock strata of The Poconos. The entire area was once a huge sea, and the remains of both Arctic and tropical animals are found here.

Realtors Say Many Visitors Seek Permanent Homes Here

THE demand for real estate for summer or vacation uses in this area faces an increase with each succeeding year, various members of the Pocono Mountains Real Estate Board reported recently.

The term summer cottage is inappropriate in this day and age, board members say, as Monroe County finds itself as the hub of the radius of many large near-by cities with easy access from their area to here.

The many present roads, to which will be added newer highways under construction, fill give the area a much larger potential population from which to draw future summer or permanent residents.

More and more summer property-owners, the board members say, are now using their cottages throughout the year, for fishing, hunting and winter sports. Many families are looking ahead to a long-range series of plans for vacations purely from an economic point of view.

Real estate, they have found, is a good hedge against inflation and at the same time the family can enjoy vacations and also acquire an equity in the property.

Good Sites

Many vacation-minded prospects look ahead to a place of future retirement when choosing a site.

Almost all prospects prefer to be located on a lake or stream, but there are still others who choose a secluded area. For the sportsman, there is a great attraction in being near the state-owned lands which are plentiful in our area.

Demands for such land come also from developers and various associations for camps and other recreational uses of their members.

In addition to having an ideal location, Monroe County also has its beauty spots and the climate is an attraction which brings back many a resort visitor.

Geologists Seek Prehistoric Relics

STROUDSBURG — Most visitors to the Poconos are content to enjoy the results of the geological convlusions which brought about the ancient land, one of the earliest land masses in North America. Enough for them the scenery, the air, the climate and the way the resorts in the Poconos have refined them.

However, even a beauty contestant, accustomed to be admired for her physical dimensions, may be flattered by an artist's appraisal of her good bone structure, and the Poconos may well simper when geologists say that they have "the most fossiliferous Marcellus in the state".

Generations of college field trips have taken back fossils by the busloads, but they are still so common that the Historical Society used them for place cards at its meeting five years ago. As a matter of fact, new Interstate 80, blasting through a mother lode of fossils laid down 2,500 million years ago, literally bridges a gap on coral from what used to be an ancient inland sea.

FISH stories and history are very much alike. They are told over and over again, but the difference is that history is backed with facts and these facts do not vary too greatly.

Fishing in Monroe County is really a pleasure. During the year the State Fish Commission stock trout in the streams for the sport and amusement of the angler, not to mention the delight the small children receive when they "tie into a big one."

The streams in the county offer a variety of types of fishing. The bait fisherman has his "holes," and the more skilled fly fisherman has his favorite spot. Then, too, there is the spinning fisherman. No matter what your type of fishing, there is a stream not too far from any spot in the county to "get a line wet."

Open Streams

Streams open to fishing in Monroe County are:

In Brodheads Creek one can catch brook and rainbow trout. The stream is open for ten miles from the mouth of the creek at the Delaware River upstream to Analomink.

There are seven tributaries to the Brodheads Creek, all good trout streams. They are the McMichaels Creek from Stroudsburg upstream three miles to the country club, by-pass the club, Hickory Valley and Pomeroy farms near Kellersville, then the creek is open for two and one-half miles to Sciota except Judge Rhodes' property.

The Pennsylvanian Appenzell Creek is another tributary where the trout fisherman can have a good day. It is open from Snydersville to Camp Akiba, a distance of seven miles.

Lake Creek is open for four miles from Saylorsburg upstream.

The Middle Branch of Brodheads Creek at Canadensis and upstream for three miles is open. Goose Pond Run from Canadensis upstream for two miles from the Candle Shop is also open.

Pocono Creek

Another tributary that abounds with trout is the Pocono Creek. This stream is open from Stroudsburg upstream for three miles to the Tanite Dam and then five and one-half miles upstream to Bartonsville except at the Wilkie property then on to State Game Lands 38.

Scotrun is also open to trout fishermen from Tannersville upstream for three miles to the Village of Scotrun.

Snow Hill Dam is a good place to catch your limit of rainbow trout. It is located in the Delaware District State Park. To get there travel north from Stroudsburg on Route 90 to Analomink then to Route 290 until you see the sign pointing to Snow Hill.

Big Bushkill Creek is a good water to catch brown trout. It is open from its mouth at the Delaware River upstream for nine miles except for small nursery water at Resica Falls.

"Fly fishing" is allowed in this area except for a distance of 200 yards on each side of the Boy Scout Camp here. This area is reached by traveling east on 209 to Marshalls Creek and then north on Route 402 to the scout camp.

Good For Browns

Devil's Hole Creek is also good water for brown trout. It is open for three miles, including the B. K. Williams property upstream to State Game Land 221. To travel here by car take Route 191 out of Stroudsburg or East Stroudsburg and go north to Paradise Valley and then bear left to Blackwell's Garage where a tourist information stand is located and further direction may be obtained.

Deep Lake on State Game Land 86 is another good spot to catch brook trout. Bait fish dead or alive are prohibited in this area. To travel here take Route 611 to Tannersville then bear left across Pocono Creek and then right on Legislative Route 45024. A quick stop at Gray's Garage in Tannersville will give you a chance for directions if the driver is in doubt.

The Lehigh River is a good place for the brown and rainbow fisherman. It is open for 12 miles from Stoddardsville to Route 611 crossing near Ellis Corners, Route 115 crossing at Stoddardsville. Route 940 at White Haven.

Tobyhanna Creek joins near Stoddardsville and is open for five miles from Tobyhanna, Route 611, to Warnertown, Route 940. It is also open for four miles from the ice company dam at Warnertown downstream to Pocono Lake Preserve. There are several other short sections open and a quick stop at any gas station on Route 940 or Legislative Route 45037 will give you the information you will need to find them.

Other Streams

Aquashicola Creek, in south western Monroe County, joins the Lehigh River near Palmerton and is open for nine miles from Saylorsburg to Little Gap at the Carbon County line. Take Route 115 from Brodheadsville to Little Gap or Route 904 to Kunkletown.

Buckwa Creek, also in the west end of Monroe County, is open water for 12 miles from Saylorsburg to Little Gap. A good stream for the brook trout.

Princess Creek joins the Buckwa at Kunkletown and is open upstream for six miles to Meixell Valley on Route 904.

Pohopoco Creek, with its tributaries, joins the Lehigh River and is open from the Monroe-Carbon County line upstream for 11 miles towards the village of Gilbert. Take Route 209 to Gilbert and then Route 904 south.

Fisherman have recorded nice catches at the mouths of tributaries at Raymondskill, Egypt Mills, Bushkill, Dingmans, Mildrift, Shohola, Sawkill, Lackawaxen, Pond Eddy and vicinity of under-river springs.

Lackawaxen Creek is open for 12 miles from its mouth at the Delaware River upstream to the Pike-Wayne County line. To fish here head for Hawley then Route 590 to the tow path road along the stream or Route 6 to Greley Corners and on to the village of Lackawaxen.

Red Rock Run is open to fishing for three miles from its mouth below Saw Creek Club upstream to posted property. Take Route 209 to Marshalls Creek and then 402 to Hunters Range, cross Saw Creek and park. From here to creek you will have to walk as the road is not passable.

Little Bushkill Creek has two open stretches separated by a closed private holding. The lower opening is two and one-half miles from the mouth of the stream to Pond Run. The upper section is open for two miles from the lower limit of Lehman Lake Club to the upper limit of Bushkill Rod and Gun Club. Inquire in Bushkill for directions to the areas.

Tocks Island Has National Interest

WASHINGTON—The Tocks Island Dam and Recreation Area lost one of its most enthusiastic supporters with the death late last month of Rep. Francis E. Walter, D-Pa.

The Easton resident had been instrumental in getting through Congress the legislation which resulted in the federal government joining the states of Pennsylvania, New York, and Delaware in the Delaware River Basin Compact, designed to control overall development of the river basin.

Walter was honored last year by the Water Resources Assn. of the in behalf of the project.

He had also been in the forefront Delaware River Basin for his efforts of the battle to get through Congress money for planning and construction of the dam, to be located six miles upstream from Delaware Water Gap, and for development of the resulting lake and reservoir as a National Recreation Area.

To Attract 7 Million

The National Park Service will eventually develop the recreation area, which is expected to attract approximately 7,000,000 visitors annually.

The project is expected to be completed within the next 10 years at a cost of about $177,380,000, of which $60,183,000 will go for deveopment of the recreation area.

The reservoir formed by the 160-foot high dam will extend 37 miles up the river to Port Jervis, N.Y., and will cover an area of approximately 15,000 surface acres. It will have 000,000 people reside within 100 miles

Much of the attraction of the area is its accessibility. More than 30,-000,000 eople reside within 100 miles of the site.

The breakdown on the 10 sites approved by the National Park Service shows:

Area One—Extending approximately from one mile above the dam to a point seven miles downstream, including a portion of the Water Gap and six miles of the Delaware River, including several islands. Major purposes of the area are scenic enjoyment and foot and bridle trails.

Area Two—Pocono Recreation Area, extending from the dam site up to an including Bushkill Creek, a shoreline distance of eight miles. It is considered the major recreation site on the Pennsylvania side of the reservoir and has as major purposes water sports, picknicking and camping.

Area Three—Wallpack Bend Recreation on the New Jersey side. It extends appproximately 11 miles upstream from a point two miles above the dam site and has as major purposes water sports, picknicking and camping.

Area Four—Including the largest portion of the peninsula formed by the Flatbrook arm and the main body of the proposed reservoir. It contains 20,000 acres, suitable for 20 group sites and has as its major purposes camping and boating.

Area Five—Egypt Mills Recreation Area, four and one-half miles along the west shore of the reser-group sites and is in the vicinity above Wallpack Bend. It contains 6 of eight lakes. Its major purposes are water sports, camping and picknicking.

Tocks Island Has National Interest

WASHINGTON—The Tocks Island Dam and Recreation Area lost one of its most enthusiastic supporters with the death late last month of Rep. Francis E. Walter, D-Pa.

The Easton resident had been instrumental in getting through Congress the legislation which resulted in the federal government joining the states of Pennsylvania, New York, and Delaware in the Delaware River Basin Compact, designed to control overall development of the river basin.

Walter was honored last year by the Water Resources Assn. of the in behalf of the project.

He had also been in the forefront Delaware River Basin for his efforts of the battle to get through Congress money for planning and construction of the dam, to be located six miles upstream from Delaware Water Gap, and for development of the resulting lake and reservoir as a National Recreation Area.

To Attract 7 Million

The National Park Service will eventually develop the recreation area, which is expected to attract approximately 7,000,000 visitors annually.

The project is expected to be completed within the next 10 years at a cost of about $177,280,000, of which $66,183,000 will go for developemt of the recreation area.

The reservoir formed by the 160-foot high dam will extend 37 miles up the river to Port Jervis, N.Y., and will cover an area of approximately 15,000 surface acres. It will have 000,000 people reside within 100 miles

Much of the attraction of the area is its accessibility. More than 30,-000,000 eople reside within 100 miles of the site.

The breakdown on the 10 sites approved by the National Park Service shows:

Area One—Extending approximately from one mile above the dam to a point seven miles downstream, including a portion of the Water Gap and six miles of the Delaware River, including several islands. Major purposes of the area are scenic enjoyment and foot and bridle trails.

Area Two—Pocono Recreation Area, extending from the dam site up to an including Bushkill Creek, a shoreline distance of eight miles. It is considered the major recreation site on the Pennsylvania side of the reservoir and has as major purposes water sports, picknicking and camping.

Area Three—Wallpack Bend Recreation on the New Jersey side. It extends approximately 11 miles upstream from a point two miles above the dam site and has as major purposes water sports, picknicking and camping.

Area Four—Including the largest portion of the peninsula formed by the Flatbrook arm and the main body of the proposed reservoir. It contains 20,000 acres, suitable for 20 group sites and has as its major purposes camping and boating.

Area Five—Egypt Mills Recreation Area, four and one-half miles along the west shore of the reser-group sites and is in the vicinity above Wallpack Bend. It contains 6 of eight lakes. Its major purposes are water sports, camping and picknicking.

Area Six—A comporatively small area of 750 acres including a scenically attractive gorge and a stretch of usable shoreline lending itself to boating, bathing, picknicking.

Area Seven—Dingman Gorge Recreation Area. It includes George Childs State Park and has as its major purposes water sports, picknicking and tent and trailer grounds.

Many Indian Artifacts Still Found

STROUDSBURG—Arrowheads still turn up after Spring rain in the Poconos although the larger Indian artifacts from this "Happy Hunting Ground" of the original settlers have long since disappeared from the fields.

There is a considerable collection, however, in the Monroe County Historical Society museum in the Stroud Mansion House at Ninth and Main Sts. in Stroudsburg.

The Delaware or Lenni-Lenape Indians who inhabited the Poconos before and during colonial times, left thousands of relics in the area, Dr. Nathan G. Meyer, a past president of the Historical Society and co-author of a booklet "Indian Lore", has classified the three major collections on display in the museum:

The Luke Brodhead stones, the Dr. Charles S. Flagler exhibit, and the Cyrus H. Gould collection.

The Brodhead artifacts were discovered largely in the Delaware Water Gap area, the Flagler arrowheads and other stones were mostly found on the Custard Farm and what is now the Stroudsburg reservoir. The Gould banner stone and other artifacts were assembled from the Effort and Merwinsburg localities.

Four Groups

The artifacts consist largely of stones with a few of wood, and bone. They may be divided into four groups: chipped stone implements; polished stone implements, ceremonial stones, and receptacles of clay, stone and wood.

The chipped flint implements compose the largest part of the collection. They were made by breaking flint stones into arrow size with a stone hammer. Then using a short deer antler in one hand, the flint stone and a protective hide in the other, the Indians chipped the rough arrow into a "bird arrow", a broad arrow head or a lance or spear head. Other chipped implements were stone drills, skin scrapers, hoes and moccasin lasts.

The polished stone implements include some of the biggest Lenape artifacts. They consist of axes, tomahawks, wedges, pestles, discus stones, net sinkers, cooking stones, hoes and pottery lids.

The ceremonial and ornamental artifacts housed in the museum room include a stone mask, banner stones, gorgets, pendants, beads, tubes and pipes. The mask of polished stone or wood was used in their Big House ceremony. The winged or butterfly banner stone was carried on a small pole or stick by a chief much as kings used to carry scoptres as symbols of office.

Various Types

Ornaments other than beads with one hole are known as pendants and with two holes are called gorgets. These were worn about the neck or attached to the hair. Beads were of different sizes but often larger than a man's ring. Some of the ceremonial stones served as charm stones.

Some authorities say that the hollow tubes were used by the medicine men to draw blood. All of the pipes are made of stone or clay.

The fourth kind of receptacles include a bowl made from a maple tree burl, and a Lenape ladle with a round bowl and a bird carved on the handle. The Lenape Indians made such bowls by burning with coals, by using a beaver-tooth gouge and flint scrapers.

Spoons were made by cutting with flint flakes, flint knives used as saws and chisels made of beaver teeth set in wooden handles.

Fragments Of Pottery

Many fragments of Lenape pottery called sherds or potsherds are in the museum. These show pottery decoration. A picture of a rare Iroquois jar found in 1931 by M. P. Brong of Brodheadsville is also shown. The original is now on display in the Indian Hall of the state museum in Harrisburg.

Another picture of local interest is of a Monroe County Indian Trail Marker. One such marker is on the John Kreger farm, and another on the Polk Twp. School ground was destroyed by an ice storm. They were the first road signs and were used to indicate the direction of a good trail.

Today's travelers on Monroe County roads will find Indian lore reflected in the place names of modern road signs: Kittatinny, meaning chief mountian; Analomink, a little hill; Tobyhanna, the alder or smoky stream; Lenni-Lenape original or real men; Pohoqualine, the termination of two mountains with a stream between; Mt. Tammany, named for the Lenape Indian Chief Tamarend for which Tammany Hall in New York took its name.

Monroe Has 60,000 Acres Of Game Land

STROUDSBURG — A total of 60,000 acres of game land is located in the Poconos supporting the large number of game in Monroe County.

Unhappily for summer hunters of the bigger game, however, most of the open seasons don't begin until fall.

Visitors to the Poconos this summer will have to be content with fox, woodchuck, red squirrel and birds, and even then not on Sundays.

For those who stick around this year there will be a small game season. The small game includes ringneck pheasants, rabbit, squirrels, wild turkey, bobwhite quail and grouse.

The Game Commission now runs over 60,000 acres of "Game Land" owned by the state in the Poconos.

60,000-Plus Acres

owned by the state in the oconos.

It produces an annual crop for hunters of eastern ennsylvania, New Jersey and New York.

Local game protectors expect a bumper crop and a good kill of all game on these lands if the weather is favorable.

The land, controlled by the commission, is open to the general public for hunting purposes. The commission also continues to seek more areas to increase the acreage of game lands to meet the needs of an ever-expanding population.

Summer Theatre Has Wide Variety

STROUDSBURG — Plays, dramas, musicals, comedies, historicals, and histrionics will abound at three summer playhouses designed to entertain the theater-conscious vacationer in the Pocono Mountains this summer.

Those theaters will bring Broadway stars to local stages, and night clubs around the mountains have begun a new campaign by selecting name talent to entertain the guests.

Pocono Playhouse—the "Broadway in the Poconos"—is nationally recognized as one of the finest summer stock theaters in the country.

It is entering its 17th season this summer, under the helm of Rowena Stevens.

This year the Playhouse opened on June 14 with "The Unsinkable Molly Brown" by Meredith Wilson. The musical will star Barbara Gilbert and Don Crabtree.

Next Walter Pidgeon will star in "Lord Pengo," to be followed by Joan Caulfield, Peggy Cass, and John Hackett in "She Didn't Say Yes."

Ralph Meeker and Fred Clark will star in "Come Blow Your Horn," and "Carnival" will run from July 15-27 with an all Broadway cast.

Payne To Appear

Hollywood he-man John Payne will walk the boards in "Calculated Risk," and Patricia Barry and John Forsythe will star in "Kind Sir."

Toward the end of the season, Spring Byington will star in the "Curious Savage," and the season will close with an all Broadway cast doing "Guys and Dolls."

The Pocono Playhouse is located at Mountainhome, and has two open dates on August 12 and 26.

The Cherry Lane Playhouse outside of Analomink will have shuttle system between itself and the Grist Mill Playhouse of Andover, N.J. this summer.

Grist Mill will set up the big shows and ship them to the Cherry Lane for a week, and Cherry Lane will arrange the small shows and send them to Grist Mill for a week's run.

The Cherry Lane will start its season with "No Bed of Roses" starring Walter Cassel—a leading baritone with the Metropolitan Opera Company—and Gail Manners. The theater will run all musicals this summer.

There will be 10 musicals presented and the season will close Sept. 7.

After "No Bed," the next production will be "Little Mary Sunshine," followed by "The Fantasticks."

"Say Darling" will then be the fare, with a possible showing of "Once Upon a Mattress" tentatively scheduled.

"The Boy Friend" will be the next play using nationally-known and local talent. "Roberta" will follow and will have a fashion show combined.

Ann Hawkes Hutton of Hawkes Hill near Snydersville—sort of the writer laureate of the area—will have her original drama entitled "The Decision" shown toward the end of the season.

"Carnival" will be the next show, with "Paris," an old musical by Cole Porter, filling out the schedule.

The shows at the Ross Common Playhouse will run for two weeks, and use local alent exclusively. This summer theater has gained a wide reputation for fine productions and the most entertaining shows during its past seasons.

This year the playhouse will feature five plays.

They are "Papa is All," a Pennsylvania Dutch mirthmaker; "Send Me No Flowers," a comedy concerning a hypochondriac; "Out of the Frying Pan," a play about six young theater hopefuls living in one apartment; "Stepping Sisters," a comedy concerning six high class women who have one common fact—they were all burlesque queens; and the "The Biggest Thief in Town," an uproarious show about an undertaker who snatches the body of the richest guy in town upon his demise.

Whatever your tastes in theater—you can find a play and a star to suit you with this kind of a bill.

Besides the theatrical productions, Fred Waring and his Pennsylvanians, who home-base at Shawnee-on-Delaware do many summertime shows.

Jackie Gleason is a regular in this area, and often escapes the city to golf or relax in the Pocono atmosphere, and Jonathan Winters spends quite a few hours either appearing or enjoying the Pocono high spots.

For entertainment in the summer away from the city, the Poconos have everything to offer and little to lose.

Brookdale Offers Many Varied Sports

SCOTRUN — Brookdale On-The-Lake is the kind of resort that made the Poconos famous. It is recommended by Duncan Hines and carries the AAA seal of approval in its office.

It has a main lodge and modern cottage which overlook one of the largest private lakes in the Poconos—18 acres of blue water stocked with trout and pan fish.

For the leisurely life in the crisp mountain air, this is it. It features swimming, boating, water bikes, all land sports, its own pitch and putt golf course, TV and other pastimes.

The food varies from American favorites to continental specialties. The hosts at Brookdale are Mr. and Mrs. Eric Danisch.

Brookdale is a member of the American Hotel Assn.

It is nestled in a 200-acre estate and is open from Spring to Thanksgiving.

Two Plans

The cottages themselves are heated with TV, fireplace, or the guest may take a room and bath in the lodge. Though the food is served on the American plan, continental cuisine is served.

THE LURE OF THE FAIRWAY is answered in the many fine golf courses that abound in The Poconos. Some of the best courses in the East are to be found here, and there are all types of courses to challenge the urge of the novice, as well as others to challenge the skill of the professional. Practically all of the courses accommodate players by the season or with green fees for a day.

SINGING WATERS rushing over the spillway of a small dam present a pleasing country scene near Delaware Water Gap. The stream here also supplies water for an industrial plant in the area. Island in background is romantically named Heart Island because of its shape. Such picturesque scenes delight the eye all through the Poconos.

Pocono Produce Proud

STROUDSBURG — Those fresh vegetables and fine juicy fruits that are served at your resort—they probably come from Pocono Produce Co.

The shop is run as modern as possible, with a full refrigeration system and a fleet of trucks to keep the food as fresh and tasty as the day it hung on the vine, tree, or what have you.

Located in a modern plant on N. Fifth St. in Stroudsburg, the Produce services most of the resorts and shops in the region. It is a wholesale produce distributor that really produces the best and freshest in foods.

During the summer, the trucks of Pocono Produce can be seen weaving throughout Monroe County, hauling the crisp and cold vegetables for resorts and restaurants.

Cleanliness

Cleanliness is a way of business at this company. The facility is kept spotless and the appearance of the building gives this idea, too. The food that the company handles is of the same quality.

Visitors to a vacation region expect the finest foods on their holidays. It is the one time of the year when the scrimping stops and the splurging starts.

Realizing this, Pocono Produce has maintained the kind of service and reliability that can outfit any restaurant or resort with just this kind of food.

Heddy's Gives South Seas Atmosphere

MARSHALS CREEK — Heddy's Hawaiian and Bamboo Room lets the Pennsylvania traveler get a taste of the South Seas.

In the large dining room, the meals are a knockout and the service is just as good. Heddy's caters to bus groups, and has plenty of room to fit a busload of hungry travelers at the tables.

The place gets its reputation from the Hawaiian and Bamboo room. During the summer months, a combo on weekend creates the "Islander" effect.

The lighting is soft, the walls are garnished with exotic shrubbery, and a mural along the far wall makes hula-dancers sway around your table.

A waterfall gurgles from one wall and disappears between a rock pool, and the sunken center floor is great for dancing.

SINGING WATERS rushing over the spillway of a small dam present a pleasing country scene near Delaware Water Gap. The stream here also supplies water for an industrial plant in the area. Island in background is romantically named Heart Island because of its shape. Such picturesque scenes delight the eye all through the Poconos.

Pocono Produce Proud

STROUDSBURG — Those fresh vegetables and fine juicy fruits that are served at your resort—they probably come from Pocono Produce Co.

The shop is run as modern as possible, with a full refrigeration system and a fleet of trucks to keep the food as fresh and tasty as the day it hung on the vine, tree, or what have you.

Located in a modern plant on N. Fifth St. in Stroudsburg, the Produce services most of the resorts and shops in the region. It is a wholesale produce distributor that really produces the best and freshest in foods.

During the summer, the trucks of Pocono Produce can be seen weaving throughout Monroe County, hauling the crisp and cold vegetables for resorts and restaurants.

Cleanliness

Cleanliness is a way of business at this company. The facility is kept spotless and the appearance of the building gives this idea, too. The food that the company handles is of the same quality.

Visitors to a vacation region expect the finest foods on their holidays. It is the one time of the year when the scrimping stops and the splurging starts.

Realizing this, Pocono Produce has maintained the kind of service and reliability that can outfit any restaurant or resort with just this kind of food.

Heddy's Gives South Seas Atmosphere

MARSHALS CREEK — Heddy's Hawaiian and Bamboo Room lets the Pennsylvania traveler get a taste of the South Seas.

In the large dining room, the meals are a knockout and the service is just as good. Heddy's caters to bus groups, and has plenty of room to fit a busload of hungry travelers at the tables.

The place gets its reputation from the Hawaiian and Bamboo room. During the summer months, a combo on weekend creates the "Islander" effect.

The lighting is soft, the walls are garnished with exotic shrubbery, and a mural along the far wall makes hula-dancers sway around your table.

A waterfall gurgles from one wall and disappears between a rock pool, and the sunken center floor is great for dancing.

Area Steeped In Colonial History

STROUDSBURG—Admittedly most vacationists are more on the lookout for route numbers than historical markers, but historical buffs can have a heyday with the roadside markers erected throughout this historica region by the Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission.

They could, for instance intersect the route of Sullivan March which left Easton on June 18, 1779 to attack the hostile Iroquois Indians responsible for the Wyoming Massacre. In Monroe County its route is marked at three places:

At Sciota on U.S. 209, Brinker's Mill marked the storehouse and advance post for the expedition.

At Tannersville, on US 611, Learned's Tavern marked the end of the second day's march from Easton to Fort Wyoming at Wilkes-Barre. Here the army camped on June 19, 1779 after a 16-mile march from Heller's Tavern.

The Hungry Hill Monument, near Rt. 940 at Pocono Pines, marks the location where the Expedition encountered difficulty on penetrating the deep pine forests and rhododendron in the woodlands on the mountain top. Several members of the force lost their lives and are buried here.

Four Frontier Forts

Monroe County was also the site of four frontier forts, whose locations are marked:

Two of these forts are within Stroudsburg itself. Fort Penn, built by Jacob Stroud and others in 1776 was a refuge for the fugitives from the Wyoming Massacre in 1778 and was the militia headquarters for defense against Indian Attack. For Hamilton predated it, having been built in 1756 by the Province of Pennsylvania and gatisoned during the French and Indian War. Both are on US Route 209 in Stroudsburg.

Fort Hindshaw, US 209 south of Bushkill, and Fort Norris US 209 at Kresgeville were of the same vintage as Fort Hamilton, built by the Province of Pennsylvania as frontier defenses during the French and Indian War.

In East Stroudsburg, the home of its founder, Daniel Brodhead, is marked where the General Hospital of Monroe County now stands. Brodhead settled here about 1738 and the town was called Dansbury in his honor. He lived here until 1755, and his son, Daniel became a Revolutionary War Leader and later the State Surveyor General. Dansbury Mission on lower Main St. in Stroudsburg was founded by Brodhead for use by Moravian Missions and was destroyed by Indians in 1755 during the French and Indian War.

Not All War-Like

Not all of the markers are so warlike. On the oldest road in Monroe County, legislative Route 45012 west of Shawnee, there is a marker to the Dutch Settlers who came here before William Penn came to Philadelphia. They came down the Old Mine road from the Hudson to the Delaware. Crossing at Walpack Bend, they used this road.

On the same road is the marker for the Smithfield Church, one of a group of four early Dutch Reformed churches founded by pioneer settlers, it was the only one in Pennsylvania and was in use about 1741 to 51.

Also near Shawnee, on Legislative Route 50412, is a marker to Nicholas DePue, first known settler in this region in 1727. His home, stockaded and garrisoned became the Fort DePue of the French and Indian War.

Dingman's Ferry

Dingman's Ferry, at Dingman's Ferry on US 209, is marked where in 1750 with his own hand axe, Andrew Dingman built the flatboat which was to serve as the earliest ferry to regularly cross the Delaware River.

Wallenpaupack, on US 6 at Lake Wallenpaupack is the site of one of the earliest settlements in the northern Poconos and was the scene of a virtually independent government made up of early Connecticant claimants who built a fort here in 1773. The old Indian trail from Chochecton to Wyoming passed nearby.

Maps and additional points of interest in the Poconos can be obtained by writing to John E. Calhoun, executive secretary, Pocono Mountains Vacation Bureau, 1004 Main St., Stroudsburg.

Pocohantas Ideal For A Honeymoon

BARTONSVILLE—If you're in the mood for a honeymoon, check out the Pocohontas—the complete Honeymoon and Vacation resort in Bartonsville, five miles west of Stroudsburg on Rt. 611.

The tone of the place is carefree and informal—it sports reasonable rates for budget conscious honeymooners, too.

Modern cottages are the dwellings for the vacationer, and these have private bath and TV.

Three delicious meals are served daily and the food is the kind you write home about.

There is a new pool at Pocohontas, and a large playground with all sports facilities.

Own Stream

For the fisherman, the resort has its own stream running through the property, and the angler can drop in his line in the trout infested waters.

Surrounding the Pocohontas are places where the vacationer can ride, see movies, bowl, play golf or shop in some of the little shops in the area.

Churchs are nearby the resort, and Sunday morning a short drive brings you to the church of your choice.

Bartonsville has some of the nicest scenery in the region—and the region is noted for its scenery.

The visitor will be surrounded by this scenery during his entire stay in the region and at Pocohontas.

Fun For All -- Bring The Family On The Beautiful Delaware

Resorts Spend Millions For Improvements

VACATIONERS will have $3 million more in facilities in the Poconos this year.

Reports from constructions around the sprawling resort industry here show that at least $3 million will be spent to improve and construct facilities and that the figure might rise to $4 million before the year is out.

Considering that recreational facilities comprise the fourth biggest industry in the state, the $3 or $4 million spent in Monroe County and Pike County where 85 per cent of Pennsylvania's resorts are located, means that the industry is keeping pace with the times.

New Wing

The Inn at Buck Hill Falls has started construction on a new wing that will cost $1½ million. The addition will be new rooms with baths. The old part that is now used for accomodations has some rooms without baths. These will be turned into staff quarters.

Another important boost for the region is the construction of a $500,000 ski center at Big Pocono near Tannersville. Work has already begun on the project.

The ski center is a mile from the new Penn-Can Highway and Keystone Shortway, which will speed skiers to the area.

The lodge at the base of the facility will cost $100,000 and will handle 2,000 persons.

The runs themselves are 11 trails that either zoom or wind down the steep mountain. Three lifts will haul skiers to the top of the summit.

The name of the organization that is doing all this is the Camelback Ski Corp., and Charles Bensinger of Stroudsburg. He said that this was one of the first cooperative projects between the commonwealth of Pennsylvania and private enterprize.

"We are leasing part of Big Pocono State Park, just to the East of the road up the mountain," Bensinger said, "We expect the center to employ 40-50 people."

Scranton Expected

"Gov. Scranton has promised to be at the opening of the ski center, which we plan for December 15 of this year."

Alex Bensinger of Stroudsburg is secretary of the corporation, and the business is headed by James Moore of Philadelphia. Walter Foeger, outstanding ski instructor, will be managing director.

Mount Airy Lodge near Mount Pocono is adding $500,000 in facilities. The new project calls for 52 units and a new Club Suzanne.

The lodge now has 150 honeymoon units. Manager Emil Wagner said a driving range and ultimately an 18-hole golf course are planned.

This summer big-name entertainment will be brought to the club from the Catskills of New York.

On Top of Ballroom

Pocono Manor is adding a $100,000 ballroom and convention center. The ballroom will be built on top of the present convention dining room.

The Mount Pocono Airport is just completing a hangar and will install facilities to handle travelers. Aero-Mod Corp. built the hangar and has the lease to manage the airport.

Shawnee Inn at Shawnee-on-the-Delaware now has a 27-hole championship golf course. The establishment, owned by Fred Waring, Inc., bills itself as the "Golf Capital of the East."

Pocono Crest at Pocono Manor is under new management. Its music camp will continue to serve band students from colleges like Lehigh University in Bethlehem, and a summer unit in junior college work will be available for area, people. College credits will be given and it is backed by Valparaiso College.

Split Rock Lodge has a new tavern and outdoor patio. Paradise Valley Lodge has installed a typical country store for its visitors, and called it "Memorytown, USA."

Hi Point Inn, with its Yankee Doodle Room, has redone its Parisian Cafe and added a miniature golf course.

The Birchwood has added a shop featuring early American items, and is adding a new gift shop over the side of the old structure. Birchwood has also added an early American fireplace room and has an indoor and outdoor swimming pool. It is strictly for Honeymooners.

Many resorts have added or are adding facilities. Hi-Ho Lodge, a former health resort, has added 16 cottages to blossom into a resort. Strickland near Mount Pocono has added complete Honeymoon Mansions with landscaped grounds.

Added Cottages

Val Robbins, a famous sculptor and wood worker, has added housekeeping cottages, a lake, and a pool in his burgeoning resort near Snydersville.

Family cottages have been built at Abcel's Hearthstone Cottages; Henryville Lodge has added Cabanas and other equipment. Skyline Inn, Holiday Glen, Garman's Motor Court, Country Surrey Inn, the Antlers, the Norway House, and other resorts have added cottages and improvements totalling hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Police Aid Area Visitors With Many Courteous Deeds

POLICE in Monroe County go out of their way every day to aid tourists. This could be from the issuing of a courtesy traffic ticket to calling a garageman to repair a flat tire.

Travis J. Seese, chief of East Stroudsburg Police, said all the patrolmen in the borough have been schooled to aid the tourist in every possible way.

"Our aim is to protect the lives and property of the residents in East Stroudsburg and to aid any and all people in any way that we can," he concluded.

John B. Tretheway, chief of police in Stroudsburg, said, "In this borough we try our best to aid the tourist as well as the local people.

"One of the methods employed by the department is to place a courtesy ticket on a vehicle that is parked overtime and it is known that the driver is a tourist. The ticket may also state that the driver used the incorrect coin in the parking meter, or that he is parked in a no parking area," he continued.

In concluding he added, "This ticket tells the driver that a violation has been committed. It is our hope that the driver will then, if he parks in the borough again, do the correct and lawful thing."

Chief of Police Robert Smith in Delaware Water Gap said that his greatest role in aiding passing tourist is to give them directions to the various camps, hotels, motels and resorts in the county.

Harry Campbell, chief of Barrett Township police added that directing tourists to the various places in the township constitute his biggest effort.

State Police are stationed in three areas of the county. In Stroudsburg, near the corner of N. Ninth and Scott Sts; in Mt. Pocono on the main street, and in the west end of the county at Fern Ridge, near Blakeslee.

State Police patrols are on the highways of the county from 7 a.m. to 11 p.m. Their job is the safe traveling of all vehicles as well as lending aid to motorists in distress.

New Ski Area To Open This Fall

ADDING to the skiing attraction of the Poconos this year will be the Camelback Ski Area at Big Pocono.

This nine-year dream of regional skiing enthusiasts, the Camelback Ski Corp. officially became a reality in April when ground was broken for the recreational facility which will accommodate 2,000 skiers daily.

It also will prove an economic boon to the Poconos in the near future, according to Walter Foeger of Jay Peak, Vt., Camelback's managing director who has been hailed by experts as "a world genius in ski design."

"There is no doubt that this will be the biggest commercial area around," said Foeger. "Within 10 years, Camelback will be a tremendous skiing area."

He also predicted that Camelback will bring "greater horizons for the area" and will be "a tremendous influence in our community here."

Booming Business

Skiing long has been the biggest of the winter sports in the Pocinos. Not only is it growing at a rapid pace, it is also becoming a booming business for the area.

John Calhoun, executive director of the Pocono Mountains Vacation Bureau, notes that 87 resorts — 15 more than last year — are open throughout the winter season "because of the continually increasing interest in active winter sports and week-end package vacations."

Illustrating the fast-expanding ski areas in the Poconos are the Paper Birch Ski Run near Fairview Lake in the Wallenpaupack area along with Camelback.

The Paper Birch run just opened last December — and with its 2,000-foot "expert" slope the veteran skier need no longer make a long northward trek to find a challenging week-end. It also is surrounded by no less than 10 resorts.

At the Big Pocono, the Camelback Ski Area project has set a target date of Dec. 15 for its opening. Slopes will be available for the most expert to the mere beginner, according to present plans.

Facilities also will be installed for snow-making, guaranteeing more than 100 days of the sport.

Other Areas

The Inn at Buckhill offers opportunities to the ski fan who is trying to build up enthusiasm for the sport. Varied slopes and Poma-lifts are offered there.

Single people, newly-weds and college groups who are looking for winter sports and a night life reminiscent of the chalet country of the Alps, will enjoy the Big Boulder at Split Rock Lodge, off Rt. 940 near Blakeslee Corner in the western sector of the Poconos.

In the eastern section, Pocmont also offers a ski run and tow. Many other resorts have slopes adjacent to their property for skiing and sledding, such as Cove Haven, Sunnybrook Riding Farm, High Point Inn, Pocono Mountain Inn and Honeymoon Hideaway. Other fine ski sites: Merry Hill Lodge, Paradise Valley Lodge, Mt. Airy Lodge and Onawa Lodge.

There is no doubt, however, that the Camelback project will supply a tremendous lift to this booming business in the Poconos.

Sets Precedent

This project marks the first time Dr. Maurice Goddard, secretary of the State Forests and Waters Department, says "it is hoped that the venture will lead to other participations by the state."

Dr. Goddard pinpointed that Camelback will:

1. Provide more complete utilization of park land.
2. Stimulate local economy.
3. Provide winter outdoor recreation.
4. Require no expenditure of public funds.

Dr. Goddard also cited the importance of Camelback to the area's economy, noting that when the Keystone Shortway is completed some 26 million vehicles will pass by the ski area.

"If you just figure only 10 per cent of that number will stop, it will be quite a boost to the economy," he declared.

The president of the corporation, James Moore, Philadelphia attorney, has high praise for the cooperation of the residents of the Poconos and has termed Camelback "a community park."

Construction Started

Construction of the new ski area has already begun. The area will consist of a main lodge, a parking facility, and a series of ski lifts which will have a total capacity of 3,000 people per hour.

The main lodge will include a cafeteria, a completely equipped ski shop offering rentals, repairs, the latest in ski fashions and equipment, a lounge area and a first aid area.

In addition, a 2,900-foot double chair lift which will service trails for experts and intermediates and will handle 1,200 skiers per hour; a 1,800-foot T-bar which will go to or above Camelback Trail; a slope suitable for intermediates and novices will handle 1,100 skiers per hour, and a 700-foot J-bar for the beginners' slope which will handle 600 skiers per hour.

A complete bank of modern snow-making machines which will receive adequate water from Pocono Creek and its tributaries will be installed to provide perfect snow conditions.

At an April luncheon following ground-breaking ceremonies at Camelback, Dr. Goddard told the gathering that "The potential here is just unbelievable."

"You're in the hub of the greatest transportation system in the world," he declared. "This (project) cannot help but be a great success."

He also noted that in the next 40 years the population will be doubled and recreational facilities will be more than tripled.

"I think we'll get greater use of this park land by using it in the winter," Dr. Goddard added. "And it will be done without destroying the natural beauty of the land."

FAIR TRAVELER—Not only do humans enjoy touring the Poconos. The various country fairs held in the area during the summer also draw fine specimens of farm animals, such as our friend above as he contentedly munches an ear of corn.

Keystone Shortway Will Link Comfort To Travel

BY THE summer of 1965, Monroe County should be a motorist's dream.

By then, if the expectations of the Pennsylvania Dept. of Highways' District Five office are correct, the Keystone Shortway will be completed as far as the county is concerned.

By the end of July of this year motorists should be able to travel without interruption from the Delaware River Toll Bridge to Crescent Lake in the heart of the area's resorts.

A section north of Crescent Lake which will form part of the Penn-Can Highway and a connection from the Penn-Can to Route 611 in Mt. Pocono are scheduled to be started this summer with completion scheduled for late next summer.

Four-lane highways which will connect Routes 115 and 209 with the Shortway are expected to be opened to traffic by the end of October.

Ready To Start Work

A. Victor Cesare, district engineer for the highways department, anticipates that three additional sections of the Shortway, westward from Crescent Lake, will be under construction this year.

There is a "good possibility," he said, that they will be completed by the latter part of 1964 or early 1965.

A fourth section, near the Northeastern Extension of the Pennsylvania Turnpike, is under construction and is expected to be completed during the summer of next year.

Cesare emphasizes that the schedules are subject to change. Among the bugaboos of highway construction are inclement weather and labor difficulties, either of which could drastically alter the timing of the program.

But once completed, the network of highways will provide both resident and visitor with easy access to the principal points and resorts in Monroe County.

Minimum Driving Effort

From Philadelphia and Easton to the south, from New York to the east, from the coal fields to the north, they will be able to reach the Poconos with a minimum of driving effort.

An unparalleled era of expansion seems to be just ahead for the region, which has already known tremendous expansion in the past.

DON'T SCRIMP HERE

IF YOU are thinking of investing thousands of dollars in a home, don't scrimp when it comes to such things as insulation, weatherstripping, caulking, and storm windows, advise the home comfort experts of American Furnace Company.

These relatively inexpensive but important features of good construction can mean a lower initial cost of your heating plant, lower operating costs, more comfort, and easier upkeep of the home.

Five State Parks Dot The Poconos

TOBYHANNA — Five area state parks are among the attractions which bring visitors to the Pocono Mountains area.

Tobyhanna State Park includes about 7,318 acres in Coolbaugh Township. While trails for hikers have not yet been developed, various fire roads traverse the area offering miles of opportunities to hiking enthusiasts.

A lake of 165 acres is open for fishing and boating, as well as swimming. There are boat concessions, a sand beach of about 600 feet in length, a bath house, toilets, picnic tables, fireplaces and a refreshment concession.

There is a day use area, as well as a tent and trailer area. Parking lots can accommodate up to 450 cars and the picnic area contains about 150 tables.

Gouldsboro State Park is located on the Wayne-Monroe County line and Gouldsboro Lake is also referred to as North Hersey Lake. The lake consists of 278 acres and an additional 47 acres of adjacent land was obtained in the original purchase.

18 Feet Maximum

The lake has a maximum depth of 18 feet, contains pickerel, bass, walleyed pike, sunfish, catfish, suckers and carp. The water supply comes from a small brook and several springs with a small tributary of the Lehigh River providing drainage.

Facilities include a large, modern bath house, three toilets, an 800-foot white sand beach, a 200-table picnic area, 75 metal fireplaces, five drilled wells, concession building, first aid station, boat launching ramp and parking area for 500 autos.

Hickory Run State Park, located in the western foothills of the Pocono Mountains, covers an area of about 15,000 acres.

One of its biggest attractions is the Boulder Field. Rocks varying in size from a basketball to as long as 25 feet were deposited by glacial action. The area covered totals 30 or more acres.

Facilities available include parking lots, picnic areas, pure water, toilets, concessions, 200 fireplaces and extensive camping areas. Swimming facilities are also provided.

Promised Land State Park is a natural forest recreational area located in Green Township, Pike County, 10 miles north of Canadensis.

It has extensive picnic and parking areas and toilet facilities are also provided. The park also has a large bathing beach with a modern bath house and a first aid station.

A cabin area is located near the picnic area and trails are marked for hikers throughout the area. Fishermen may try the south shore of the lake for pickerel, bass, sunfish and catfish.

George W. Childs State Park in Delaware Township, Pike County, three miles west of Dingmans Ferry, is named in honor of George W. Childs, former editor and publisher of the Philadelphia Public Ledger. The land was deeded to the state in 1912 by his widow, Emma B. Childs.

154 Acres

The property contains 154 acres, 52 in the original deed and 102 added in 1956 in a purchase from the Brooks estate. Trails in the park have been improved and a footbridge was added recently.

A new maintenance building is now under construction. Facilities include picnicking and fishing. Toilet facilities are available with two new ones being added in the past few years.

A series of three waterfalls are the main attractions. The park also contains the ruins of an old woolen mill.

Five State Parks Dot The Poconos

TOBYHANNA — Five area state parks are among the attractions which bring visitors to the Pocono Mountains area.

Tobyhanna State Park includes about 7,318 acres in Coolbaugh Township. While trails for hikers have not yet been developed, various fire roads traverse the area offering miles of opportunities to hiking enthusiasts.

A lake of 165 acres is open for fishing and boating, as well as swimming. There are boat concessions, a sand beach of about 600 feet in length, a bath house, toilets, picnic tables, fireplaces and a refreshment concession.

There is a day use area, as well as a tent and trailer area. Parking lots can accommodate up to 450 cars and the picnic area contains about 150 tables.

Gouldsboro State Park is located on the Wayne-Monroe County line and Gouldsboro Lake is also referred to as North Hersey Lake. The lake consists of 278 acres and an additional 47 acres of adjacent land was obtained in the original purchase.

18 Feet Maximum

The lake has a maximum depth of 18 feet, contains pickerel, bass, walleyed pike, sunfish, catfish, suckers and carp. The water supply comes from a small brook and several springs with a small tributary of the Lehigh River providing drainage.

Facilities include a large, modern bath house, three toilets, an 800-foot white sand beach, a 200-table picnic area, 75 metal fireplaces, five drilled wells, concession building, first aid station, boat launching ramp and parking area for 500 autos.

Hickory Run State Park, located in the western foothills of the Pocono Mountains, covers an area of about 15,000 acres.

One of its biggest attractions is the Boulder Field. Rocks varying in size from a basketball to as long as 25 feet were deposited by glacial action. The area covered totals 30 or more acres.

Facilities available include parking lots, picnic areas, pure water, toilets, concessions, 200 fireplaces and extensive camping areas. Swimming facilities are also provided.

Promised Land State Park is a natural forest recreational area located in Green Township, Pike County, 10 miles north of Canadensis.

It has extensive picnic and parking areas and toilet facilities are also provided. The park also has a large bathing beach with a modern bath house and a first aid station.

A cabin area is located near the picnic area and trails are marked for hikers throughout the area. Fishermen may try the south shore of the lake for pickerel, bass, sunfish and catfish.

George W. Childs State Park in Delaware Township, Pike County, three miles west of Dingmans Ferry, is named in honor of George W. Childs, former editor and publisher of the Philadelphia Public Ledger. The land was deeded to the state in 1912 by his widow, Emma B. Childs.

154 Acres

The property contains 154 acres, 52 in the original deed and 102 added in 1956 in a purchase from the Brooks estate. Trails in the park have been improved and a footbridge was added recently.

A new maintenance building is now under construction. Facilities include picnicking and fishing. Toilet facilities are available with two new ones being added in the past few years.

A series of three waterfalls are the main attractions. The park also contains the ruins of an old woolen mill.

Camping fees at parks having these facilities are $1 for the first day and 50 cents for each additional days. Charges for other facilities used—such as cabins and laundry facilities—may be obtained from park officials.

Honeymoons A Specialty In Poconos

STROUDSBURG — You can literally have an out-of-this-world honeymoon in the Pocono Mountains.

Sunken Roman baths, canopy beds, sun lamps, gourmet food, television, breakfast in bed — you name it and someone can provide it.

The Poconos have always been a popular honeymoon spot and over the years more and more resorts began to cater exclusively to the newlyweds.

But it has only been within the last year or so that a formal organization of honeymoon resorts was formed.

This group known as Pocono Honeymoon Resorts Assn. has its headquarters in Stroudsburg, but its membership virtually spans the Poconos.

The seven members are Birchwood, East Stroudsburg; Cove Haven, Lakeville; Honeymoon Haven, Dingmans Ferry; Paradise Valley Lodge, Mt. Pocono; Penn Hills Lodge, Analomink; Pocono Gardens Lodge, Cresco, and Strickland's Inn and Cottages, Mt. Pocono.

They, and the numerous other resorts which cater to honeymooners, provide package deals which — depending on the resort and its facilities — may include wedding presents, hay rides, dancing, air tours of the region, cabins personalized with the occupants' own name plate, wiener roasts, sightseeing excursions or what have you.

Cost varies depending on the size and type of accommodations, but it is generally agreed that a honeymoon in the area will cost somewhere between $150 and $300 a couple for a week.

Sports facilities available include horseback riding, bowling, ice skating, skiing, tobogganning, water skiing, speed boat rides, swimming in pools or lakes, archery, ping pong, bicycling, hunting, fishing, volley ball and basketball.

Snack shops are available at many resorts for hunger pangs which occur between regular meals.

Most emphasize that the planned activities are there for use only if desired. If a couple desires privacy, they may have it.

Many of the resorts feature individual cottages, while others have luxurious suites in the main buildings available for the newlyweds.

There's a plan for every taste and pocketbook, and all resorts welcome individual inquiries regarding rates and facilities. So, write, man!

HONEYMOONERS IN THE POCONOS can enjoy a simple room or cottage any place, or such sumptuous accommodations as sunken Roman baths, terraced gardens as shown above, or whatever their hearts desire. Package honeymoon trips are provided by many of the specialized resorts to fit the pocketbook of any newlywed couple. Every attention is given to provide the neophytes with happy remembrances of the start of their life together.

Duckloe's Features Fine Furniture

FORTLAND — Frederick Duckloe and Bros., Inc., operate a complete home furnishings center in this small community.

Braid, hand hooked and plain or fancy wall-to-wall carpeting is also available as are such name brands in furniture as Simmons, Englander-Goodyear and Tension Ease Airlon.

Not the least attractive part of a visit to the Duckloe factory is the Golden Eagle Inn, operated by the family and featuring fine food, lodging and beverages. It is closed Sundays.

There is plenty of free parking available since Portland has no parking meters.

Cosmetology Taught In Stroudsburg

STROUDSBURG — Stroudsburg School of Cosmetology at 18 N. Seventh St., Stroudsburg, is a state licensed institution for training in beauty culture.

Vacation Bureau Offers Services

STROUDSBURG—More than 220 resorts throughout the Pocono Mountains are members of the Pocono Mountains Vacation Bureau.

The membership is fairly typical of the area ranging from some of the most simple and inexpensive accommodations to luxury resorts with a full program of activities. Some are open only during the summer, others offer service on a year-around basis.

Among them are facilities which cater only to children, others desire only honeymooners as guests. Still others welcome the whole family and and have special programs for children to keep them out from under their parents' feet while mom and pop live it up.

In addition to the resorts, more and more members are coming from operators of area tourist attractions, such as waterfalls and specialty shops and from restaurants.

Each year, the bureau publishes a brochure listing its members and giving brief descriptions of the facilities available. Interested parties are urged to direct their inquiries direct to the resort or facility.

Colorful Brochure

The colorful brochure proclaims:

"Wherever you go in the Poconos, you will find good taste and a warm, friendly reception. The Pocono Mountains Vacation Bureau, Inc., puts its seal of acceptance on the places mentioned in this guide."

Among its principal promotion efforts are the Laurel Blossom Festival in late spring or early summer and the Flaming Foliage Time in late summer and fall.

Each year colleges along the Eastern Seaboard are invited to enter a princess in the annual Laurel Blossom Queen contest.

For a week, the 20 or so princesses are wined and dined at various resorts throughout the area. Naturally, each newspaper published in an area where one of the girls lives or attends school is interested in her itinerary. And, as she moves from one resort to another, the names of these resorts are seen by more and more readers.

But even more important is the word of mouth advertising the girls themselves do when they return to their homes or colleges. It is certain that more than one person has decided upon a Poconos vacation after hearing one of the contestants praise the hospitality of the area.

The bureau annually allocates a generous portions of its budget for advertising, particularly in metropolitan papers in New York City, Philadelphia and New Jersey. Inquiries increase with each year of the bureau's promotional work.

Information Booths

And, when the visitor reaches the Poconos, the bureau does not forget him or her. The bureau maintains two information booths, one at Delaware Water Gap and the other at Wind Gap, which can provide the casual visitor with complete information on area housing, eating and other facilities, complete with prices. The booths are staffed throughout the season.

The same service is provided at the bureau's headquarters at 1018 Main St., Stroudsburg.

The Poconos have been playing host to visitors from outside the area for more than a century. But the credit for much of the growth of the area as the resort capital of Pennsylvania in the past 15 years must go to the vacation bureau and the dedicated individuals who have worked for it—and equally important—supported it.

Visiting Nurses Offer Many Services

STROUDSBURG — Nobody comes to the Poconos to get sick, but if they should or if they come here to convalesce, they and their families may have reason to be grateful for the Visiting Nurse Assn. of Monroe County.

A red feather agency, the Visiting Nurse Assn., is a Red Feather Agency of the Monroe County Community Chest. It cooperates with other agencies such as the Cancer Society, the Department of Public Assistance and the Veterans Administration to provide nursing care.

Over 65 Patients

It also has a contract with Blue Cross for providing nursing care in the home for patients over 65 years of age following their discharge from the hospital.

Its service is available to all, regardless of race, creed, or financial status. It provides skilled nursing care on an hourly basis under the direction of the doctor, as well as guidance in health practices for all members of the family, the education of the family in ways to keep the patient comfortable between visits of the nurse and education of new mothers in the proper technique to care for the new born baby.

Their presence in the community also makes possible earlier discharge from the hospital which during this period of expansion is over-crowded.

Chestnut Grove Lodge Is Perfect Spot

SWIFTWATER — Chestnut Grove Lodge has been described as a perfect resort for happy young couples who have limited budgets but unlimited plans for fun.

Individual cottages are featured, each a separate unit with living room, bedroom, modern tile bathroom and fireplace. Dinner is served by candlelight in the main dining room.

Wild Animal Farm Is Top Attraction

STROUDSBURG—One of the funniest and most interesting little spots in the Poconos is situated on top of Foxtown Hill on Rt. 611 near Stroudsburg.

It is the Pocono Wild Animal Farm, and as its name implies, it is a farm. But with a difference.

In this place, the animals—or at least most of them—run around loose. Of course the buffalo and monkeys are caged, for the guest might take offense at being nudged by a buffalo, but who minds deer?

Upon entering the farm, you see deer, sheep, a llama, and donkeys greeting you. They come right up to the visitor and are very friendly.

Great For Kids

The farm is great for kids—and just as much fun for grown-ups. In fact, many of the year-round residents of the Poconos keep going back to inspect the animals.

A run-down of some of the animals confined there are camels, various types of deer, bears, an elk, various kinds of monkeys and gibbons, a buffalo, alpaca, foreign sheep, mountain goats, types of rabbits, peacocks, two Emus, and many other strange beasts.

The real appeal of the farm is the tame "wild" animals, however. Some deer-hunters have sworn off the sport forever after seeing a doe or buck come hanging around their child, wife, or themselves.

There are signs on most of the main roads leading into Stroudsburg telling the visitor how to get to the Wild Animal Farm.

Complete Banking Facilities Available For Vacationers

EAST STROUDSBURG—Wherever you travel in the Poconos, you are never far from complete, modern banking services.

This service is important to travellers—for often a check needs to be cashed in a hurry.

There are ten conveniently located banks in the region, and fast efficient service is the watchword for all personnel tending the needs for our visitors.

In East Stroudsburg there are two banks.

The East Stroudsburg National Bank, located at 60 Washington St., East Stroudsburg, has recently finished a complete modernization program, including parking facilities and architecture.

Drive-in banking facilities have been installed, and deposits are insured up to $10,000.

The East Stroudsburg office of the Monroe Security Bank and Trust Co. is located at 93 Crystal St. It is one of the old, established banking firms in the region.

Other Offices

The Monroe Security Bank and Trust Co. also has offices at Mountainhome and Stroudsburg. Mountainhome is in the heart of the resort area of the Poconos, and handy to many large hotels and recreation resorts.

The Stroudsburg office of Monroe Security is at 7th and Main Sts. It has a walk-up window facing 7th St., and fast, in-a-hurry banking can be accomplished there.

Across the street on the southern corner of 7th and Main Sts. in Stroudsburg is the First Stroudsburg National Bank—the bank with the town clock.

This bank was also recently modernized, and is a member of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, which insures deposits up to $10,000.

This old familiar bank has branch offices in Arlington Heights, two miles north of Stroudsburg on Rt. 611, the main artery to the Western and Northern resort regions, and in Bushkill, the center of the Eastern Pocono vacation area.

The Arlington branch features drive-in banking for fast service.

A consumer Loan department is located at 1110 N. Ninth St., Stroudsburg, and is the final branch of the First National.

In Mount Pocono the vacationer can do his banking at the office of the Northeastern Pennsylvania National Bank and Trust Co., noted for fast action and efficient service. The office is at 402-12 Main St. in Mount Pocono.

With these banks located around the vacation area, and with the decor and modernization improvements, the summer guest can conduct all his financing and banking needs with a minimum of effort.

BECAUSE good plumbing is a protection to health, your plumbing contractor should be chosen as carefully as the family doctor.

If you're vacationing here this summer, make this stop a must on your itinerary.

The bureau maintains two information booths, one at Delaware Water Gap and the other at Wind Gap, which can provide the casual visitor with complete information on area housing, eating and other facilities, complete with prices. The booths are staffed throughout the season.

The same service is provided at the bureau's headquarters at 1018 Main St., Stroudsburg.

The Poconos have been playing host to visitors from outside the area for more than a century. But the credit for much of the growth of the area as the resort capital of Pennsylvania in the past 15 years must go to the vacation bureau and the dedicated individuals who have worked for it—and equally important—supported it.

Visiting Nurses Offer Many Services

STROUDSBURG — Nobody comes to the Poconos to get sick, but if they should or if they come here to convalesce, they and their families may have reason to be grateful for the Visiting Nurse Assn. of Monroe County.

A red feather agency, the Visiting Nurse Assn., is a Red Feather Agency of the Monroe County Community Chest. It cooperates with other agencies such as the Cancer Society, the Department of Public Assistance and the Veterans Administration to provide nursing care.

Over 65 Patients

It also has a contract with Blue Cross for providing nursing care in the home for patients over 65 years of age following their discharge from the hospital.

Its service is available to all, regardless of race, creed, or financial status. It provides skilled nursing care on an hourly basis under the direction of the doctor, as well as guidance in health practices for all members of the family, the education of the family in ways to keep the patient comfortable between visits of the nurse and education of new mothers in the proper technique to care for the new born baby.

Their presence in the community also makes possible earlier discharge from the hospital which during this period of expansion is over-crowded.

Chestnut Grove Lodge Is Perfect Spot

SWIFTWATER — Chestnut Grove Lodge has been described as a perfect resort for happy young couples who have limited budgets but unlimited plans for fun.

Individual cottages are featured, each a separate unit with living room, bedroom, modern tile bathroom and fireplace. Dinner is served by candlelight in the main dining room.

Wild Animal Farm Is Top Attraction

STROUDSBURG—One of the funniest and most interesting little spots in the Poconos is situated on top of Foxtown Hill on Rt. 611 near Stroudsburg.

It is the Pocono Wild Animal Farm, and as its name implies, it is a farm. But with a difference.

In this place, the animals—or at least most of them—run around loose. Of course the buffalo and monkeys are caged, for the guest might take offense at being nudged by a buffalo, but who minds deer?

Upon entering the farm, you see deer, sheep, a llama, and donkeys greeting you. They come right up to the visitor and are very friendly.

Great For Kids

The farm is great for kids—and just as much fun for grown-ups. In fact, many of the year-round residents of the Poconos keep going back to inspect the animals.

A run-down of some of the animals confined there are camels, various types of deer, bears, an elk, various kinds of monkeys and gibbons, a buffalo, alpaca, foreign sheep, mountain goats, types of rabbits, peacocks, two Emus, and many other strange beasts.

The real appeal of the farm is the tame "wild" animals, however. Some deer-hunters have sworn off the sport forever after seeing a doe or buck come hanging around their child, wife, or themselves.

There are signs on most of the main roads leading into Stroudsburg telling the visitor how to get to the Wild Animal Farm.

Complete Banking Facilities Available For Vacationers

EAST STROUDSBURG—Wherever you travel in the Poconos, you are never far from complete, modern banking services.

This service is important to travellers—for often a check needs to be cashed in a hurry.

There are ten conveniently located banks in the region, and fast efficient service is the watchword for all personnel tending the needs for our visitors.

In East Stroudsburg there are two banks.

The East Stroudsburg National Bank, located at 60 Washington St., East Stroudsburg, has recently finished a complete modernization program, including parking facilities and architecture.

Drive-in banking facilities have been installed, and deposits are insured up to $10,000.

The East Stroudsburg office of the Monroe Security Bank and Trust Co. is located at 93 Crystal St. It is one of the old, established banking firms in the region.

Other Offices

The Monroe Security Bank and Trust Co. also has offices at Mountainhome and Stroudsburg. Mountainhome is in the heart of the resort area of the Poconos, and handy to many large hotels and recreation resorts.

The Stroudsburg office of Monroe Security is at 7th and Main Sts. It has a walk-up window facing 7th St., and fast, in-a-hurry banking can be accomplished there.

Across the street on the southern corner of 7th and Main Sts. in Stroudsburg is the First Stroudsburg National Bank—the bank with the town clock.

This bank was also recently modernized, and is a member of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, which insures deposits up to $10,000.

This old familiar bank has branch offices in Arlington Heights, two miles north of Stroudsburg on Rt. 611, the main artery to the Western and Northern resort regions, and in Bushkill, the center of the Eastern Pocono vacation area.

The Arlington branch features drive-in banking for fast service.

A consumer Loan department is located at 1110 N. Ninth St., Stroudsburg, and is the final branch of the First National.

In Mount Pocono the vacationer can do his banking at the office of the Northeastern Pennsylvania National Bank and Trust Co., noted for fast action and efficient service. The office is at 402-12 Main St. in Mount Pocono.

With these banks located around the vacation area, and with the decor and modernization improvements, the summer guest can conduct all his financing and banking needs with a minimum of effort.

BECAUSE good plumbing is a protection to health, your plumbing contractor should be chosen as carefully as the family doctor.

If you're vacationing here this summer, make this stop a must on your itinerary.

Pike County Has Many Attractions

MILFORD — Hundreds of resorts, catering to every taste and pocketbook, have been developed in the past 50 years in Pike County, sometimes referred to as the heart of Pennsylvania's $100 million resort industry.

To the north and east of Monroe County, Pike County contains camps for children's vacations, honeymoon cottages and resorts for families.

A system of State Parks, planned and administered by the State Dept. of Forests and Waters and stocked by the State Fish Commission also attracts many visitors.

The Pocono Mountains cover all of Pike County and spread south into Monroe County.

A high mountain plateau, ranging in elevation from 1,500 to 2,215 feet above sea level, the basic land pattern of the Poconos is dotted with lakes, streams and waterfalls and covered with forests. It provides excellent facilities for hunting and fishing as well as vacation.

Early in its growth, the state government realized the Poconos should be free for all to enjoy, not reserved just for those who stay at a particular lodge or hotel.

The commonwealth began a systematic program of obtaining control of the most picturesque views in the state.

Among these are Big Pocono State Park. It combines picnic areas with one of the most picturesque views in Pennsylvania. From an elevation of 2,130 feet, the farmlands, homes, lakes and wooded mountains spread toward the horizon.

The 1,300-acre tract has two parking areas, picnic tables, fireplaces, a refreshment stand, and about 10-miles of foot and horse trails.

Tobyhanna State Park, opened nine years ago, offers even more diverse facilities. Although the park contains approximately 7,320 acres, only a fraction of this amount has been developed.

Formal hiking trails have not been constructed, but the hearty vacationer will find many miles of enjoyment on the many fire roads and ancient timber trails traversing the area.

For water sports and fishing, there is a 165-acre lake with a 600 foot long sand beach. Picnic areas and fireplace have also been built.

One of the finest fishing spots is Gouldsboro Lake — 278 acres of public fishing water, well stocked by the state. Facilities include parking space for 450 cars, 200 picnic tables, 80 fireplaces, an 800-foot bathing beach and a boat house and 150-foot boat dock.

On a much smaller scale is Snow Hill Lake, only three acres small, but well stocked with trout, and also known for catfish and sunfish.

The small-scale park has 15 fireplaces, about two-dozen picnic tables, deep-well water, a 20 by 20 foot shelter, and seclusion.

Rated as the most picturesque park in Pensylvania, Childs State Forest contains a wooded glen and gorge, plus three individual waterfalls.

Previous history gives this park an added attraction — here was located one of the first industries in this section of the state, and foundations of the ancient tannery and woolen mill can still be seen.

The park includes several miles of hiking trails, and a unique swimming basin carved out of rock by thousands of years of tumbling water.

Promised Land

On the other side of the state park picture is Promised Land, a 420 acre lake and a site that includes parking and picnic areas, rustic cabins with electric lights, refrigerators, and open fireplaces, running water at the cabin door, and a bathing beach with life guards — all the conveniences of home.

But the too urban picture, with its concession stands and souvenirs and mementos is only at the gateway. Behind this area are 50-miles of rugged hiking trails, a natural glacial body of water known as Bryce Lake. There is also Egypt Meadow Lake and Balsam Swamp for nature lovers to explore.

Bear Willow and Klein Trails lead to a virgin forest. Spruce-Balsam-Tamarack Swamps abound with birds of every description and beaver colonies.

Besides experiencing the wonderful scenery and activities of outdoor Poconos, vacationers are also rewarded with the finest atmosphere and climate on the east coast.

Official U. S. weather reports show the Poconos possess the driest air east of the Rockies, and enjoy the Maine. Averaging 80 per cent clear weather during the summer, the Pocono nights are usually cool, while the days are sunny and temperate.

Pocono Resorts Have Accommodations For All

THERE'S something for everyone in the Poconos, whatever his taste may be or his pocketbook may dictate.

There are luxurious resort hotels where a week's pay won't pickup the entire check. There are camping spots in state parks where you can live for as little as $3 a day. And there are all shades in between.

There are accommodations for honeymooners—where you have to be recently-married to make a reservation. There are quiet boarding homes for the elderly. There are the boy-meets-girl type of resort.

The entertainment ranges from some of the best-known names on Broadway and the night club circuit to square dance featuring local combinations.

Food may also be found in abundant variety—from hot dogs and pizza to such epicurean delights as breast of turkey in champagne.

Want to go out for the evening? You name it and the Poconos have it.

Dinner Prices Range

Dinner prices range from a modest $2 to $3 in less pretentious places to swank night club types where the tab for two, not counting drinks, can easily demolish a $20 bill.

Most of the Summer theaters are reasonably priced. If dancing is on the agenda, again, the prices will vary depending upon what you want and what you are willing to spend.

Perhaps the most fortunate visitor to the Poconos is the person who likes to swim.

Most public beaches charge only a nominal fee for entry and use of clothes changing facilities and showers.

If you are a guest at a resort, the odds are about nine out of 10 that it has its own pool or an arrangement with one nearby so that guests may use it.

And a great number of the motels now have their own swimming pool.

Whatever you may have in mind, it's here. And, if you take the time to shop about a bit, it's probably available at a price you can afford to pay.

Wicasset Golf Course

SWIFTWATER — Wicasset golf course is located in the foothills of the Pocono Mountains, one and one-half miles south of Mt. Pocono and 12 miles north of Stroudsburg on Rt. 611.

A spokesman for Wicasset said that this is one of the trickiest courses in the area. Many of the greens are of the rolling type which adds to the game.

Distance of the holes in this nine hole course vary. The shortest hole is 177 yards and the longest hole is 487 yards.

Uggucione's Has Italian Specialties

MOUNTAINHOME — Whether your name is Michelli or Anderson, you're sure to go for the fine home-made Italian cooking at Uggucioni's in Mountainhome.

Everything is home-made and the meals are the best Italian-American dinners around.

Wine with your dinner? Uggucioni's has a cocktail lounge and a wine list to complement any Italian dinner you may order.

For spaghetti, ravioli, lasagna, tetrazini, cacciatori, or any other Italian dish, try this haven of savory cooking.

Stop in for cocktails, stay for dinner. Located in the very heart of the upper Pocono resort district, Uggucioni's has stocked up with the ingredients for the best meals.

We say the ingredients, because everything at this restaurant is home-made — except the wine, and that's home-made in Italy or some far away vineyard.

So whether you're German, Irish, Dutch, Italian, or Basque, everyone loves good Italian cooking, and no one loves it more than the chefs at Uggucioni's.

SAILING ALONG—A sailboat regatta on huge Lake Wallenpaupack is a thrill for vacationers to watch, as well as being a competitive sport for those who engage in it as contestants. Wallenpaupack is the largest body of water in The Poconos area, and has become a mecca for residents and visitors alike. In winter, ice boating is one of the major attractions.

Famous Water Gap Called Eighth Wonder Of World

DELAWARE WATER GAP — Known as the eighth wonder of the world and located just south of this town is the famous Delaware Water Gap.

History and legend show that long before white man set foot in this section of the country the mountain formed a dam for a lake and then a waterfall.

After many thousands of years the water wore away the rock of the mountain and formed Delaware Water Gap. A work of nature that has been viewed down through the years by millions of tourists coming to the Poconos on vacations and by those just out on a Sunday drive.

From the gorge of the Delaware Water Gap to the plateau of the Pocono Mountains hundreds of beauty spots abound for the sightseer and the party wanting to go on a picnic.

At the Point of the Gap, on the southern side, there are picnic tables available. Located here too is a lookout to the profile of Chief Kittatinny on the mountainside of the New Jersey side of the gap.

On the New Jersey side of the gap there is a beach and picnic area also available to tourists.

There are several lookout points on the Pennsylvania side that afford a beautiful view of the gap both to the north and to the south.

These lookout points may be reached by motoring to the Borough of Delaware Water Gap on Rt. 611 and at Deer Head Inn make a right turn, if traveling south from Stroudsburg, or a left turn if traveling north. This will take you to Lake Lenape and signs along the way will point to the lookout.

In the early 1930s Rt. 611 was constructed through the gap at a cost of more than $1,00,000 and was the last word in highway. Some of the residents of the area at that time referred to the highway as "The Gateway to the Poconos". The name has continued to be carried to present day use.

Several years ago the states of Pennsylvania and New Jersey constructed an alternate Rt. 611 on the New Jersey side. The purpose of the new road was many fold but to the area, and to vacationers it affords another beautiful view of the Delaware Water Gap.

Golf Courses Provide Fun For All

THE picturesque Poconos provides a scenic backdrop for every golfer from the duffer to the scratch player.

There are more than 30 courses in the Poconos with eight of the layouts in true championship form capable of holding any professional event. There are also area courses ranging in length from a 2,200-yard, nine-hole layout to the 7,200-yard (back tees) course.

Entering its fifth season this year is the Eagle Valley Miniature Golf Course at 727 N. Courtland St. on Rt. 209, east of East Stroudsburg. This 18-hole split-level layout is the only miniature golf course in the Poconos.

Built on two elevations, it includes many unique obstacles such as a small lake with stream.

"Every hole is changed every year to increase the entertainment value," says Jack Birnbaum, manager of the course.

Patten Is Back

Glen Brook Country Club has pro Paul Patten back for his third season and he reports the greens in excellent condition. Already this season no less than two holes-in-one have been carded on the layout's 16th hole —one of which came from another local golf pro, Ray Lambert of Mountain Manor.

A large part of Pocono play is held at Glen Brook. It is the only par 73 course in the area and measures 6,508 yards. Although its par three, 150-yard 16th hole is regarded as one of the toughest in the area, there are two local players will to dispute that —holding early-season aces as evidence.

John Kupice is Glen Brook's teaching pro.

Mo-Nom-O-Nock Inn at Cresco and Cliff Park at Milford are both good nine-hole courses. There are traps on either course.

The Pocono public courses include Wiscasset and Indian Mountain, both owned by Vance Megargel. A par three layout at Blakeslee Corners on Rt. 115 was installed last year in the Megargel circuit.

Wiscasset is located between Swiftwater and Mt. Pocono on Rt. 611.

Other public courses are Mt. Pocono Golf, Blue Mountain Golf and Bush's Golf Course.

"Golf Capital"

Fred Waring waves his magic and internationally-known name at Shawnee Country Club. Located on the banks of the Delaware, the Shawnee Inn has been in existence since 1911. Under Waring's guiding hand, the recent years have been a consistent program of development until today it is known as "The Golf Capital of the East."

Four tee positions are offered on every hole. This makes it possible to extend the play from 5,800 yards on the yellow course to 7,200 yards on the white. Par is 72. Jack White is golf pro.

Following the contours of the new layout is a five-acre lake providing reflecting beauty, an added golfing challenge to four of the holes, and the source of water for the new automatic sprinkling system.

Shawnee also is the home of the 1938 PGA championship and the 1961 Arnold Palmer-Jackie Gleason match in Sunday Sports Spectacular.

Earning the title of the toughest challenge in the area is Tamiment's fine course, designed by Robert Trent Jones. Located 12 miles from Stroudsburg on Rt. 29 east, it cost $750,000 to build. From three Tamiment-in-the-Pocono holes it is possible to see 20 miles in any direction.

High In Poconos

Tamiment also is the home of the Danny Kaye Pro-Am Tournament, held in September. The 17th hole at the course, two years, in the making, cost about $30,000 to construct.

Art Wall Jr., the 1959 PGA "Golfer of the Year," registers out of Pocono Manor Inn Golf Course. A challenging layout, it is some 1800 feet high in the Poconos.

Manor pro is Jack Cuttle who has held the job the last 38 years. Wall represents the Manor on the pro circuit and holds the Manor course record of 63. The Manor is located 15 miles north of Stroudsburg.

Mountain Manor on Rt. 209 at Marshalls Creek, probably the most played course in the area, is headed by veteran Ray Lambert, senior PGA member. The course has a layout of 27 holes with nine of them a par-three set-up.

Water Gap Country Club (Wolf Hollow) is home of the 1927 and '28 Eastern Opens. The Gap's 12th hole is only 120 yards long, but still earned the name "Hagen's Folly" after the Haig took a 12 on it in the Eastern Open.

Sam Kinder, a fine player, is the Water Gap pro. WGCC is a private club but arrangements can be made to play the course.

The Inn at Buck Hill is also the birthplace of Pocono golf. The first round was played there in 1909 some seven years after construction began. Ted Beadle is on his 19th year at The Hill and Harry Drennan, golf manager, is in his 43rd season.

Skytop, founded in 1928, is headed by Harold Calloway. It rarely allows outside play, however, reserving its course for some 3,000 members and resort guests.

Free Lessons

At Vacation Valley, free golf lessons are given to guests who stay a week and pay a nominal week's green fees. The Vacation Valley course is 3,000 yards long and includes a 580-yard seventh hole.

Blue Mountain Golf Course, near Saylor's Lake is owned and operated by Bert and Grant Knowles. It has a challenging nine-hole regulation course with natural obstacles.

At Tannersville is The Randall's Woodmont Lodge and Golf Course. The nine-hole layout is a fairly rugged challenging course.

Fernwood has a nine-hole course and is located on Rt. 209 east of East Stroudsburg.

Indian Mountain Golf Course is located at Kresgeville in the western sector of the Poconos.

ONE OF THE beautiful Golf Courses in The Poconos.

Following the contours of the new layout is a five-acre lake providing reflecting beauty, an added golfing challenge to four of the holes, and the source of water for the new automatic sprinkling system.

Shawnee also is the home of the 1938 PGA championship and the 1961 Arnold Palmer-Jackie Gleason match in Sunday Sports Spectacular.

Earning the title of the toughest challenge in the area is Tamiment's fine course, designed by Robert Trent Jones. Located 12 miles from Stroudsburg on Rt. 29 east, it cost $750,000 to build. From three Tamiment-in-the-Pocono holes it is possible to see 20 miles in any direction.

High In Poconos

Tamiment also is the home of the Danny Kaye Pro-Am Tournament, held in September. The 17th hole at the course, two years, in the making, cost about $30,000 to construct.

Art Wall Jr., the 1959 PGA "Golfer of the Year," registers out of Pocono Manor Inn Golf Course. A challenging layout, it is some 1800 feet high in the Poconos.

Manor pro is Jack Cuttle who has held the job the last 38 years. Wall represents the Manor on the pro circuit and holds the Manor course record of 63. The Manor is located 15 miles north of Stroudsburg.

Mountain Manor on Rt. 209 at Marshalls Creek, probably the most played course in the area, is headed by veteran Ray Lambert, senior PGA member. The course has a layout of 27 holes with nine of them a par-three set-up.

Water Gap Country Club (Wolf Hollow) is home of the 1927 and '28 Eastern Opens. The Gap's 12th hole is only 120 yards long, but still earned the name "Hagen's Folly" after the Haig took a 12 on it in the Eastern Open.

Sam Kinder, a fine player, is the Water Gap pro. WGCC is a private club but arrangements can be made to play the course.

The Inn at Buck Hill is also the birthplace of Pocono golf. The first round was played there in 1909 some seven years after construction began. Ted Beadle is on his 18th year at The Hill and Harry Drennan, golf manager, is in his 43rd season.

Skytop, founded in 1928, is headed by Harold Calloway. It rarely allows outside play, however, reserving its course for some 3,000 members and resort guests.

Free Lessons

At Vacation Valley, free golf lessons are given to guests who stay a week and pay a nominal week's green fees. The Vacation Valley course is 3,000 yards long and includes a 580-yard seventh hole.

Blue Mountain Golf Course, near Saylor's Lake is owned and operated by Bert and Grant Knowles. It has a challenging nine-hole regulation course with natural obstacles.

At Tannersville is The Randall's Woodmont Lodge and Golf Course. The nine-hole layout is a fairly rugged challenging course.

Fernwood has a nine-hole course and is located on Rt. 209 east of East Stroudsburg.

Indian Mountain Golf Course is located at Kresgeville in the western sector of the Poconos.

ONE OF THE beautiful Golf Courses in The Poconos.

earlier in 1779 by the second regiment of the New York line which had come down the Old Mine Road, camping in a field near Decker's house, crossing by ferry at Wallpack, soon to be the site of the great Tock's Island Dam, marching past DePuis at Shawnee, and arriving at Fort Penn in Stroudsburg at dusk on May 11, to begin to build the road through the wilderness.

The new Tock's Island Dam will flood a section of the earliest road on the Pennsylvania side of the Delaware. Built in 1741, it runs from Bossardsville, Saylorsburg and Wind Gap to Easton and was extended to Port Jervis as Rt. 209.

This southern inlet permitted settlers to trade with the Moravians in Nazareth and Bethlehem, and eventually led to the immigration of Quakers and Pennsylvania Germans from south of the Mountains.

Wagon Road

The first wagon road through the Delaware Water Gap was opened in 1800, just a year after the first inn had been established in the Gap. It was a turnpike road, and then as now travellers paid toll grudgingly.

Anthony Dutot, a Frenchman from San Domingo, who laid out the village of Delaware Water Gap as Dutotsburg, had his troubles collecting toll.

Some travellers spurred their horses and rode right by, others pretended to take his heavily accented request for "von leeetle toll" as a greeting, replied politely and drove on through. The modern toll bridge spanning the Delaware at this point is not so easy to by-pass.

Tollroads Abandoned

Tollroads, never very profitable, were abandoned when the Delaware and Hudson Canal was opened in 1828, providing cheap transportation for the coal which before then had been pulled on sleds over the mountains.

Coal, also, brought about the first railroads. In 1829, a railroad was completed across Moosic Mountain, connecting mines in the Lackawanna Valley with the canal at Honesdale. The cars were pulled up inclined planes by stationary engines and pulled by horses on the level.

"The Stourbridge Lion," first steam locomotive in America was imported from England for this railroad. It made one trial run but proved too heavy for the wooden rails and was abandoned. The original is in the Smithsonian Institute in Washington, and a replica is at Honesdale.

Erie Railroad

A new era of travel in the Northern Poconos was opened when the Erie Railroad was built in 1848. Shortly after, the Delaware and Cobb's Gap Railroad, chartered in 1849 by George and Oscar Scranton, was combined in 1853 with the Lackawanna and Western railroad charter to form the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western with construction starting the same year.

The construction of Forge Cut, near East Stroudsburg, proved the most difficult job and brought in a tough boisterous era with Irishmen imported for the job. The violence climaxed in a murder and one of the most famous trials in northeastern Pennsylvania.

Stream Highways

While coal spurred the railroads, the demand for wood turned the streams into major highways during the spring floods when great rafts were formed in every sizable stream from Port Jervis to Delaware Water Gap.

Raftsmen, too, were a rough and boisterous lot. Before 1821, for instance, Milford, now a peaceful town, had not a single church. Sunday was market day with farmers coming to trade produce for lumber.

The lumbering industry required plank roads to be built into the primeval forests. Men still alive remember hearing tales of passing 80 teams of oxen from Panther, Gooseberry Mountain and Kinney's Shanty to the tannery at Canadensis.

Tanning Industry

There were sawmills in every township, and coopers, wagon builders, sash factories and cabinet makers moved in to be near the source of supply. By 1860, tanning was the leading industry of the area.

The ice industry took over the lakes by the lumbermen and farms took over the land stripped of trees. Some of it was mighty poor farming land and was allowed to grow up into second - growth forests, with farmers eking out their income by boarding fishermen and hunters during the season.

The area long had a reputation as a healthful spot, and more gentle tourists began to come by stage coach from Philadelphia. Inns and hotels grew up along the old roads with the earliest in Water Gap, Echo Lake, Barrett Township, Tobyhanna and Mount Pocono.

Religious Groups

At the beginning of the 20th century, religious groups became interested in establishing vacation spots: The Quakers at Buck Hill and Pocono Manor; the Lutherans at Paradise Falls; the Assembly of Chatauqua at Pocono Pines.

What the new complex of roads will eventually mean to the Poconos only time will tell. Already harness racing tracks, motels and bowling lanes are springing up around the exits. Slowly gathering momentum is the drive for community planning in the area to protect its natural beauties and preserve it as a green oasis in the encroaching desert of concrete.

In the meantime, much of the Pocono Mountains remain as they were described by one of its first tourists in a pamphlet published in England in 1618:

New Albion

"New Albion, lying just midway between New England, 200 miles north, and Virginia, 150 miles south, is freed from the extreme cold and barrenness of the one and heat and anguish marshes of the other, and like Lombardy, a rich fat soil . . ."

"It partaketh of the healthiest air, replenished with the goodliest oaks, sweet cyprus, cedars, pines and firs, four sorts of grapes with a great variety of fish ad fowl. Stored with all sorts of corn . . . good mines and dyers ware."

"Deer, buffes and huge elk to plow and work. The uplands covered with berries, roots, chestnuts, walnuts and oak masts to feed upon; turkeys 500 in a flock . . ."

HOME mortgage money may be cheaper in 1963, some financial observers indicate. This could cause an increase in new home starts.

RIDING INSTRUCTION is provided by resorts and riding stables all over The Poconos. Here the beginner can learn to ride safely in beautiful surroundings and safely in such enclosed areas as shown above. Trails and cross-country rides are provided for those adept in horsemanship.

Astolat Kennel Produces Many Fine Shelties

EFFORT — Located in Effort, the Astolat Kennels year after year produce champion dogs.

Mrs. Constance Hubbard is the owner and operator of the kennels, which have American Kennel Club sanction, and exhibits her dogs all over the East.

The main breed of Astolat is the Shetland Sheepdog. Astolat Shelties, as the dogs are known, have been decorated and decorated again.

If you are a vacationer or a local resident and are thinking of buying a dog, the Shetland Sheep Dog is a marvelous breed. The dogs are small and haughty, with long coats and diminutive collie-like faces.

In fact, they look like miniature collies.

And with the vacation season coming up, if you plan to leave for a while, place your dog in the Astolat Kennels — one of the finest installations in the East for dogs of all kinds.

Mrs. Hubbard has been working with dogs for many years, and the experience she has accumulated show in the championship results of her dogs and her kennels.

Area Replete In Colonial History

DATING back to the days of the Minsink, Lenape and Paupack Indians, the scenic beauty and woodlands of Pike and Wayne Counties in the Lake Region of the Poconos have been famed for hunting and fishing.

The countryside is also rich in historical lore with colonial buildings and original settlements, affording interesting tours.

Milford which for six straight years has received the State Community Development Award is the couty seat of Pike Couty, formed from Wayne in 1814. Once a roistering river town where the raftsmen made their playground, it is now a serene center of many stately homes.

Former Gov. Pinchot, known for his outstanding contribution to conservation, had his home Gray Towers here, which this year has been turned into a Conservation Center under the direction of the United States Department of Agriculture.

The present jail in Milford was built in 1814 to serve as both courthouse and jail and is considered an outstanding example of early 19th century architecture. The present courthouse was erected in 1872.

Home Of Tom Quick

Milford was also the home of Tom Quick, "The Avenger of the Delaware" whose claim to having 99 Indians have made him a legend in the area.

Dan Beard, founder of the Boy Scout of America, established the first Boy Scout Camp at nearby Lake Teedyuskung in Milford.

The Pike County Historical Society is a treasure house of historical material.

Sylvania Colony

Greeley in Pike County was named for Horace Greenley, New York Newspaper man, who is credited with founding the Sylvania Society which in 1842 attempted to establish a colony here along communal lines.

The colony lasted only three short years, with the death blow a "black" frost on July 4, 1845 which killed the crops in the field. The name of Greeley, and the crumbling foundations of the grist mill over a dam which the colonists had made and of their communal dining hall are all that remain of the colony.

In nearby Lackawaxen, can be found the home and final resting place of Zane Grey, noted author, who wrote many of his adventure stories here, inspired by the wild beauty of the surroundings.

Wayne's Background

Honesdale, the county seat of Wayne County, was founded in 1826 by the Delaware and Hudson Canal Co. It is the birthplace of the American Railroad. The first steam locomotive, The Stourbridge Lion, was brought from England to pull coal on the gravity Railroad from Seelyville. Proving too heavy for the tracks, the trial run was also its last. HISTORICAL MONUMENT—The Kresge monument in Gilbert is over the final resting place of early members of the Kresge family who were pioneers in the area. The monument is the story of the oldest son of Conrad Kresge being killed by the Indians as the father is working clearing the land to make way for his farm. Monument was dedicated Aug. 18, 1895.

Here, faithfully recreated, is the Early American Country Store . . . with so many nostalgic things you've heard about. Most needs of man and beast were met in such a store, with harness and tools only a step away from calico and bonnets. It's fun to see how foods were dried or pickled or preserved before freezing and plastic bags came along. You realize how children's eyes must have popped seeing glass jars of gay candies. The proprietor vouched for his wares, and knew that customers expected full value. When you come for a visit, it's hard to resist buying something useful or whimsical from the well-stocked shelves. CONSTRUCTION UNDER WAY—The new wing being added to The Inn at Buck Hill Falls is well along on its construction. It will add considerably to the accommodations available at this famous resort.

The Inn At Buck Hill Falls Is Adding New Facilities

BUCK HILL FALLS—The Inn at Buck Hill Falls, already Pennsylvania's largest year-round family resort hotel, is currently expanding with the program scheduled for completion in December.

The additions will include a third dining room, a new all purpose lounge and 80 double rooms with private bath to add to the 300 guest rooms already in existence.

Clifford R. Gilliam, president, and Richard Edgerton, general manager, in a statement last night said "There will not be any inconvenience to guests during the summer months because of the construction, except possibly parking difficulties in the post office area near the construction site."

Other attractions at the Inn are spacious lounges, American plan and a la carte dining room, a cocktail lounge and an 840-seat auditorium.

There is a Camp Club tenage program and sports including swimming, a 27-hole golf course, lawn bowling, tennis, riding, skiing, skating and sledding.

The ski run features an artificial snow making machine and two Poma lifts.

CONSTRUCTION UNDER WAY—The new wing being added to The Inn at Buck Hill Falls is well along on its construction. It will add considerably to the accommodations available at this famous resort.

The Inn At Buck Hill Falls Is Adding New Facilities

BUCK HILL FALLS—The Inn at Buck Hill Falls, already Pennsylvania's largest year-round family resort hotel, is currently expanding with the program scheduled for completion in December.

The additions will include a third dining room, a new all purpose lounge and 30 double rooms with private baths to add to the 300 guest rooms already in existence.

Clifford R. Gilliam, president, and Richard Edgerton, general manager, in a statement last night said "There will not be any inconvenience to guests during the summer months because of the construction, except possibly parking difficulties in the post office area near the construction site."

Other attractions at the Inn are spacious lounges, American plan and a la carte dining room, a cocktail lounge and an 800-seat auditorium.

There is a Camp Club teenage program and sports including swimming, a 27-hole golf course, lawn bowling, tennis, riding, skiing, skating and sledding.

The ski run features an artificial snow making machine and two Poma lifts.

Young's Shop Specializes In Candles

MOUNTAINHOME — Young's Candle Shop in Mountainhome is the home of fine hand make candles that make wonderful souvenirs and mementos of your vacation in the Pocono Mountains.

The shop is a combination studio and workshop where figures such as roosters, frogs, dragons and owls are made. One will also find flower waterfall candles both scented and unscented and all in a wide range of colors.

Taper candles are beautifully decorated with flowers, grapes and other such items.

Christmas candles are always in stock. The selection is one of the largest of its kind in the east.

Also available are selected imported candles, holders, driftwood and manzanita.

If you cannot find the candle of your choice and have an idea of what you want perhaps the skilled craftsmen here can make a candle to your specifications.

Blue Mtn. Golf Course Is Ideal

SAYLORSBURG—The challange is greater at the well-kept Blue Mountain Golf Course, located one-half mile east of Saylorsburg on Rt. 12.

Recently sand traps have been installed to make a "sportier" course. They also add to the challange of the game.

Also at the regulation course are natural water hazards. Both men and women enjoy this 9-hole course where rates are reasonable. There are also season rates and a nice line of professional equipment.

The holes vary from 125-yards to more than 400 yards.

Green fee is $1.50 daily but after 5 p.m. it is $1. Carts are 50 cents, and renta clubs cost the same.

Blue Mountain Golf Course is owned and operated by Burt and Grant Knowles. For additional information, write to Stroudsburg, Rd 4, Pa.

A&M Lamp Shop Is Very Unique

TANNERSVILLE — Al Astheimer, owner and operator of A and M Lamp Shop, in Tannersville, has won wide recognition for his creative work in making lamps.

The Shop, located on Rt. 611, is one of few of its kind in the world. Here custom lamps are made, either to your specifications or by the Astheimers.

Recently a roll once used to print wallpaper was turned into a lamp that not only drew many comments but a large number of viewers.

Table, floor, bridge, tree or pole lights are always in stock and there are many varieties from which to choose. Also carried in stock are reproductions of early American glass, lamp chimneys, half shades and decorated shades.

Astheimer has been in the electrical business for many years and, when called on to do a custom job, he puts into the project his many years of experience and know-how.

LUMBER CARE

FOR BEST results, if you are storing lumber until it can be used, it is well to turn the top few boards over every few days to prevent cupping. Wood nailed in place will keep its shape, especially the stable western softwoods like Douglas fir and west coast hemlock, but loose boards have nothing to hold them in place and so need extra care.

WHAT IS GRAIN?

BEAUTIFUL grain of wood is made by different growth rates of softwoods in spring and summer. Slower summer growth makes a dark annual ring which is generally more narrow than the fast growing and lighter colored spring wood.

WOOD BLENDS

ARCHITECTS like wood because it blends well with every other material. It can be used with stone, brick or glass to create some of the most delightful homes. It is a friendly material, which weds well with all else.

FAMILIES planning an extended auto vacation trip should have a reserve driver. The Institute for Safer Living states that driver changes reduces fatigue and drowsiness, while giving the principal driver a chance to relax and enjoy the scenery.

Building Costs To Double, Local Service Clubs Told

STROUDSBURG — Building costs, now six times their level of 50 years ago, will double in the next 25 years.

That prediction was made Wednesday by Myron L. Matthews, managing editor of the Dow Building Cost Calculator of the F. W. Dodge Corp.

He was guest speaker at a joint luncheon of the Pocono Mountain Chamber of Commerce, the Stroudsburg Rotary and Kiwanis clubs.

3 Per Cent Annually

Matthews said the increase would come at an average annual rate of three per cent and would coincide with other rising costs offset by personal and business income increases.

He said rising building costs should not be "the whipping boy — the convenient target for local wrath," arguing that building costs would be "incidental" to the economic return of new building or the pleasure of residential housing.

Matthews cited these increases in building costs in the 50 years since 1913 and these probable levels in 25 years:

Office buildings which cost $1 a square foot in 1913 now cost $22 to $24 a square foot and will cost $40 a square foot in 1988.

Private houses which cost $1.75 a square foot in 1913 now cost $9 to $10 and will cost $18 to $20 in 1988.

Warehouses which cost .85 to $1.00 in 1913 now cost $5 to $6 and will cost $10 to $12 in 1988.

Tabard Inn Has Historic Atmosphere

SCOTRUN-Taken from the Canterbury Tales, the Tabard Inn on Route 611 ten miles north of Stroudsburg lives up to its name. The decor features the coats of arms of many families and the company of the armor and helmets of many a gallant knight with bright plumes.

In the dining room against the background of sturdy English Oak, the menu follows the theme of Chaucer's famous taes from the Prologue, featuring imported caviar through The Tale with King's Poultry, Tabard Red Meats, From the Sea to the King's Cut.

Pocono Manor For Perfect Meetings

POCONO MANOR—John M. Crandall, general manager and vice president of Pocono Manor, said our new saying here at the manor is "Perfect Meetings".

The phrase originates from the recently completed conference rooms at Pocono Manor. The four meeting rooms, Monroe, Luzerne, Lehigh and Lackawanna Rooms, were constructed to meet the heavy demand of conventions at the manor.

Monroe Room will accommodate from five to 40 people for a small conference.

Luzerne or Lehigh Rooms will seat from 50 to 75 people each. The Lackawanna Lounge is the largest of the rooms and will accommodate the largest crowd.

The new addition offered 4,100 square feet of meeting space.

Also new this year, and in the final stages of completion is another new nine-hole golf course.

For Additional information telephone 839-7111, area code 717.

MOST REMARKABLE

WOOD is the most remarkable of all natural substances. It can be cut and sawn to make lumber and plywood, it can be pulped to make paper, it can be pressed to make hardboards, it can be distilled to make valuable chemicals, and it can be burned to get charcoal, tars and other chemicals, and by the wood hydrolysis process another family of chemicals can be obtained.

Fudge Shop Features Homemade

MOUNTAINHOME — Candy made right before your eyes. Now doesn't that bring back memories of days gone by?

Well it's true, in the Pocono Mountain Fudge House where fudge of all types is made daily.

Clyde Reid, proprietor, has more than 25 years as a candy maker and when you have tasted the finished product your taste buds will agree that it's the best you have ever eaten.

The Pocono Mountain Fudge House makes all types of fudge, light, dark and in-between, with or without nuts. Another specialty of the Fudge House is shipment for you to any place in the world. A feature like this saves you from carrying home a lot of "extras" and it's one way of letting the people back home know that you arrived safely and that you are thinking of them even on your vacation.

The Pocono Mountain Fudge House is located in the old post office building in Mountainhome on Rt. 390.

SMOOTH FINISH

TO GET that satiny glass finish on wood paneling like west coast hemlock or Douglas fir, be sure to sand down and rub the wood to a smooth-as-glass surface and then apply a sealer coat. After it has dried, you can apply any number of coats of plastics, varnishes or lacquers, rubbing down each coat after it dries. This will give you a furniture-smooth wall paneling or wood surface.

Two Resorts Offer Varied Attractions

THEY don't look alike and they are situated in different parts of the Poconos but Glenwood Hotel and the Oak Grove House are under a common management and have a common goal in providing good company and fun for all their guests.

The Glenwood Hotel and Resort Motel is in Delaware Water Gap. The Oak Grove Hotel and Resort Motel is above Marshalls Creek. The Glenwood is high on a hill; Oak Grove is in a hollow by a little lake.

Both resorts feature large filtered swimming pools, hotel orchestras and dancing every night, cocktail lounges, professional floor shows, nine-hole golf course, indoor playrooms, guest talent shows, sports directors and combined hotel costume parties.

There are contests of every variety, shuffleboard, archery, tennis, golf for both beginners and experienced players, with instructions by the sports director, as well as dance contests, modern, Latin and the Twist, and instruction in the latest dance steps taught.

SELECT A LAVATORY

THE MOST important consideration in the choice of a lavatory is size, says the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau. Nothing can spoil the usefulness of a bathroom more than a small, shallow, inadequate lavatory. Lavatories 20 inches by 18 inches or larger will best serve the needs of the family.

Jos. DeRenzis Has Modern Aluminum

STROUDSBURG — Joseph DeRenzis and Son, 21 N. Sixth St., in Stroudsburg, is the area dealer for Eagle Aluminum products and is equipped to meet the needs of every home and cottage owner in the area.

PM Baseball Provides Entertainment

SAYLORSBURG — The Pocono Mountain Baseball League offers fine entertainment every Sunday and holidays for those who enjoy fine amateur play.

The league this year dropped from eight teams to six, and as a result the talent is not as spread out as before.

Teams featured in the exciting league are Stroudsburg, West End, Bushkill, Bowmanstown, and Reeders.

Location of home fields are Stroudsburg (Gordon Giffels Field in rear of Stroud Union High School), Bushkill (near the Fernwood), Saylorsburg (near Saylors Lake), Reeders (near the Jackson Township Firehouse), Bowmanstown (in Bowmanstown), and West End (Gilbert).

The Stroudsburg A's and West End have been crating a two-way dogfight for first-place honors since the season started.

West End was the champion last year when Saylorsburg offered the stiffest opposition. This year, after the first seven games, it appears the West Enders will be battling Stroudsburg for top honors.

Beechwood Specializes In Comfort

TOBYHANNA — Blake's Beechwood is not too large but takes to heart the comfort of every guest, yet it is not too small to find congenial companionship.

Located half a mile from Tobyhanna State Park, guests of Blake's are furnished free transportation daily to the large sandy beach on the lake at the park.

The forests of the park offer splendid places for nature study, hiking and hunting in season.

On the grounds are croquet, pingpong, and quoits. In the rumpus room at Blake's are pocket billiards and other indoor games.

One of the features held weekly at the resort is the outdoor picnic for the guests.

Noted for its outstanding food, the Lodge has accommodations for 30 guests in large rooms with cottages or cabins for families or small groups.

Cooking for the guests is under the personal guidance of Mrs. Blake, and it's of the home cooking style.

Bluebird Has Unique Attractions

STROUDSBURG — Bluebird Lodge and Motel is located but one half mile from Stroudsburg off Route 611. It is far enough from town and highway noises to enjoy a good night's sleep or vacation, but not too far to be inconvenient.

The rooms of the lodge and motel are modern with television and private bath in each unit. The dining room and cocktail lounge are centrally located.

Bluebird Lodge features its ultra-modern, automatically health-controlled, heated swimming pool.

For information or reservations telephone 421-6231. The area code is 717.

Indian Mtn. Golf Course Attractive

KRESGEVILLE — Indian Mountain Golf course is located just off Rt. 209 in Kresgeville and offers a nine hole, 3,200-yard course.

The course is open to the public daily and green fees, up to 5 p.m., at only $2. After 5 p.m. green fees are lowered to $1.

To those who come on their vacation and forget to bring their clubs, Indian Mountain has rental clubs available. Also on the grounds is a full pro-shop line of golf equipment.

The greens are open to the public and a spokesman for the club said that when a large group expects to play for the day, a telephone call should be made to complete arrangements.

PM Baseball Provides Entertainment

SAYLORSBURG — The Pocono Mountain Baseball League offers fine entertainment every Sunday and holidays for those who enjoy fine amateur play.

Teams featured in the exciting league are Stroudsburg, West End, Bushkill, Bowmanstown, and Reeders.

Location of home fields are Stroudsburg (Gordon Giffels Field in rear of Stroud Union High School), Bushkill (near the Fernwood), Saylorsburg (near Saylors Lake), Reeders (near the Jackson Township Firehouse), Bowmanstown (in Bowmanstown), and West End (Gilbert).

The Stroudsburg A's and West End have been crating a two-way dogfight for first-place honors since the season started.

SELECT WATER CLOSET

THE WATER closet for a bathroom or powder room should be selected with great care because of its hygienic importance.

Factors to be taken into consideration, says the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau, are: amount of water area in the bowl, quiet and efficient action, ease in cleaning, and pleasing design.

Wyckoff's Store A Mecca For Residents, Vacationers

STROUDSBURG — While a visit to a department store is not usually classified as a diversion, A. B. Wyckoff in Stroudsburg is such an unusual "family store" it has become a "must" on the list of the Poconos' many tourist attractions.

Wyckoff's is 88 years of age, but can trace its history back even farther to the days of the Gold Rush when men were traveling westward in covered wagons. At that time, the store of today was also a Conestoga wagon carrying two brothers and their wares between the metropolis and the busy little town of Stroudsburg where city merchandise was traded for farm produce.

Today the Wyckoff store is wondrously cosmopolitan. As the years passed and wagons gave way to the motorized age, and such things as jets and missiles came into being, Wyckoff's also "picked up speed", reaching out to encompass the whole interesting world. From everywhere around the globe merchandise was selected to bring back to the Poconos, until today many persons make a trip to Wyckoff's a very important part of the family's annual vacation.

Many Conveniences

Wyckoff's spreads over two big floors, and boasts a large basement store bearing the Sears-Roebuck name. No other store in the country has this honor. There is an excellent Tea Room in which the many splendors of the Poconos from farmlands to picturesque waterfalls, from the decor, and in the very modern and capacious parking lot just outside farm implements, nursery plants and paraphernalia, aluminum boats to use on the sparkling lakes and rivers of the Poconos, are displayed.

There is a beauty salon at Wyckoff's to glamorize femine customers for the dances, parties, and sporting events that are seasonal features in this vacation area, and a Travel Bureau to assure their getting home or elsewhere with speed and convenience.

But to hundreds of visitors the principal attraction is the Wyckoff Gift Center where one can buy everything from chop sticks to African wood carvings in one compact, colorful area.

In this "store within a store" one finds pottery from Greece and Italy, silver from West Germany, glassware from Czechoslovakia and Venice, bone china from England, brass ware from India and from Israel brass with baked batina finish Delft and Gouda ware from Holland, assorted wooden animals from Switzerland, lacemaker dolls from Belgium.

Also character dools from many nations, antique copper from Iran, leaded glass hanging lamps from Denmark, and flowers and ferns from Austria, hand-picked, dried and framed in gold leaf as well as many other fascinating, equally unique art objects from other sections of the world.

All of these things, as well as fashions for the entire family and the newest in decorations for the home, attract honeymooners and other Pocono vacationists to Wyckoff's by the score. To the child who visits the Wyckoff store, the attractions include, much-loved Old Gray Mare that dominates an important corner of the children's department, and a pony named Scotty who takes the children for free rides through the parking area.

A visit to Wyckoff's is absolutely a vacation "must" in the Poconos!

Unity House Has Pleasant Surroundings

Unity is designed primarily to provide a wide range of activities and a luxury atmosphere for union members at a price they can afford.

Special rates are provided for union members and the resort is also open to the public at regular prices.

Wyckoff's Store A Mecca For Residents, Vacationers

STROUDSBURG — While a visit to a department store is not usually classified as a diversion, A. B. Wyckoff in Stroudsburg is such an unusual "family store" it has become a "must" on the list of the Poconos' many tourist attractions.

Wyckoff's is 88 years of age, but can trace its history back even farther to the days of the Gold Rush when men were traveling westward in covered wagons. At that time, the store of today was also a Conestoga wagon carrying two brothers and their wares between the metropolis and the busy little town of Stroudsburg where city merchandise was traded for farm produce.

Today the Wyckoff store is wondrously cosmopolitan. As the years passed and wagons gave way to the motorized age, and such things as jets and missiles came into being, Wyckoff's also "picked up speed", reaching out to encompass the whole interesting world. From everywhere around the globe merchandise was selected to bring back to the Poconos, until today many persons make a trip to Wyckoff's a very important part of the family's annual vacation.

Many Conveniences

Wyckoff's spreads over two big floors, and boasts a large basement store bearing the Sears-Roebuck name. No other store in the country has this honor. There is an excellent Tea Room in which the many splendors of the Poconos from farmlands to picturesque waterfalls, from the decor, and in the very modern and capacious parking lot just outside farm implements, nursery plants and paraphernalia, aluminum boats to use on the sparkling lakes and rivers of the Poconos, are displayed.

There is a beauty salon at Wyckoff's to glamorize femine customers for the dances, parties, and sporting events that are seasonal features in this vacation area, and a Travel Bureau to assure their getting home or elsewhere with speed and convenience.

But to hundreds of visitors the principal attraction is the Wyckoff Gift Center where one can buy everything from chop sticks to African wood carvings in one compact, colorful area.

In this "store within a store" one finds pottery from Greece and Italy, silver from West Germany, glassware from Czechoslovakia and Venice, bone china from England, brass ware from India and from Israel brass with baked batina finish Delft and Gouda ware from Holland, assorted wooden animals from Switzerland, lacemaker dolls from Belgium.

Also character dools from many nations, antique copper from Iran, leaded glass hanging lamps from Denmark, and flowers and ferns from Austria, hand-picked, dried and framed in gold leaf as well as many other fascinating, equally unique art objects from other sections of the world.

All of these things, as well as fashions for the entire family and the newest in decorations for the home, attract honeymooners and other Pocono vacationists to Wyckoff's by the score. To the child who visits the Wyckoff store, the attractions include, much-loved Old Gray Mare that dominates an important corner of the children's department, and a pony named Scotty who takes the children for free rides through the parking area.

A visit to Wyckoff's is absolutely a vacation "must" in the Poconos!

Unity House Has Pleasant Surroundings

FORREST PARK—Unity House is a sprawling resort operated by the Ladies International Garment Workers Union near Bushkill in Pike County.

But it has probably had more famous visitors than any other area resort, among them the late John Foster Dulles, at that time Secretary of State to President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Dulles came here to brief members of the AFL-CIO Executive Council on the foreign situation during one of the council's annual meetings here.

Unity is designed primarily to provide a wide range of activities and a luxury atmosphere for union members at a price they can afford.

Special rates are provided for union members and the resort is also open to the public at regular prices.

In addition to excellent food and beverages, the resort features a program of activities including all sports and lectures by such distinguished personages as Stephen M. Kennedy, former New York City police commissioner.

Togo Lake Newest Home Development

MARSHALLS CREEK—Togo Lake is one of the newer home developments in Monroe County just five miles from Marshalls Creek. It is situated around the lake and covers 115 acres.

Many people have found it an ideal place to build a home for the family's summer vacation. The development is also ideal for the rugged outdoor man or woman who seeks a place in the mountains where hunting and fishing are of the finest to be found in the east.

Officials at the development have taken into consideration that many people prefer to make purchases of this type on a monthly payment basis and they have set up convenient arrangements for those who prefer to purchase a lot in the development.

Pennsylvania Dutch Fair Attracts Many Visitors

KUTZTOWN—Bright, new features have been added to this year's 14th annual Pennsylvania Dutch Folk Festival, and two of them are bound to intrigue food lovers, no matter what their age.

Among the new displays at this year's event on the specious fairgrounds in little Kutztown, Pa., will be a cookie house and a pie house.

For the first time at the festival in the village on Route 222 between Reading and Allentown, the cookie house will be displayed.

Features in it for the throngs attending the event—last year's festival attracted more than 175,000 visitors—will be the cookie specialties of Dutch Pennsylvania.

During the festival, from June 29 through July 6, an old-time whitesmith will demonstrate the making of cookie cutters, using his grandfather's designs which antedated the Civil War.

The pit house also will be new, and will prove a vivid example of how Pennsylvania's Dutch country is part of this nation's "pie belt."

Pie was eaten three times a day in the Dutch area—for breakfast, dinner and supper. The pit to be featured this year for the first time is "shworda-koccha" — literally, hamrind pie, a sweet pie made with black barrel molasses and with strips of sweet dough criss-crossing its top.

Also in the food line during the event—the nation's largest folk festival—will be cheerful Pennsylvania Dutch farm women from church and grange groups preparing and serving the distinctive seven sweets and seven sour meals which have made their cooking famous throughout the country. The specialties range from "rivvel" soup to fastnachts and Amish vanilla pie. Bread will be baked in an old-fashioned outdoor bake oven.

Other demonstrations and exhibits will include laying 18th century tile on a farm building; a dry house in operation; altering a farm wagon for use as a hay wagon; a village blacksmith at work; the making of soap; the use of "vertical horsepower"; shavong shingles for roofing; linen making; preparing flax; hex sign painting; an old-fashioned country store; churning cream into butter; lye making; the playing of party games, and an old-time "lumpa" party.

Craftsmen skilled in their arts will produce baskets, brooms, barrels and fish nets; cider will be pressed on an 18th century cider press, and "schpotza," a maple sugar delicacy, will be prepared.

There will be two stage presentations daily; a two-hour pageant of horse-and-buggy days in the Dutch country; an Amish movie; jigging and hoe-down demonstrations by championship sets, and free-for-all square dancing each evening.

All in all, it promises to be the finest in a long line of Pennsylvania Dutch Folk Festivals.

Birchwood Features Tour By Air

DINGMAN'S FERRY—Anticipating the boom of Tock's Island Dam 30-mile lake, and taking advantage of the established George W. Childs 281 acre State Park near Dingman's Ferry, Richard Norman, the East's leading developer of mountain-lake communities, has opened the multi-million dollar home project in the Poconos.

Called Birchwood Lakes it includes twin lakes about a mile and a half long with four miles of frontage sloping to the water. In addition to lake-front sites, there will be two tiers of lake-view sites. There will be a community club house for dances, civic gatherings as well as parks, tennis, handball and shuffleboard courts and a baseball diamond.

Already built are models of the $2,995 summer home which spearheads the vacation development. Richard Norman, president of the All-American Realty Co., is also boosting the area as a retirement spot.

Monroe General Hospital Expansion Now Under Way

EAST STROUDSBURG — The summer visitor to the Pocono Mountains often goes in for exercise and sports. With this there is always a possibility of injury.

The mountains might be the mountains, but there is top-notch medical care for residents and visitors alike in the General Hospital of Monroe County.

It's a progressive hospital. A new six-story $2,142,454 wing was started on May 8. The top two floors are being added as a buffer against future expansion of the region.

They will not be used right away, but the far-sighted board of directors of the hospital didn't want to get caught short. They planned the top two floors so that there will be enough facilities for years to come.

When the new wing is completed, the hospital will boast a 200 bed capacity. The cost of the wing is being borne by the people of Monroe County and the governmental funds made available for such use.

The hospital serves more than Monroe County however. Nearest hospitals to the south are located in Easton, Bethlehem, and Allentown, about 30-40 miles away; to the north in Scranton and Wilkes-Barre, another 30-40 miles; to the west in Lehighton, bout 25 miles, and to the east over 30 miles into New Jersey.

Thus the General Hospital of Monroe County serves the needs of people from a large radius.

Pledges, Donations

The new wing has been a long time planning, and it takes time for a community the size of Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg to raise enough money to plan and build such an addition.

But the people of the county felt the increase in population, and had faith in the growth of the area. They raised the money through pledges and donations, and work was started with ceremonies at the hospital lawn.

Montgomery F. Crowe, a former state Senator, is the president of the board of directors at the hospital, and Harry J. Smith is the superintendent.

The hospital is maintained through voluntary contributions of the residents, either directly to the hospital or through the Monroe County Community Chest.

Whether you've nicked your finger and want the out-patient clinic to treat it, or there is serious accident or illness, the General Hospital of Monroe County is the kind of facility that you can feel safe in having.

Hill-Meadows Caters To Equestrians

STROUDSBURG — Hill-Meadow Stables, one mile west of Stroudsburg on Route 209, center of many local equestrian activities, is also open to the summer visitor.

Surrounded by abundant scenic trails with free instructions, with courteous guides and gentle mounts, Hill-Meadow Stables features both Western and English riding and jumping.

Half or full-day group rides may be arranged at lower rates as well as riding by the hour.

Encore Diner Features Many Dishes

STROUDSBURG — Encore Diner and Motel specializes in sauerbraten, sea food and children's menus, but it has more to offer than that.

One of the newest diners in the Poconos, it is air conditioned and features home baking. Take-out orders are welcome and breakfast is served at anytime.

Located on Rt. 209, seven miles east of Stroudsburg, it is operated by Mr. and Mrs. D. Muller and is open 24 hours a day during the summer season.

Rimrock Studio Has Fine Selection

SNYDERSVILLE—On Rt. 12 between Snydersville and Bartonsville is one of those stores that you tell your friends about when you return from your vacation.

It is Rimrock Studios, operated and handled by Val Robbins, an artist of the first quality. He works with wrought iron and wood for most of his creations, but everything he does is a work of art. Val has decided to go into the resort business, and this season is developing a series of housekeeping cottages and a small lake.

Studio Attention

But the real attraction is the studio. Here Val and his wife make tables and chairs, kitchen and home furnishings out of wood and iron and pottery —each article as fine as in a New York shop.

The prices aren't low—but fine craftsmanship never is cheap. This studio is as fine as can be found anywhere in the United States, and is one of the studios of which the area is highly proud.

For a kitchen table, a decorative lamp, an objoct of art for the living room, or a set of beautifully turned salt and pepper shakers, stop in at Rimrock Studios, where Val will be glad to show you around.

Monroe General Hospital Expansion Now Under Way

EAST STROUDSBURG — The summer visitor to the Pocono Mountains often goes in for exercise and sports. With this there is always a possibility of injury.

The mountains might be the mountains, but there is top-notch medical care for residents and visitors alike in the General Hospital of Monroe County.

It's a progressive hospital. A new six-story $2,142,454 wing was started on May 8. The top two floors are being added as a buffer against future expansion of the region.

They will not be used right away, but the far-sighted board of directors of the hospital didn't want to get caught short. They planned the top two floors so that there will be enough facilities for years to come.

When the new wing is completed, the hospital will boast a 200 bed capacity. The cost of the wing is being borne by the people of Monroe County and the governmental funds made available for such use.

The hospital serves more than Monroe County however. Nearest hospitals to the south are located in Easton, Bethlehem, and Allentown, about 30-40 miles away; to the north in Scranton and Wilkes-Barre, another 30-40 miles; to the west in Lehighton, bout 25 miles, and to the east over 30 miles into New Jersey.

Thus the General Hospital of Monroe County serves the needs of people from a large radius.

Pledges, Donations

The new wing has been a long time planning, and it takes time for a community the size of Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg to raise enough money to plan and build such an addition.

But the people of the county felt the increase in population, and had faith in the growth of the area. They raised the money through pledges and donations, and work was started with ceremonies at the hospital lawn.

Montgomery F. Crowe, a former state Senator, is the president of the board of directors at the hospital, and Harry J. Smith is the superintendent.

The hospital is maintained through voluntary contributions of the residents, either directly to the hospital or through the Monroe County Community Chest.

Whether you've nicked your finger and want the out-patient clinic to treat it, or there is serious accident or illness, the General Hospital of Monroe County is the kind of facility that you can feel safe in having.

Hill-Meadows Caters To Equestrians

STROUDSBURG — Hill-Meadow Stables, one mile west of Stroudsburg on Route 209, center of many local equestrian activities, is also open to the summer visitor.

Surrounded by abundant scenic trails with free instructions, with courteous guides and gentle mounts, Hill-Meadow Stables features both Western and English riding and jumping.

Half or full-day group rides may be arranged at lower rates as well as riding by the hour.

Encore Diner Features Many Dishes

STROUDSBURG — Encore Diner and Motel specializes in sauerbraten, sea food and children's menus, but it has more to offer than that.

One of the newest diners in the Poconos, it is air conditioned and features home baking. Take-out orders are welcome and breakfast is served at anytime.

Located on Rt. 209, seven miles east of Stroudsburg, it is operated by Mr. and Mrs. D. Muller and is open 24 hours a day during the summer season.

Monroe Co-op Serves Milk Products

BRODHEADSVILLE — Nestled in the rich farmlands of the West End of Monroe County is the Monroe County Co-op Dairy, producers of the finest, richest milk and dairy products around.

It is a member of the Monroe County Milk Producers Co-operative Dairy Association, and has been serving dairy products to the area for years.

Beside the mountains in other sections of the county, the West End is largely rolling farmlands and pastures. Here the cows which make the milk that finds its way to your table graze on the rich grass of the valleys.

The Monroe County Co-op features pasteurized milk, homogenized vitamin D milk, non-fat milk, buttrmilk, cream, chocolate milk, cottage cheese, butter and eggs, green spot orange drink, ice milk, ice cream, tropicana orange, and oleomargerine.

For any and all dairy products, order your next delivery from Monroe-County Co-op, the dairy of the people, by the people, and especially for the people.

Rimrock Studio Has Fine Selection

SNYDERSVILLE—On Rt. 12 between Snydersville and Bartonsville is one of those stores that you tell your friends about when you return from your vacation.

It is Rimrock Studios, operated and handled by Val Robbins, an artist of the first quality. He works with wrought iron and wood for most of his creations, but everything he does is a work of art. Val has decided to go into the resort business, and this season is developing a series of housekeeping cottages and a small lake.

Studio Attention

But the real attraction is the studio. Here Val and his wife make tables and chairs, kitchen and home furnishings out of wood and iron and pottery —each article as fine as in a New York shop.

The prices aren't low—but fine craftsmanship never is cheap. This studio is as fine as can be found anywhere in the United States, and is one of the studios of which the area is highly proud.

For a kitchen table, a decorative lamp, an object of art for the living room, or a set of beautifully turned salt and pepper shakers, stop in at Rimrock Studios, where Val will be glad to show you around.

Beaver House Features Sea Food Dishes

STROUDSBURG — The Beaver House at 1001 North Ninth St., Stroudsburg boasts if its sea food for good and sufficient reason. Live whole Maine lobsters are their specialty and their deviled crab, and scallops and wide assortment of other sea food justify their claim as the "Pocono's Only Sea Food House."

Located near the Stroud Shopping Center, their parking lot is always full, winter and summer, for the business men's lunch which attracts a faithful clientele of local customers—always a good indication to the traveling public that the food is good.

Re-opened under the management of Joseph Mikels, the hostelry is surging back to the popularity it enjoyed for many years prior to the death of its original owner. Its trademark, the beaver, is still there—over the bar.

In addition to sea food, the Beaver House features steaks and other fine foods, cocktails, wines and imported draft beer.

Birchwood, A Modern Community

CHERRY LANE — Birchwood billed as "the cozy honeymoon hide-a-way with canopy beds" has many more remarkable features for the young couples on their honeymoon.

One of them is the number of free activities provided for their guests, a boon at stretching that honeymoon budget without restricting activities.

One of those activities is a free air tour of the Poconos in the Birchwood's own twin-engine airplane. There is also a new heated indoor pool, an outdoor pool, lake, horseback riding, bowling, hayrides and 40 other free activities. In winter ice skating, skiing and tobogganing are featured.

Guests are housed in completely separate cottages with fireplaces and tiled baths, and those canopy beds of which they are so proud. They are also proud of the gourmet food they serve.

The Manor At Bushkill Is Pleasant

BUSHKILL—Bushkill Manor is unusual among area resorts—it has no social director or planned activities.

"There is today too much regimentation in our lives, so we don't ring bells for meals," its operators feel. It recommends itself as a place where one may have a "pleasant and restful vavcation."

Among its features are excellent food, deluxe cabins with electric radiant heat, wall-to-wall carpeting, television and private baths, a cocktail lounge, swimming pool, horseback riding and tennis court.

Four 18-hole golf courses are nearby with excellent hunting and fishing in season on the resort's 3,000 acres.

Breakfast is served from 8 to 1 a.m for late sleepers.

Beaver House Features Sea Food Dishes

STROUDSBURG — The Beaver House at 1001 North Ninth St., Stroudsburg boasts if its sea food for good and sufficient reason. Live whole Maine lobsters are their specialty and their deviled crab, and scallops and wide assortment of other sea food justify their claim as the "Pocono's Only Sea Food House."

Located near the Stroud Shopping Center, their parking lot is always full, winter and summer, for the business men's lunch which attracts a faithful clientele of local customers—always a good indication to the traveling public that the food is good.

Re-opened under the management of Joseph Mikels, the hostelry is surging back to the popularity it enjoyed for many years prior to the death of its original owner. Its trademark, the beaver, is still there—over the bar.

In addition to sea food, the Beaver House features steaks and other fine foods, cocktails, wines and imported draft beer.

Birchwood, A Modern Community

CHERRY LANE — Birchwood billed as "the cozy honeymoon hide-a-way with canopy beds" has many more remarkable features for the young couples on their honeymoon.

One of them is the number of free activities provided for their guests, a boon at stretching that honeymoon budget without restricting activities.

One of those activities is a free air tour of the Poconos in the Birchwood's own twin-engine airplane. There is also a new heated indoor pool, an outdoor pool, lake, horseback riding, bowling, hayrides and 40 other free activities. In winter ice skating, skiing and tobogganing are featured.

Guests are housed in completely separate cottages with fireplaces and tiled baths, and those canopy beds of which they are so proud. They are also proud of the gourmet food they serve.

The Manor At Bushkill Is Pleasant

BUSHKILL—Bushkill Manor is unusual among area resorts—it has no social director or planned activities.

"There is today too much regimentation in our lives, so we don't ring bells for meals," its operators feel. It recommends itself as a place where one may have a "pleasant and restful vavcation."

Among its features are excellent food, deluxe cabins with electric radiant heat, wall-to-wall carpeting, television and private baths, a cocktail lounge, swimming pool, horseback riding and tennis court.

Four 18-hole golf courses are nearby with excellent hunting and fishing in season on the resort's 3,000 acres.

Breakfast is served from 8 to 1 a.m for late sleepers.
